The pride was back,
giving the Spartans

A NEW OUTLOOK

Mr. Jerry Smith, equipment manager, fixes Mark Fishburn's helmet during a game against Pacifica. Mark played first string offensive center.

The Pep Squad was willing to go to any extreme to raise the school's spirit. They all dressed up as Madonna at a lunch rally to encourage students to go to the football game.

A new generation brought a lot of new changes to VPHS. Since our pride is higher, we have a new outlook. With these thoughts in mind, it seems that "A NEW LOOK" fits the 86-87 school year.

Why a Spartan painting off a number 3? The number 3 symbolizes part of the theme "A NEW LOOK." 86-87 will be the end of an old tradition, having 3 year high school but it also begins a new one, a 4 year high school next year.

VPHS has undergone a new look. Just driving at 60 mph down Taft you should've noticed a traffic light. Yes, this is new to promote safety for students crossing the streets due to a series of fatal accidents throughout the years.

There is also a new extended loading zone at the front of the campus used for safely loading and unloading students and improving the flow of traffic.

A great deal on campus has changed also, giving it a new look. A year ago the student centre was run down. It had to have been raining, for anyone to step into it. Now, with the new carpet, modern furniture and plants, it has a new inviting atmosphere for everyone to enjoy.

Lunch activities to liven the campus were very common. Simon Stone was one of many VPHS students who enjoyed having a fun time.

Running for the first touchdown of the season, Tony Inga carries the ball given by Quarter Back Tom Kelly. VPHS loses during a hard fought game against Pacifica.

Well, it's been a long time &
I guess the party's over - I guess you have one more year. It'll be strange waking up on Saturdays not seeing you in the class - it's been a blast & I'll miss you stupid jokes & strange excuses for coming in tardy.
It's really been a lot of fun &
you've been a great friend.
I'll miss talking to you - you're the best. Best of luck in the future.

A New Look.

Ms. Thielman, Activities Director, came up with a radical change in tradition. Anyone must have spotted the flocks of skirts around the campus. Yes, 42 was the magic number; 13 Varsity Songleaders, 12 Varsity Yell Leaders, 13 JV Yell Leaders, and 4 Mascots were established to rekindle the spirit flame and bring pride to the new VPHS.

And just when students thought they had finally mastered the escape routes to leave campus for a yogurt run or lunch, they were chased down by a "bouncer buggy" with a unfamiliar new bouncer!. Who said all these new changes were to our advantage anyway?

Although VPHS has gone through many new changes, there were still many things that were untouched: looking back at the special times spent here; going through the events such as our first high school sweetheart, or the wild and crazy times spent with friends; and remembering the dances and cheering at all the sports especially at football games and water polo games. All these memories are stored away waiting for that perfect chance to come out again. Do you remember after the football games when we held our fingers high showing our pride in VPHS? It didn't make a difference who had won or lost, because we all were there to share victory or defeat.

This yearbook will symbolize our high school years at VPHS. Helping us not to forget the smiles and warmth from our friends and the unity, spirit and pride we all showed in what we did.

What's New?"

By Diana Christensen

Books, lockers, homework, dances? No, definitely not. Those are the old things about school.

On Sept. 8, 1986, the first day of school, what did we see? Sophomores everywhere running around looking for what was new. Putting them in trash cans wasn't new, but the people themselves were.

There are always a few new teachers Andy Haas, Bob Newberry, Cynthia Nowitz, Frank Palmenteri, Ester Wallace, and someone in the counseling, Norma Preston.

The school decided to advance its technology by adding a computer lab in R2.

The most obviously new thing at VPHS was the spirit. We had twice as many cheerleaders than last year. There were 43 all together. The students also had a better attitude about school spirit.

When we passed by the student center we noticed how friendly and inviting it looked inside. The new furniture and carpet arrangement in school colors gave it a homey feeling.

We all felt safer when on the corner of Taft and Nichols, for a stoplight controlled the traffic and made it safer to walk to and from school especially for the students at CV.

Extending the front driveway was designed to help control traffic because students could be dropped off for school in a variety of places. Should the 25 year old pepper tree been taken out for this reason?

This year we had five new foreign exchange students, Michelle Perez, Sylvia Peris, Dorthie Thomsen, Jens Lerno and Jimmy Van Loo.

In way of teacher gossip Mrs. Moore adopted a new baby and Mr. Johnson got married to Miss Pendleton.

A third bouncer, Clair Ross, was added this year along with a "Bouncer Mobile."

All these things were new at the start of the year.

By graduation everything at school seemed old, but our futures look brand new.

New furniture, carpeting, and paint cheer up the student center in hopes that the students would feel it was their own.

CATCH the SPIRIT!

By Cheri Piest

Showing spirit is a major importance to each school. Throughout the campus VPHS students, ASB and cheerleaders worked together to build spirit and make this the peppiest class. "Spirit builds energy, excitement, and enthusiasm," commented Shanna Crabtree, Junior.

The Mr. spirit contest, won by Ken Robinson, gave guys a chance to show how much spirit and guts they had. There were Mr. Spirits everywhere wearing costumes of blue tights, capes and goggles and riding small "Kick and Goes."

The next Booster Hawaiian day saw strictly floral prints and grass skirts as the "in" garb. Cheerleaders passed out leis while students feasted on ribs, corn on the cob, and pineapple upsidedown cake, (the next best thing to a real Luau!).

The goals of each spirit booster activity were to get everyone involved and have fun. "We need spirit to stay alive. Without it sports would be bummed out," said Nari Takimoto, J.V. water polo player. "Without a crowd to cheer on the team, the players don't perform as well."

"Villa Park has really never had "Spirit," and I don't think that we know how to show it," commented Gregg Earl, Senior.

"I think this year will be the best, thanks to the cheerleaders and the help of the student body," said Junior, Deanna De la Riva.

"Catch the Spirit!" Ms. Julia Theilman, Activities Director, points out the new slogan for the year. The assembly was held to introduce the cheerleaders and build school spirit.

"I'm always looking for new and exciting things to do. Being mascot is more than I can ask for," commented Matt Green, VPHS's new mascot.

"It's like being a clown at the circus. I get to do all the fun stuff, like run around and act different without anyone saying anything."

"Spirit is fun! Everyone has tons of it, and I'd sure like to see more people show it."

"Most of the time the crowds are positive, yet there are times when mascots are relied on to raise the excitement. Cheerleaders can only do so much. That's why my job's not only fun but a lot of work!"

"They can't even spell out Villa Park, they can only spell VP."

These were some of the remarks heard throughout VPHS about the Marching Spartans Band. Although there were only 16 band members, their performance was still as good as ever. With all 3 groups working together and practicing hard, they hoped to win 1st or 2nd sweepstakes at the May Parade where they took 3rd place last year.

"We practiced 2 hours in the morning and on weekends. We're like a family," stated Jackie Schulkey who has been in Tall Flags for 2 years. Sherida Nelson was 1 of the "mouths" for the 3 groups. "I run around and get everyone real hyped up and spirited because that way their performances will be great."

The main goal for everyone was to go on tour to San Francisco and Colorado.

PAY OFF

By Jody Scott

When VPHS students see a game or a match, all they see is the final product. As spectators, they really don't know all the long endless hours of hard work that went in to achieve a few minutes of glory or agony.

Soccer player, Michelle Young, enjoyed the tough workouts that went along with the sport. "Practice built the stamina and endurance that I needed to apply during the game."

Tina Ramirez agreed, "Practice improves strategic plays that are necessary in competition." Tina went on, "In a game all our hard work paid off because we came together as a team. In practice we individually tried to sharpen our skill to contribute to the team in competition."

Apparently the long intense hours of practice were worth it to Tina Ramirez, as well as the rest of the team because "When we put out the effort, we looked and played together like a team!"

Steve Allred a member of the Varsity Cross Country team smiled, "We beat the odds and took the league title for the fourth year."

All of these athletes agree that their daily workouts became more rigorous as the season progressed. By spending these long and hard hours together, teammates ultimately achieved a sense of camaraderie. Regardless of whether or not the teams won or lost, they deserved credit for their hard work and devotion.

A New Queen

By Frank Paulson

Homecoming is a traditional event that occurs at every school. However, it seems that most of the student body takes it for granted. Only a select few, headed by Ms. Thielman, know how much planning and hard work actually go into the event. "Homecoming requires so much planning, hours, and energy," stated Ms. Thielman.

All of this paid off however, when everything turned out as planned. Homecoming was the climax of an enthusiastic spirit week. The homecoming court was announced in the amphitheater at lunch. The court consisted of Nicole Genova, Gina Mater, Ranae Randels, Cari Reese, Kristen Vicario, Steve Allred, Ken Domer, Kevin Halligan, Mark Kuli, and David Piper. Nicole Genova commented, "I was totally surprised and happy to be selected. It was a great honor."

Ken Domer was crowned King by last year's Homecoming King Pat Glen. "I was honored that my fellow students chose me to be their king."

Ranae Randels was this year's Homecoming Queen. "I was totally surprised and happy, but I wish that everyone could have experienced what I did!"

The highlights of the evening were when an unidentified student (Chris Meyer) ran across the field in red mesh underwear during the ceremony and the cheerleaders and football boosters let nearly 400 balloons go, except for Keri Uchytel, who held on to hers.

Last year's king, Pat Glenn and Queen Shannon Geary were chauffeured in a maroon Duesenburg limousine so that Shannon could crown the queen.

Past Putrid Pep Paucity Pulverized by

Plenty of Pepsters

By Jeff Randall

The advent of forty-two cheerleaders may have seemed like the downfall of a sacred institution, the traditional eighteen cheerleaders. But there were benefits.

"Now we can cover all the sports, from girls tennis to varsity football. Last year we received a lot of flak about not enough cheerleaders at the lesser attended sports," stated head yell leader, Barbara Dunn.

"It was obvious last year that there was a decline in spirit. With an increase in cheerleaders, we can increase enthusiasm throughout the student body," added song leader Genalyn Talevera.

The twenty-five varsity cheerleaders were broken down into four groups. Two yell squads headed by Keri Uchytel and Barbara Dunn and two song squads led by Ranae Randels and Kelly Kindt.

If the varsity squad couldn't make the event, the junior varsity would cover it. The thirteen J.V.'s were broken down into two squads headed by Trayce Thomas and Caryl Martian.

Ms. Julia Theilman commented on her decision to have forty-two cheerleaders. "It was the best thing I have ever done."

Thirty-eight cheerleaders, four mascots, and one pep commissioner weren't all that bad. After all they did a job supporting athletic events, and that's what cheerleading is all about.

Basted with blue make-up and rice, Billy Stevens competes for the title of Mr. Spirit. Even his bizarre costume couldn't clinch the title.

At the El Modena game, Jill Siegel and Kelly Kindt finish off a spirited cheer. VPHS lost this tough contest 24-0.

Varsity cheerleaders Jode Elsberry, Deanna Holte, Barbara Dunn, Nyla Newman, Leah Carpenter, Sherry Seabold, Gina Mater, Robin Iwasaki, Laura Gates, Kathleen Naruse, and Jill Siegel complete their introductory routine at a pep assembly.

Term Papers and Field Work Kept Students in and # Sent Them Out

By Miho Akiyama

Remember when you showed up for the Villa Park council meeting at night, and everyone there was from Defalco's class? Or when all the composition students were stressing over their term papers, ready to hit the insanity level? Well, these are just a few of the "fond" memories the Senior class has had of American Government, C.P.S., and composition (intermediate and advanced) classes this year.

The council meetings that Mr. Defalco's class had to attend were "fieldwork" assignments the classes did, to learn more about the different systems of meetings.

Karen Mohrhoff, reflecting back on the meetings, said, "It was a good experience for us, because we get an insight of our local government."

The composition class term papers were basically "stressful and insane, but a good opportunity to learn new things," according to many students. Carene Chiang, an Adv. Comp. student agreed, "At first I thought it was a waste of time, but now that it's over, I realize that I actually learned something."

Intermediate Comp. was expected to turn in papers 1500-2000 words long, and the Adv. Comp. papers had to be 2500+ words long. Both required footnotes and bibliographies, as well as good sources and careful research.

Although many of the students had complaints about term papers and council meetings, in the end, almost everyone agreed that "now that it was over," it was a good experience, and they did learn.

Foreign Orals Fun

By Deanna de la Riva

Students in foreign language classes were expected to conjugate verbs, communicate in simple conversation and do class orals.

An oral that was good and extremely funny to watch was when Chuck Ro and Gregor Sarkisin did their skit on being sick and going to the doctor. Chuck Ro played the sick patient and lay across the desks while Gregor played a doctor trying to give him a shot and take orders from the other doctor. The skit was a laugh a minute and kept the class in "stitches".

Taking a foreign language also helped students broaden their horizons and clarify their understanding of the language and the country's culture.

"Knowing a second language does not hurt at all. If anything, it better your chances for getting a job in the business world. Many companies look for people who are bilingual," explained Christine Norman, a Spanish student in her third year.

Although it was confusing at times, foreign language was fun.

To Strike Gold

By Jackie Schulkey

Jewelry is one of the most popular classes on campus, because students can make their own jewelry. Rings and bracelets are the things made most.

Chaslyn Foster explained, "I like jewelry because it's a 'kick-back' class and it's very creative. I've learned about the different types of metals and what they're worth. "M" is a real "cool" teacher."

"It's very educational. You can learn how to measure in grams. It's fun and a 'kick-back' class. You can also make what you want," Fred Guenther explained.

Another student Britt Griffith said, "It's interesting. It lets you be creative. I like making my own rings. It's a cheap way of getting gifts for birthdays or Christmas."

Curtis Walker said, "It's a cool class. There's a lot of pretty girls in here. You learn how jewelry is made."

Zalene Appel said, "You get to work all alone without having the teacher hanging over your shoulder. You can also set your own goals. It's different, not like any other class."

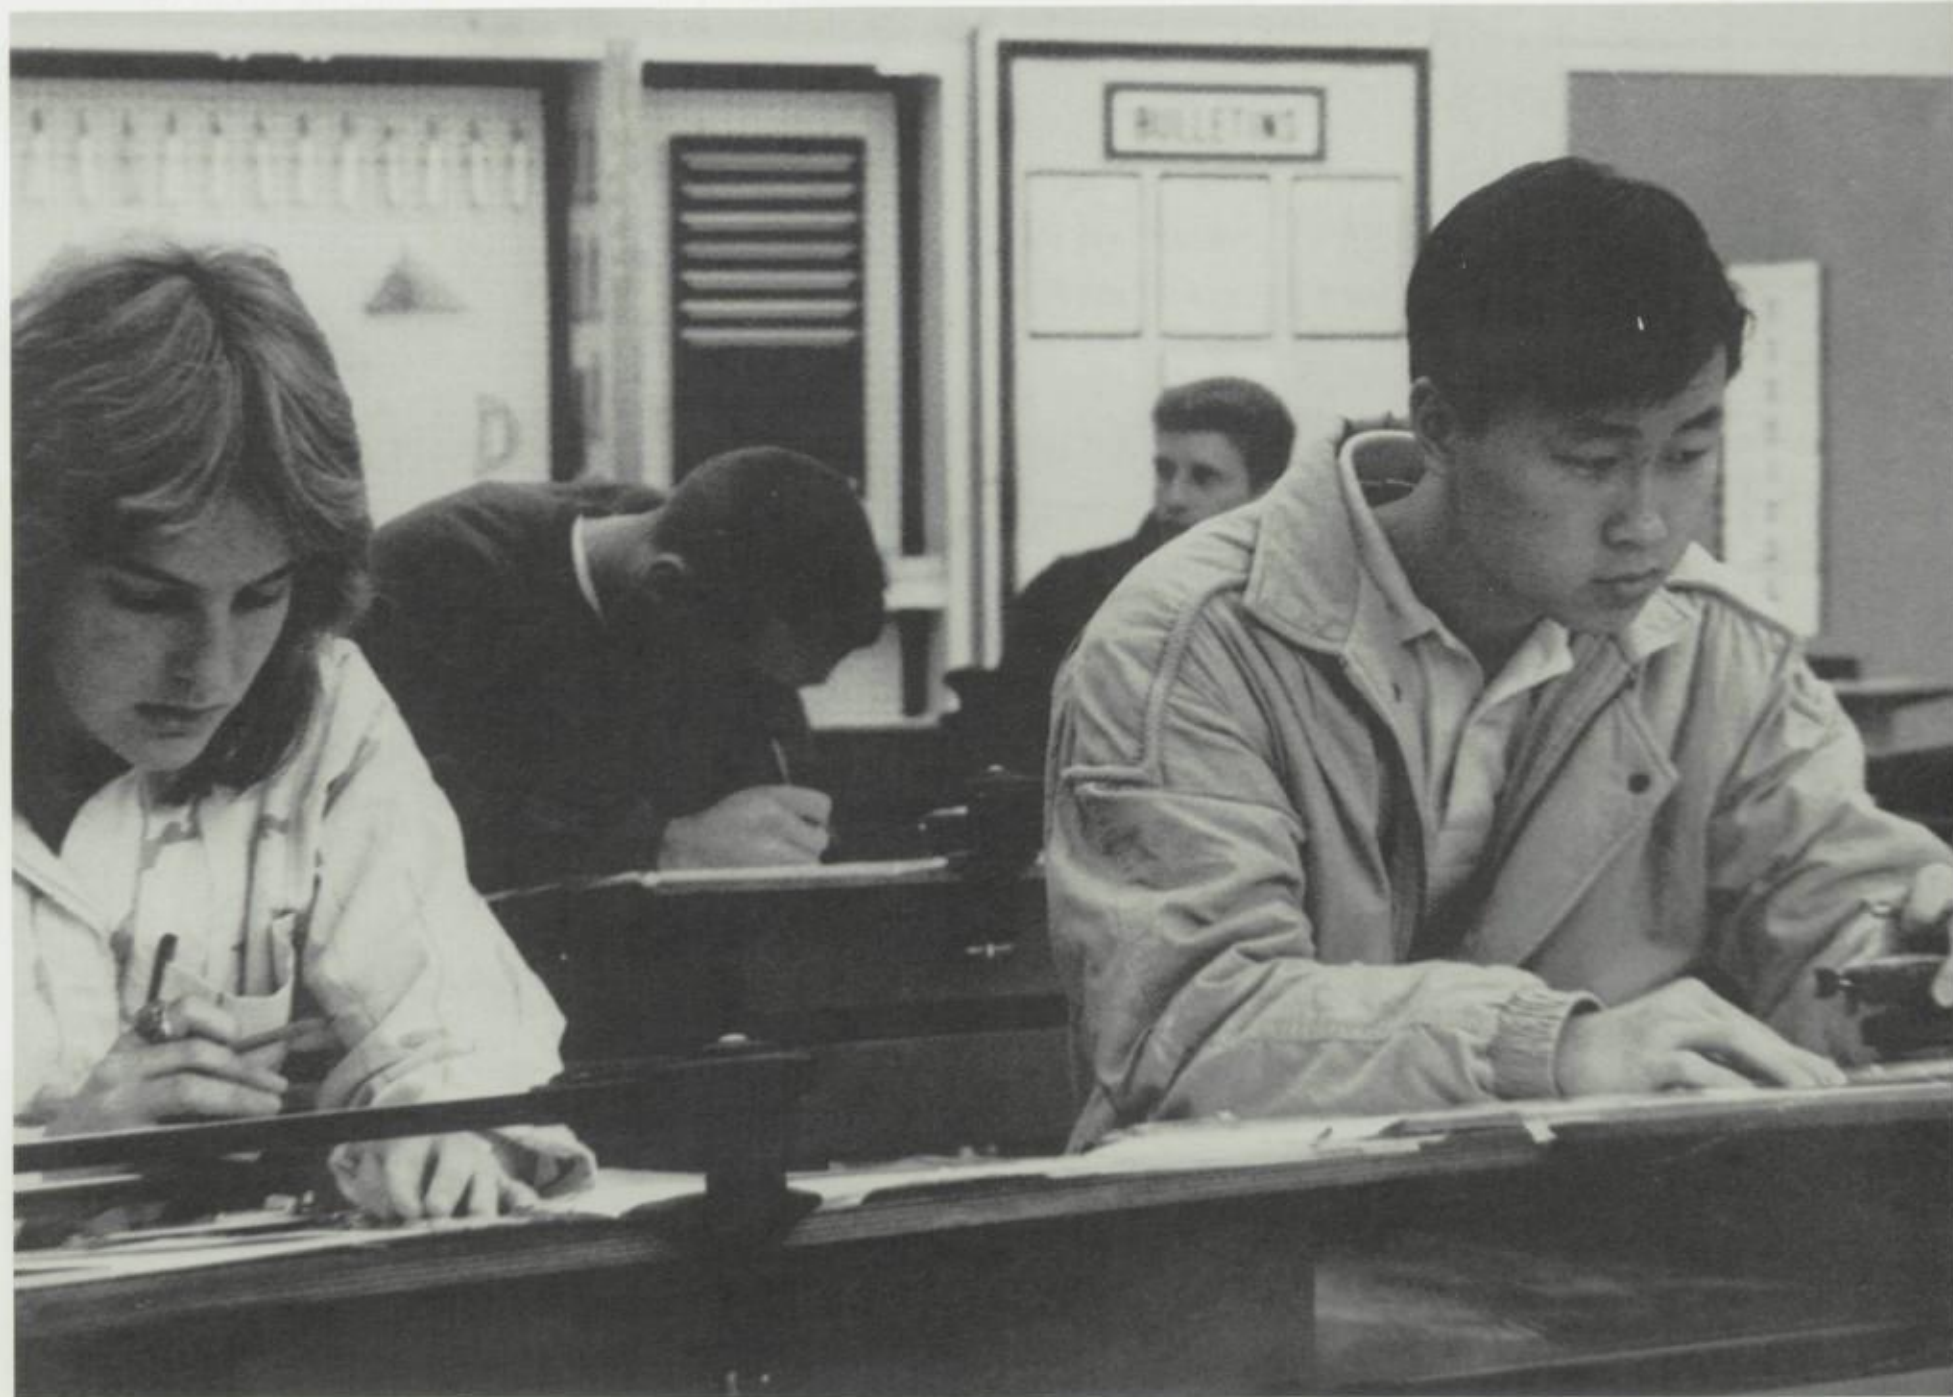

Many of the students commented on how "M" needs more money to replace or repair machinery.

During a jewelry class, Mr. John Muelmester teaches Nicole Baitx how to cast her ring. Nicole uses tongs to remove the ring because the metal is still firey hot. Bernadette Baros, Shawn Kornely, Brandy Burton, Kathleen Naruse, and Michelle Nichols observe the method.

A Way to College

By Michelle Fang

The Physics Classes were slightly different from other physics classes in the past few years. Under the supervision of Villa Park's new Physics teacher, Mrs. Esther Wallace, the students did many fascinating and educational labs. One was to build a paper tower.

The object was to build the tallest tower using only one  $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$  piece of paper, 50 cm of tape and a time limit of ten minutes.

"It was a combination of engineering and architecture," stated senior Rob Fauteux.

After two days of work, the winners, Rob Fauteux and Carl Stuetzel were the owners of a 189 cm paper tower.

Carl said, "I had a pretty good base. That's the most important thing, because it supports everything."

Other students, who did not win, enjoyed this lab as much as the winners. "It was an unusual lab, but we all learned something from it," stated Senior Thanh Trinh.

Mrs. Marilyn Hettick, a biology teacher has become our Physiology teacher, which was taught 3,4, and 5 periods. Projects such as, dissections, labs, and guest speakers were a few activities that took place in Physiology.

"I wanted to become a doctor at first, but then I thought, I'd really enjoy teaching science too," said Mrs. Marilyn Hettick.

Sheep brain and sheep eye dissections along with reflexes lab and labs having to do with ear bone conductions and vision tests were all performed in her class. The sheep's eye dissection seemed to have been the one that was remembered the most.

"It was disgusting. Mrs. Hettick made us poke our fingers into the pupil of the eye and flip it inside out. It was sick," cringed Jessica Reeves.

Nikki Hagan had a more interesting approach, "I was dared to put a piece of the sheep's brain on Paul Archibald's head, so I did."

Although it may have seemed disgusting or great for practical jokes, some education was gained in the process. "Actually, I did learn where the different parts of the brain were and their functions," exclaimed Nikki afterwards.

Two brains are better than one especially when they need to be dissected by a physiology class. Two or three students shared a brain for the lab.

"It's nice to see so many students enrolled in sewing. Usually students are turned off in Jr. High because they aren't as experienced as they are in High School about the basics of sewing," Mrs. Luella Syler explained.

Sewing is a class in which it teaches a student to use their creativity and imagination. Independence is taught indirectly because the student not to depend so much on stores clothing but on their own talents for sewing.

Some students were asked, Why do you like to sew?

Jennifer Romandy explained, "It's fun, you get to sew your own clothes. You don't have to sew what the teacher want's you to sew, like in Jr. High. You can also set your own pace. Everyone goes at their own speed."

Mona De Los Reyes said, "You save money on Prom dresses. It's fun, and it's also sort of experimental for when you get older. So that when you have children you don't have to spend all your money on clothes for them."

Sue Emery commented, "It's fun, you can save a good amount of money on clothes. It's also very challenging."

Learning how to sew can also help save money. Some dresses and garments are also not sold in stores, so people have to know how to sew.

"I love it! It's one of my hobbies and I hope that other talented students next year will enjoy it as much as the ones this year," added Mrs. Syler.

CLUB RUSH

By Cheri Piest

A day to gather new recruits, offer new clubs, and expand students' extra curricular activities all fell under the headline "Club Rush."

Club stations were set up before lunch with displays, food, and a variety of eye catching costumes and accessories. The goal was to show a little about each club and possibly expand its membership.

VPHS has a wide variety of clubs to offer. Key club for guys, AWS for girls, S.A.D.D., German, Latin, Spanish, or French club for everyone. If a student was interested in talent there was vocal ensemble, Dance, Band or Drama.

Club Rush was spent walking from booth to booth and buying interesting food from the Language clubs. German club sold one of the best apple strudles while the French club offered croissants. If a student chose to stick with cafeteria food, they enjoyed eating in the amphitheater and were entertained by Vocal Ensemble and Dance Choreography.

Club Rush's turnout went well. Most clubs doubled their membership and with their food sales money was raised for the new year's activities.

"Being in the Dance Choreography, I enjoyed Club Rush," commented Lisa Greenberg. "Everything went quite well and many people joined the dance classes as a result."

"Club Rush is one of the most fun days of the year. Not only do you get to participate in activities but people get to expand their college resumes. Clubs give people a chance to meet new people and make new memories. They're some of the most fun times in high school and everyone should get involved," said Dinah Gitlin.

Hicks Hit VPHS

The musical came from the comic strip Lil' Abner. The setting was a small country town called "Dogpatch USA." All the characters dressed in old, run-down apparel to match their characters' personalities. "The cast were stereotypical to their characters," stated Kelly Kindt, one of the special dancers.

The tryouts were held in three different divisions: singing, dancing and acting. "The dance tryouts were the most fun. I wasn't as nervous for them as I was for the other two," stated one of the wives, Samantha Miller.

Practices were held during sixth period until 4:30 or later depending on the work load for the day. "We all got along which made them more fun," stated cast member Rich Leiva.

By Robert Frackelton

At first I thought I would be unable to be in the musical because of swimming.

My schedule was tough, having to attend practices for both, but with the help of everyone involved I survived. Thank goodness I did because the musical was one of the best experiences of my life. Everything and everyone came together for those four performances.

I know that years from now I will look back with fond memories and never regret being Lil' Abner.

A Class Act

By Barbara Dunn

"We did a lot of activities together which made us close," stated Valerie Dunn, Drama Club secretary. As a group, Drama Club went to television show tapings, watched "Rocky Horror Picture Show" and had a Halloween and Christmas party. "The Halloween party was a blast," smiled vice president Jerry McDonald, "It was the first activity we did as a group."

The Drama Club also sponsored two productions "Barefoot in the Park" and "Generations." "Barefoot in the Park" was about a newlywed couple who lived in a high-rise apartment in New York and starred Inga Starrett and Dan Washington as Paul and Corie Branter. The second show produced by Drama Club was a monologue "Generations" that dealt with problems of life.

"We had a great year because the club was so productive," stated Drama Club advisor, Mrs. Nancy Grissenger.

Language clubs were for students who wanted to learn more of their language's culture and to broaden friendships. Each club had an adult sponsor, student historian, treasurer, secretary, president and vice-president. ## Is it live or is it Lip Sync?

By Craig Hofslatter

"It was a lot of fun to watch. Some of the acts were really good," commented Kip Ashton, after seeing the Lip Sync show. The cafeteria was packed with a capacity crowd as various acts performed renditions of their favorite groups, often resembling the videos seen on MTV. There were several acts that deserved recognition, like Mike Williams, who did a key by key performance of Bruce Hornsby's, "That's Just The Way It Is." But in the end, the top prize of 100 dollars went to Mark McCandles and Fred Nied who Lip Synced Sonny and Cher's, "I Got You Babe."

Other winners included Sally Rooney, Christine Butner, Katie Madison, and Jami Allen in second place with Aretha Franklin's, "Respect." Matt Green, clad only in his underwear and a button down, came in third with Bob Segars', "Old Time Rock and Roll," as acted in Risky Business, and in fourth place Ken Robinson did Ben E. King's classic, "Stand By Me," along with Roy Choi and Marty Strayer as back-ups.

All four winners were then eligible for the district finals at Chapman College on March 28.

went on during Snow Day, as Kevin Bates protects his face with a megaphone.

Rob Mahoney smiles as he sees his friend falling on the snow. Unfortunately he is "pegged" before he can complete his throw.

Where did the snow come from?

By Edwin Shakhverdian

10,000 feet above the ground, where the clouds lie in peace, something spectacular occurs, snow is formed. Here, a water molecule, which has a negative charge and lies beneath the clouds, is attracted by a positively charged dust particle which lies on top of the clouds. Their reaction crystallizes the water molecule and causes it to fall to earth as snow.

On Feb. 6, students discovered ten tons of it on the football field and wondered how it got there. Eric Davis suggested that, "A big cloud which contained crystallized water molecules had passed over that area." But how could this be when Dr. George Fishbeck said, "Snowing in Orange County is a rare phenomenon."

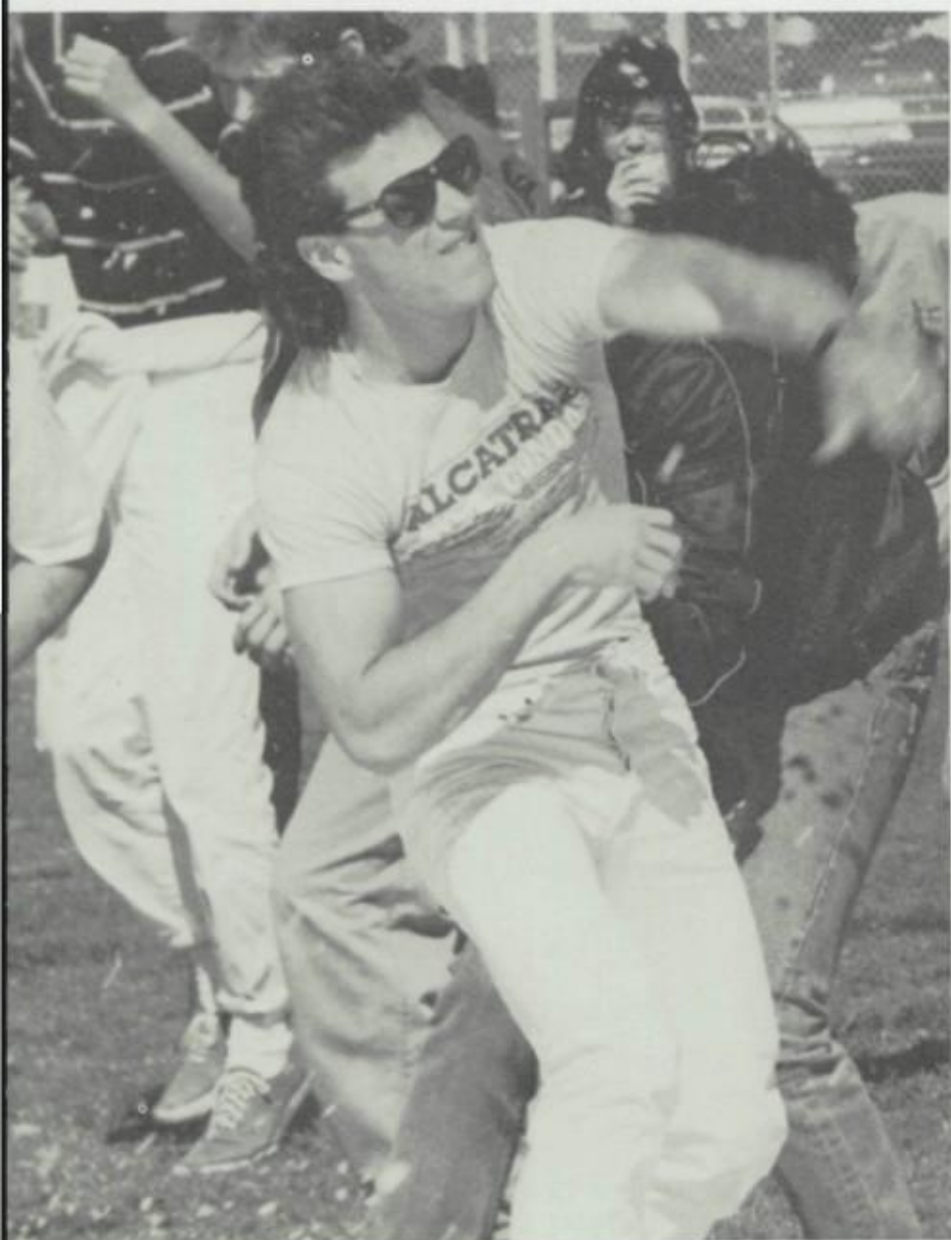

After few minutes of thinking, "Debby Baker came up with the answer. She said, "During fourth period, a truck pulled onto the field and dumped the snow." Everyone, relieved to hear this, went out to throw snowballs.

Seeing the snow, students went wild and became "rowdy". Manisha Vakil complained, "I couldn't even get near the snow because of the trash can throwing that was going on. Miss Thielman tried to calm the crowd and start a tug of war, but she was pelted with snowballs.

Overall, the day had its share of memories. According to Ed Goodyear, "I will never forget when I nailed Dave Hall in the back." Tony Cheng said "It wasn't a bad day, if you don't count me getting hit in the face."

But the person who went out of her way to make that day possible, Ms. Thielman, stated, "Next year if students want snow, they can go to the nearest mountain."

Searching for a target, Kade Kudron takes aim as Nick Freck speculates on the launching of this snowball.

Brian McGuire, finding a helpless victim, throws a carefully prepared snowball at his weak target.

Foreign Exchange

By Cheri Piest

Foreign exchange students are not uncommon in America, and VPHS has received 5 this year.

Students often ask them what their countries are like, but they're seldom asked what they think of America.

During foreign exchange week, students on campus asked this question and others. A variety of different answers were given.

"Everywhere you look, little red sports cars are flying by," Sylvia Peris student from Spain commented on American cars, "In Spain we hardly see such an amount of gorgeous cars."

Michelle Perez student from the Philippines stated, "People get cars as gifts out here 'Happy Birthday, here's a car!' Everyone has a car by at least 19 years old. I think it's great!"

Their response to freedom in American schools was unanimous. "Easier but fun!"

"Although the dances are more monitored and activities are all chaperoned, school is pretty fun. Being in Drama and SADD I try to stay involved in school functions," stated Jimmy Van Loo.

Because they were new in a strange country, they shared a lot in common which led to building strong friendships.

Jimmy Van Loo planned to have a party, a kind of reunion, for all his new friends and many planned on attending.

"I've spent so great of times sharing all activities and dances at this wonderful school. The friends I've made have been the best. I'll never forget them!" said Sylvia.

On Thursday October 23, 1986, fathers prepared for their big night out with their daughters. It was time to learn something about their daughters.

They arrived in the cafeteria and started the evening with pictures. After that, lasagna was served. "I was surprised, but the food was good," stated Katie Madison.

After dinner games were played like the Newlywed Game, and Name That Tune. "The games were the best because the dads kept embarrassing them," said Sheri Porter.

After the games, fathers had the pleasure of dancing with their daughters. During the dancing a contest was held. After they narrowed it down to only a few couples, Cari and Mr. Reese won and took home a brand new cuckoo clock.

Dancing concluded the evening of enchantment. "I had a great time," said Cari Reese.

"Just you and me" was the theme for "Hi Mom", an annual event at VPHS, attended by many mothers and daughters. Held on March 6, in the cafeteria, girls were given a chance to spend an entire evening with their mothers.

"It was really neat to be with my mom and my friends at the same time", explained Autumn Remelin.

Dessert was served and a fashion show was presented by VPHS students and local clothing stores. "Modeling in the fashion show was a lot of fun. I was really relieved to see everything so organized and well-planned", stated Trisha Christianson.

Some highlights of the evening were Matt Thruston's outstanding performance on the piano, the "stylish" clothes modeled by mothers, and various games and contests between mothers and daughters.

By Michelle Fang

"Yeah! We are finally seniors! This year I'm taking Mickey Mouse Classes and kicking back."

However, when seniors talked with their counselors, they said, "You need to take this class or that class in order to graduate. It is a requirement." By the time classes were rearranged, there was little room left.

Typical senior classes were CPS, American Government, Economics, and Consumer Economics. "Teachers tend to trust you more and they give you more responsibilities," stated Chen-Chen Lee, an American Government student.

Although they were given more freedom in these classes, the students still had to work hard in order to achieve good grades. "I think CPS was interesting because you learn many different political systems. But it was also hard. Mr. DeFalco's tests were sometimes very difficult," said senior Tracy Nelson.

The required senior courses were not "Kickback" at all. They were especially designed to help students do well in college and develop good study habits. "I think it (Economics) was a good preparation for college, and I really learned a lot," stated Chris Markey.

For many, taking a senior class was one of the memorable experiences they will never forget. Simon Stone stated, "It was enjoyable. I loved every minute of it."

Whether they were scrounged, given or taken, rides to school were a part of each day. Jennifer Blank desperately seeks a ride home.

By Craig Hofstatter

by Christine Norman

When I reached my senior year, I was left with a terrible problem of not having a driver's license, because of my idiotic driving as a junior. Fortunately, I had managed to acquire a scooter, but all too often it broke down and I was forced to rely on other means to get to school.

Monday — 7:50 A.M. "She's definitely not coming!" Barbara was often late, but not this late. I call, there's no answer. I give up and trot out across my lawn en route to school, sure to be late.

Tuesday — 7:30 A.M. The scooter runs today. I make it on time.

Wednesday — 7:35 A.M. I can't get my scooter started, but I'm not walking. I run around the house in a frenzy, trying to figure out how to get to school. At last

I find a skateboard in the bottom of my closet. At least I'm on four wheels. I make it to class on time.

Thursday — 7:40 A.M. I refuse to walk. In a desperate attempt to get to school, I run to the corner and stick out my thumb. I'm saved by John Chorbogian. "Running a little late today, huh, Craig?" he remarks as I climb in the car.

Friday — 7:39 A.M. I've found someone reliable enough, Jill Siegal, sure she's a little late, but at least I'm on my way to school in style.

Until I got my license back in January I was forced to follow this mad routine on a weekly basis and now, more than ever, I enjoy the freedom of having my own car, and a driver's license.

Steve Sewell and Bob Tomlinson take their year "lying down." Lackadaisical seniors could be found around every corner of VPHS.

by Jelene Tahira

By Jill Siegel

What is it like to be a senior? Senior year is a source of major change and upheaval. One of the differences between being a senior and an underclassman are the many "seniors-only" activities. Some of these events were special assemblies, senior ditch day, senior breakfast, and of course, the graduation day ceremonies. Another part of being a senior is the privilege of having "short day."

"Because I'm a senior, I only have four classes. I don't have a first period, and sleep in every day," stated Jode Elsberry.

Seniors "took it easy" after two years of working their tails off for college admissions.

"I find myself wishing the year was over, and that we could finally graduate," stated Alicia Bugg.

"I like being a senior because it's my last year here, and then it's off to the real world," Sean Roby added.

"I guess I really don't work as hard as I used to. Since I've already been accepted to college, all I have to do is graduate," stated Beth Stuart.

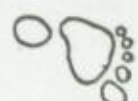

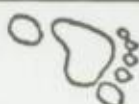

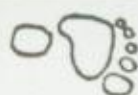

"Senior year is pretty kick-back," added John Stefani.

"Senioritis" was an epidemic on the VPHS campus.

Many seniors felt this way. The attitude seemed to be that VPHS held some great memories of special times, but the class of 87 was ready to move on.

Valarie Raya summed it up: "As a senior, I feel that this is the end of one lifestyle and the first step of a whole new world. Next year I will start all over, and face new challenges, but I'm excited and ready to get out into the world and give it my all!"

"The first step"

by Christine Norman

Do you . . . laugh at Mr. De Falco's jokes? Have the incredible urge to ditch and go to the beach? Watch Pat and Vanna instead of doing your homework? Punch your snooze button on your alarm clock five times before you drag yourself out of bed?

Have recurring nightmares with high pitched fevers and sweat dripping down your face about not graduating and staying in Mrs. Hettick's Physiology class for the rest of your life? Feel brain dead? Count off the days until June 18, 1987? Bounce off the walls during class?

Do you have a phobia about filling out college applications? Live your life for the next school vacation? Find yourself standing in the middle of the room screaming for no apparent reason? Just want out?

Then yes, you have that dreaded, deadly disease

(GASP) Senioritis. No don't take sniffing, sneezing coughing, stuffy head, so you can rest medicine.

Denise Berg, an aspiring pharmacist, said, "The only cure to a common case of Senioritis is graduation."

In fact, three out of the four students interviewed agreed with Ms. Berg's assessment. But, there are others who feel that more radical approaches are necessary.

Pete Matrisciano believes that this would include "A strong regiment of brainwashing, desensitization, subliminal recordings and occasional ditching."

Kim Williams also commented, "Ditching and weekends help to relieve the tension."

Well, whatever your solution, hang in there until graduation, and if this condition still remains take two physiology tests and don't come back in the morning.

By Steve Allred

By Steve Elmore

"Gosh darn it! Wrong handed scissors again."

This might be a common exclamation if you use your left hand.

The world leans toward people who use the wrong hand. Ask any self respecting left hander about the numerous conveniences for the left-handed population — that have never been developed.

Some people believe left-handers are not discriminated against. Try to turn on a drinking fountain in the Orange Mall. It can't be done by a lefty without getting his arm wet. Senior David Piper writing in his notebook is frustration in the purest form. His notebook is turned this way and turned that way.

He said, "It's impossible to write with these dumb rings. No matter which way you turn them they are always in the way."

I understand the problems of being left-handed. In preschool I was very talented with cut and paste. Creating a masterpiece, I tried to use right-handed scissors, since my class had no left-handed ones. My cutting attempt almost proved fatal. They bent my artwork instead of cutting. I never used cut and paste as an art medium again.

Left-Handed problems not only effect the academic side of life. They even occur socially. All punch bowl ladles are made for right-handers. Bob Waldow, a left-hander, pours away from his body.

He said, "I'd rather throw away than pour away."

The inconveniences are limitless. Sometimes they never seem to stop. Maybe someday the world will convert to a left-handed society, but for now lefties can only cope.

Ladles are not

Bouncer, Bea Dennison holds her greedy hand out for a student pass.

By Dave Lawhon

"Where are you supposed to be?"

This is the very first thing Bea inevitably says to you once she has cornered you during the middle of your fourth period English class which didn't appeal to you that day.

Everybody had a least one encounter with "The Bouncers" during their three year stay at VPHS.

Most of us got caught when we came back from eating that lunch that tasted so much better because we weren't supposed to be off campus.

Ducking and tiptoeing through the parking lot, we tried to get back on campus, without being seen by Ms. Kay Herbal or Ms. Bea Denissen who were just

"cruzin" in their new VPHS security mobile.

They always let us think that they didn't see us lurking through the lot. But the next day a call slip came and we spent Saturday morning together in detention.

The security mobile wasn't the only new addition to the patrol. We also pocketed a new bouncer, Ms. Claire Ross.

She said about the new job, "I like the same thing the students do, Vacations!"

These women have all been the best of friends for years. Together they work as pay parking attendants at Anaheim stadium.

"We are very compatible," said Ms. Kay Herbal.

Beauty Tips

By Cheri Piest

In 1987 an average school morning of "Natural Beauty" started something like this:

Christine Norman, senior commented on the first step. "I wake up around 6:00 to start my day. I always start by washing my face. Basically soap and water cuts it. I don't feel all the brand names clean any better.

Tracy Williams commented on the second step. "As I apply base I want to achieve an even, pure look and besides that it covers up all the blotches and blemishes."

The third step is to do the "eyes". In today's trends Beauty is what all the girls strive for. And the biggest help of all is eye liner.

"Eye liner accents my dark eyes and makes them look larger," stated Patty Chu.

The eye liner has toned down since the 70's when thick black lines were the trend. Today it simply is used to accent the eyes and their own beauty.

After the eye liner, eyeshadow may be applied.

"The colors I use most now are pinks, browns, and light purples. Those tones seem to bring out the color of my own eyes," commented Angela Huffman, Senior.

After the eye makeup has been applied, the fourth step is accents, such as mascara, blush, and lip-stick. All three are applied lightly with the look of a clean, fresh face.

"The basic goal of Today's Face was to put as much make-up on as a person could without looking like they're wearing any," stated Tammy Harris, Senior cheerleader.

Tim Keller looks on as Shannon Muth maintains her "Natural Beauty."

Judy Brown plays a "dateless wonder" and attempts to win on the Dating Game. Suprisingly she did.

I was a victim of a socially damaging disease. A disease that struck the young and had them anxiety ridden, suffering from sleepless nights, caused weight gain, an inflated phone bill, and in severe cases, extreme depression.

I surveyed a group of VPHS females between 16 and 18 and asked them their definition of the word "date".

Jennifer Blank — January 1st.

Susan Round — An extinct object.

Michele Young — Isn't it some kind of fig?

Alicia Bugg — A dried fruit

An Anonymous male — Something you try to forget

These people are so afflicted with this dangerous disease that they no longer have any concept of what "date" means. Dateless, though is clear, having no date. We're dealing here with the chronics, people who haven't had a date in a year or more.

By Kristen Demers

One male friend confided to me once, "I mean Kristen, I was all dressed up, I was lookin' good, and nobody called. I couldn't believe it!"

Symptoms of this disease range from overeating to the dreaded wait by the phone syndrome, where you just wait hoping someone will call, but of course, they rarely do. Victims also experience denial, claiming that they just aren't interested in anyone anyway.

These are only a few of the numerous symptoms and complications that go along with a dateless weekend. If you see one of those dateless wonders wandering the halls, think twice before you laugh hysterically in their face.

Yo Shuto looks in amazement as Karen Koigawachi is confronted with a question. Dave Piper doesn't seem worried, because he has his assignment.

By Brian Maguire

The bell had rung. Mark McCandless panics, for this would be his fifth tardy. He races to the door and slyly tries to slide in unnoticed . . .

"Mr. McCandless, your tardy."

"But —"

"There is no excuse for tardies, Mark!"

"I know, I should have never stopped to save that drowning child. I'm so weak."

Excuses, excuses, that's all you hear. No one tells it straight, especially in school. But the problem in school is that the type of excuses students use are old. For starters, everyone has heard the old ones.

"My house got flooded."

"It was too windy. I couldn't walk fast enough."

Also are the old family crisis'.

"My cat had its kittens on my bed."

"My mom is sick."

"My little brother hid my shoes."

Students do have their own approach. Kevin Halligan likes to be straight forward with excuses like; "I just couldn't get up," "I was up late studying," or "I had to work the night before," or something real honest . . . "I forgot".

Guys like Craig Hoffstatter created vivid stories for being tardy . . . "But Mr. Profitt, there were these three fat chicks in front of me and I just couldn't get around." (This, by the way worked)

Another weak approach which I ended up using myself was the stupid excuse. "Tardy? Ah ya . . . well ya see ahh . . . well . . . gee . . . ah . . . the thing is . . . well screw it I'm late!"

Kristen Demers, who commuted from CoroNa to attend VPHS, relies on accidents on the freeway. This had its plusses, as long as there was blood for proof.

Let's be real! Don't say, the dog ate it, or my locker was jammed. Be original and shock your teachers. Give them an excuse they haven't heard!

They mispronounce my name and misspell it, too.

By Edwin Shakhverdyan

Having an unusual name can be interesting or depressing. One name, Jai Ho is a common Korean name, but many people think it's weird because it sounds like something the Seven Dwarfs sang.

Besides pronouncing names differently, people also tend to shorten them. A good example of this is, Yoshiro changed to just Yo. Also, in some cases people pick the easier between the name and the surname. Vitthara Tan becomes just Tan, since it is easier to pronounce.

This problem in most cases is ignored, but senior, Flavio Andrioli, had a nightmare about it and wishes people would take the time to pronounce his name correctly.

According to him:

I was sitting in Mr. Murphy's class when I heard over the intercom — "Flavor Ravioli come to the Attendance Office at once!"

Puzzled, I asked Murphy, "What did she say?"

Murphy replied, "They want you in the office Flavio. Oh! I mean Flavor!"

I said, "Real funny, Dog!" and left for the office.

Arriving, I asked, "Did anyone call for me?"

Mrs. Paddy McKhann asked, "What's your name honey?"

I answered, "Flavio Andrioli."

"What was that hon.?"

she asked again.

"Flavio Andrioli!" I replied with a shout.

"Spell it for me!" she said calmly.

"F-l-a-v-i-o A-n-d-r-i-o-l-i." I spelled.

Then she wrote, "F-l-a-p-i-o A-n-d-r-o-i-d-o-l-i."

The next thing I remember was that I woke up in my bed yelling, "My name is Flavio Andrioli! My name is Flavio Andrioli! . . ."

People have the tendency of caring less about someone's name, than their own, but they get offended when their own name is misspelled, or mispronounced.

As Confucius might have said, "If everyone tried to recognize each other's names as they were meant to be, the world would be a better place to live in."

Diet, Diet

By Frank Paulson

It seems hardly a day passes without a girl complaining about how she can't lose weight or she's having trouble with her diet. This is hard for me to understand since I've been dieting successfully for years for wrestling.

Valerie Dunn doesn't worry about dieting.

The key to losing weight is to eat right and exercise. Sounds simple enough, doesn't it? Well, that's what I thought before I had to lose 18 pounds, 150 to 132 pounds for wrestling. This took approximately two months.

My daily workout and diet consisted of waking up at 6 a.m. and running 4-5 miles in the hills. Next, I ate either a grapefruit or half a bowl of Total or Wheaties. I then went to school and watched everyone else eat junk food (potato chips, pizza, soft drinks, cookies, etc.) wishing I could have a little. I then went to wrestling practice and lifted weights afterward.

I found that running was the best exercise for me to do to lose weight. Other good exercises were jumping rope, riding bikes, aerobics, and lifting weights. All these exercises, if done right, burn body fat.

Where most girls "blow" their diet, however, isn't exercise but what they eat. To lose weight, I must eliminate or reduce to a minimal all junk food, which includes Pringle potato chips, soft drinks, chocolate chip cookies, pop tarts, and beer. Also, I stick to three meals a day. If I must snack, I eat fresh fruits or O.K. girls, when you decide to go on a diet, vary what you eat and how you exercise to find what works best.

It's time for all you girls to take a look in the mirror. If you are unhappy, you can now do something about it. So, what are you waiting for? Diet, diet, diet...

? Whose Who ?

Almost everyone has a nickname, however some students were too embarrassed to reveal theirs in this senior poll. Can you guess which nickname belongs to the person brave enough to tell?

TAKE OUT THE GARBAGE

The clouds rolled in over the VPHS campus, but failed to drop anything but a little rain.

By Greg Earl

The months of December 1986 and January 1987 gave new meaning to the words typical "California winter." A typical winter usually consisted of a mild seventy degrees, and an occasional rain shower. But during these two months, the typical weather met with an unexpected spree of thunder and rain storms and a bone-chilling Santa Ana wind. Mount Baldy and Big Bear were covered in fleecy white and became the mecca for the ski buff.

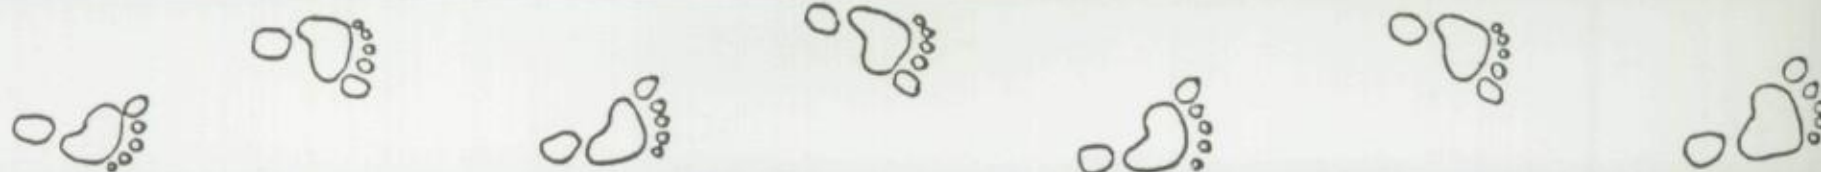

The weather was certainly unbearable during school. The typical student was found fashioning a new ski parka, mittens and a plaid scarf to help fight the bitter cold.

And rain . . . No longer were the cafeteria and library virtually barren. These were two of the most sought after warming places during the rain. Finishing up last night's homework or catching up on the latest gossip, kept restless bodies subdued.

"A change in weather is always nice," stated senior Andy Deak optimistically.

Life after high school? Not too many seniors know exactly what it will be like. Some think it will be a tough challenge, but with a lot of work they'll make it.

Zalene Appel intends to go to Orange Coast and become a science major. "I intend to donate my body to science." She said with a laugh "I am really interested in most aspects of science but I'd hope to go into Radiology."

One alumni Ali Rose now says, "I was always told that someday I'd have to wake up and face the real world, but I didn't think it'd be this tough. But I'm having a good time!"

A pole was given at VPHS which asked What do you think life will be like after graduating from VP?

"Partying, no probably working hard at USC so I can follow my father's footsteps and go into real estate and be totally rich and live in a big mansion! Oh also I'll be married to Brad Graham!" Darlene Rodriguez commented.

Cathy Mesaros answered, "A hard slap in the face with REALITY!"

"A lot of work, women and song," Robert Mahoney replied.

Michelle Fang leaves us with, "More freedom, life after high school is where the best part of life starts."

One inevitable step in preparing for college is to have taken the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test). The strain of completing the lengthy registration form is challenging enough without the trauma of arriving at a test center by 8:30 am on a Saturday to take a 3-hour test.

Jennifer Keeler experienced a SAT horror story. "My ex-boyfriend was there. We got in a big fight, and I ended up taking the whole test in tears."

Filing applications to colleges is another necessary step. After reading applications to such colleges as Stanford and UCLA, I have concluded that "brains" are masochistic. Some particularly challenging questions college-bound VPHS students encountered were:

"What makes you unique?"

— Karen Koigawachi

"Do you wet the bed?"

— Robert Waldow

"You have just written your 300 page essay, give us page 217."

— Patti Chu

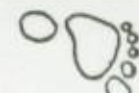

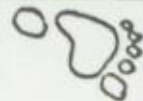

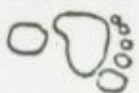

(These are actual questions asked by existing colleges).

The steps in applying to other colleges are somewhat easier. To apply to a CSU school, a student only needs to answer questions like "What is your birthday" and "What is your address?"

Sooner or later, every "brain," "Joe Student," and "Rip Van Winkle" reaches the same step in the process of applying to college: waiting for a letter of acceptance or deferral from the colleges to which they applied.

Attempting to leave the "Closed Campus", Audrey Osumi and Jolene Tafoya are confident they can make it past the "Bouncers".

By Steve Elmore

Off campus lunch. Was this a game or a problem for students? Many of them felt it was both. VPHS had a closed campus which no one was allowed to leave.

Getting back in Was harder than Leaving Campus

The bell rang at 11:55 for lunch, most students walked to their lockers to put up their books and grab their lunches or run to the lunch line. But some tried to leave campus to go out to eat lunch.

VPHS had three campus supervisors, "The Bouncers", who monitored the parking lot at lunch.

Students tried hard to leave by lying, using fake passes or any other way, but seldom did they succeed.

Students might leave to go to lunch but only if they lived within three blocks of the school.

The fact is that those who did leave had a harder time getting back in than they did leaving.

The consequence for getting caught was one Saturday workshop for leaving campus without permission.

Many of the students felt that the school could try and at least let the Seniors go to lunch as a privilege. Senior Tim Keller stated, "Off campus lunch is cool, and they should let us go."

Villa Park, in the future, could try an experiment and let the students go to lunch, but it's not likely they will ever do this. Instead they will stick to the closed lunch rule.

A bear hangs on for dear life from a car mirror, because if he falls he may be turned into a fuzzy steering wheel cover.

By Jami Allen

What makes rear view mirror ornaments so popular? Walking through the VPHS parking lot, I noticed that many students hang odds and ends from their mirrors.

Katie Madison said, "My bear makes my car look a lot homier."

"My rocket reminds me of a Friday night kids' meal," stated Beth Rickers.

"Just to have something hanging from my mirror," said Sam Catapang.

It has become a trend with various people from teenagers to "old folk".

It is against the law to have any object hanging from the rear view mirror because it obstructs the driver's view, but who cares? In student cars in the parking lot we noticed objects like palm trees, crystal balls, shoes, teddy bears, fuzzy dice, deodorants, sunglasses, prisms, necklaces, Gumby, a noosed Hulk, and much more. They were gifts from parents of friends, who thought they were cute, or people hung them up for good luck.

As the year comes to an end, others will throw away the old objects and put up their new tassels, or just add it to the collection.

By Barbara Dunn

The list of scheduled days for senior portraits were posted all over campus. Like many girls, I began to panic. I had exactly five days to figure out what I would wear. Many thoughts ran through my head. "What color sweater should I wear?" "Pearls or gold earrings?" And my hair, I have to do something with my hair.

When I got home from school, I searched high and low for something to wear. Nothing I owned would do. And so the next day I drove to South Coast Plaza. It took me four hours and fifteen stores to finally find "the perfect garment". There was one problem. It cost seventy-five dollars. Then I remembered an old trick. I kept all the tags on and after my picture was taken, I returned it for a full refund.

I immediately went home to search for my gold looped earrings to complete the outfit. The first place I looked was my jewelry box where I found one (notice I said one) earring. When the day of portraits arrived, I still couldn't find the other earring. Since my appointment was for 8:00 I started getting ready at 6:30. After going through a bottle of Aqua Net, my hair-do was set and wouldn't move. I put on my second choice of earrings, slipped on my sweater and "bailed".

When I reached the studio, I met Kelly Kindt who stopped me before I entered and laughed. "Look at me. From the waist up I look like a million bucks, but from the waist down I look like a dime store dolly". Gazing at her apparel I agreed. She wore a beautiful sweater with 501 jeans and high-tops.

The photographer probed at my hair with his pencil, but it couldn't move. He kept telling me to stick out my chest to help my posture (pervert). He took approximately nine shots of me looking out in space and I was finished. I couldn't believe all the time it took to prepare for a picture that only took five minutes to take.

To picnic with a friend was one way to spend part of a weekend. Ellen Costanza and Tonia Elliott enjoy a munch in the sun.

By Genalyn Talavera

After the end of another boring school week, I was excited to know we would have weekends to bring back some life.

The only problem was every weekend was typical. They would start off with endless phone calls from my friends asking the same old questions, "Where are all the parties," "Whose parents 'bailed'," and most of all, "Who's driving tonight?"

When all the complaints from everyone were resolved, we would plan to meet at Barbara's house at 7:30.

It would seem like ages until Barbara was done getting ready. Typically we left the house and "crammed" everyone inside one car by 9:00.

We cruised around "scoping" for a car load of guys to follow, to a party. When we were lucky we would score a "rager"! We would push our way in so we didn't have to pay, and excitedly, "check out the scene," for any prospects. After soaking up the atmosphere, we would "bail."

About 11:30 we would head toward McDonald's in the final hope that we would run into friends. Of course, we found a "ton" of people "kicking back" inside.

Midnight strolled by, and everyone concluded that this evening's "fiasco" was over. I would creep in my room and crawl under my covers hoping I wouldn't wake up my parents, but sure enough my mom's voice was heard through the walls screaming, "Did you have fun tonight?"

I laughed to myself and said, "Nothing mother, just the same old thing."

Robin Brenner sits in the sunshine and enjoys her Penguins' yogurt with her friend Pam McSherry.

By Trayce Thomas

Have you ever found yourself part of a popular fad or craze? One day you have never heard of something, the next, you can't live without it.

Frozen yogurt fits this category. With the concern for fitness of the 80's, low-cal yogurt caught the attention of many dieters. Besides containing about half the calories of ice cream, yogurt is made with less sodium, salt, and sugar. "I always eat yogurt because it tastes great and it's considered good for you," commented Jill Roberts.

Even though most yogurt shops use the same brand of yogurt, most students seemed to prefer "Penguins." "Penguins is my favorite place because it has the best flavors," stated Christina Lillyman. Other favorite places included Golden Spoon, Heidi's and Froggy's.

"Toppings", another main attraction of yogurt, ranged from crushed candybars to fresh fruit. One can put almost anything on yogurt.

Jennifer Galus explained, "Toppings are the best! My favorite are the little colored sprinkles."

Jennifer Kessleman added, "Nothing beats strawberries!"

The most highly favored flavors were fruity flavors such as peach or strawberry. Susan Round stated, "I like mostly all kinds of yogurt, but the kinds made with fresh fruit are the most refreshing." Others preferred unusual treats like White Chocolate Macadamia or chocolate mint.

For something made out of fermented culture, it sure does taste great!

Spoken

Joyce-

How's it going? I'm glad I had the opportunity to be in another one of your classes this year. After Marilyn's crazy Biology class last year. You're a very sweet person. Hope you have a blast next year as a senior! Best wishes in all you do!

Records 2-8 season

By Frank Paulson

The Spartan's had the same head coach as the past two teams, Pat Mahoney, but something was different this year. The "Mighty Spartans" struggled through a 2-8 season. So, what happened?

"We started out strong and then fizzled out after the Orange game," said Brian Maguire.

"The team never really had it all together," stated Tom Kelly.

"The team as a whole had a bad attitude," replied Dave Marsh. The Spartan's coaching staff for 1986 was uncertain until "hell week." Due to the fact that Mark McMahon went to Orange High and Steve "Flash" Walker left VPHS. The only thing for certain was that Mr. Pat Mahoney would be the head coach. It turned out that Mr. Pat Mahoney and Mr. Jim Cruikshank were the only returning coaches. We did, however, acquire some good assistants, Mr. Brent Bailey, Mr. Ron Thrash, Mr. Andy Hass, and Mr. Michael Bean.

Although the Spartans suffered a disappointing season, it did have bright spots. With close games against Katella and Brea, the Spartans rose to the occasion and put the games away. Also, Coach Bailey could brighten up just about anyone's day with his jokes and sarcasm.

Coach Mahoney summed the season perfectly by saying "Sometimes you need a season like this one to show you what it takes to win. You've got to pay the price."

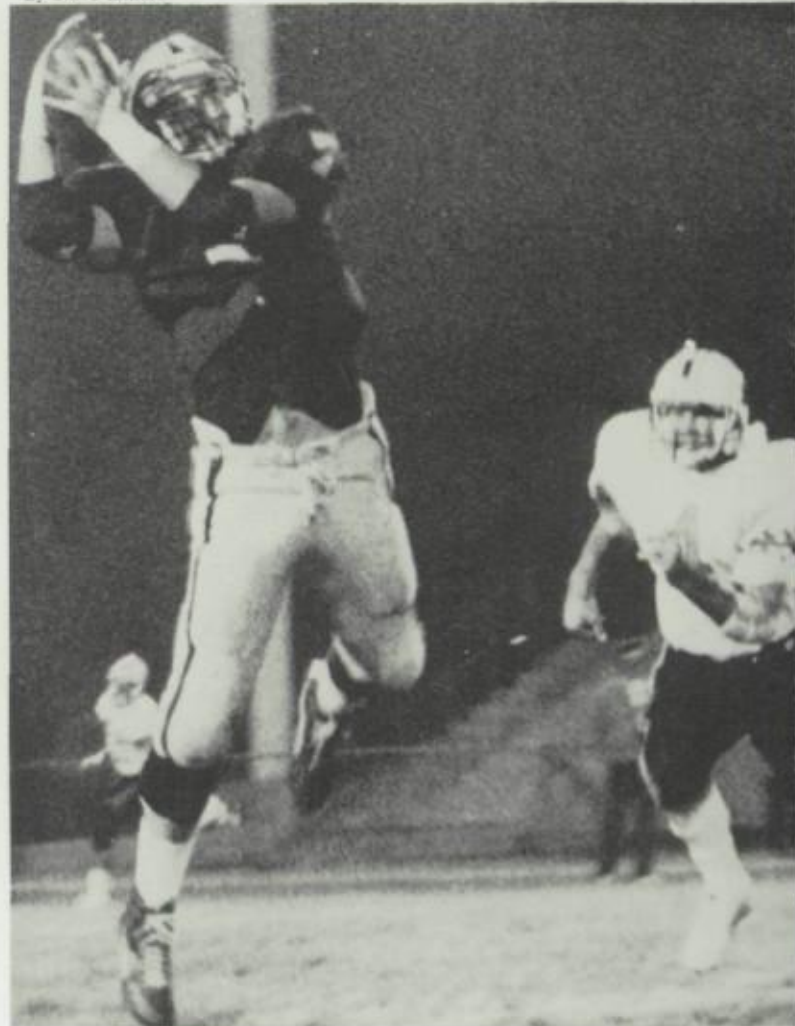

by Steve Allred

Spartan football rolls into the season with a kick off by Chad Smolanovich. Jake Alvarez, Lance Rabun, Eric Ebell, and the rest of the special team moved down the field quickly, keeping the ball on the 22.

During a home game against Brea, Scott Creagon completes a spectacular catch to score, giving VPHS a 14-0 lead at halftime.

John Armstrong, Mark Fishburn, Doug Byrnes, and Dave Lawhon block off Brea's defense as John Genova finds an open space to slip through. This play gave the Spartans a first down, which helped them win the game.

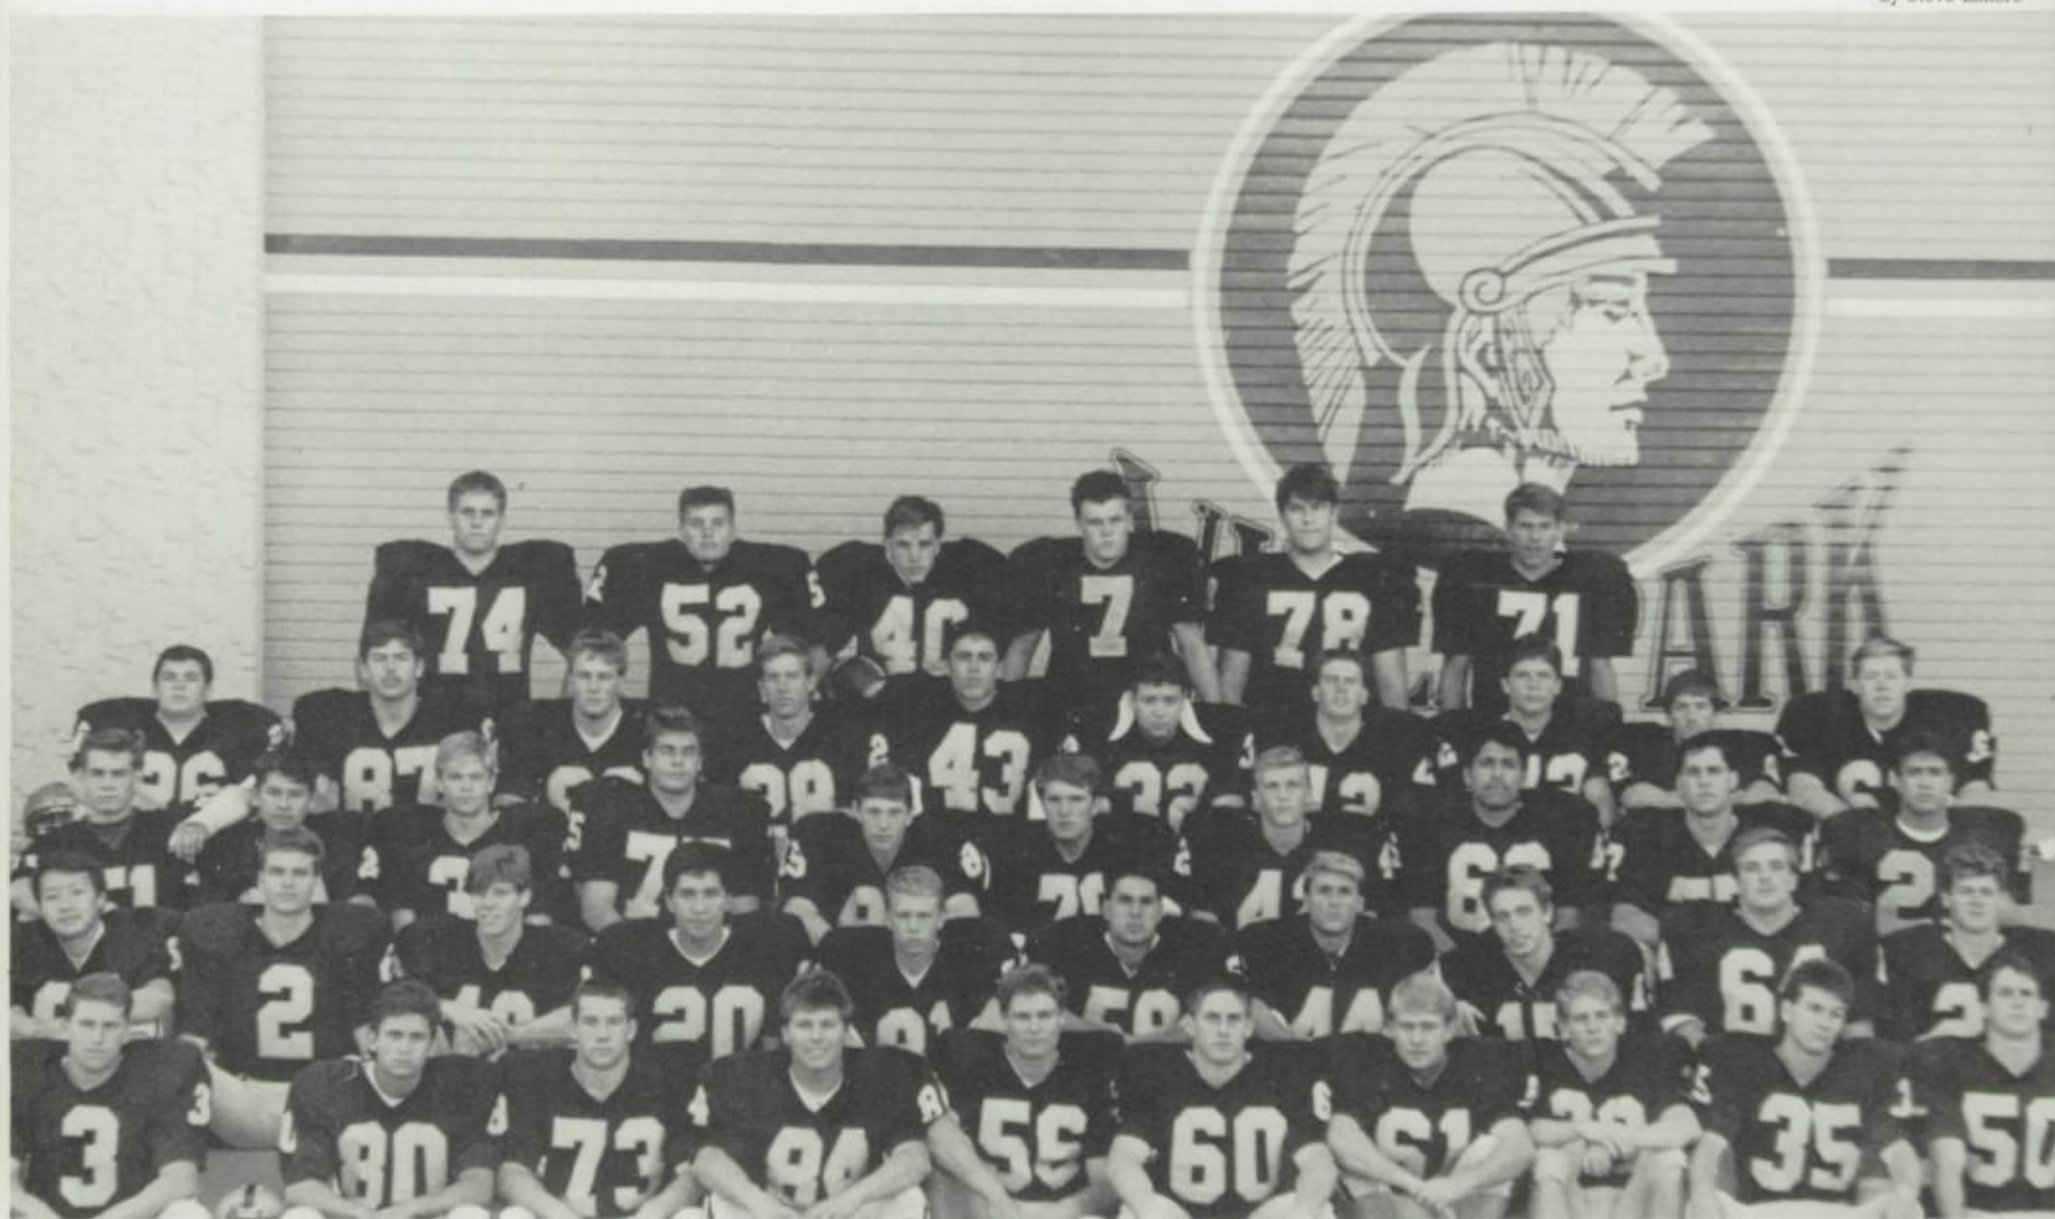

Juniors Eric Ebell and Chris Thompson wait on the sideline for their chance to contribute to the game against Irvine. This year, there were fifteen under classman on the varsity team.

Ryan Hayes kicks an extra point attempt, to give the Spartans a 28-21 lead over Kattella, as Jake Alvarez tees the ball. In this game, Ryan went 5 for 5.

In a 4th and 1 situation, Rob Davey hands off to Tony Inga, as Merrit Swope and Chad Smolanovich block off a Santa Ana rusher. This play set up the Spartans for one of the two touchdowns.

Marsh, "All League"

By Frank Paulson

Although the VPHS varsity football team had a 2-8 record this year, they did not fail to show the fans some great talent. One remarkable athlete who contributed to this was Dave Marsh, #40, who played wingback and linebacker.

Dave finished the season with 275 yards, 19 receptions, and two touchdowns as a wingback, and 38 lead tackles and 18 assists as a linebacker. With such a record, Marsh made first team "All League." He also has received letters of interest from UCLA, Washington State, Oregon State, and many other schools.

When asked about this year's flaws, Dave responded, "We didn't do too good because of a lot of talented, but inexperienced players." The team this year had 15 underclassmen. Dave believes that VPHS could do much better next year if "all players work hard all season."

This was Dave's fourth year playing football and he plays it because he thinks, "one can get all aggression out legally and have great moments to think about in the future like when I dove for a pass in the game against Santa Ana to score."

Chris Bell struggles to make yardage for first down, while a Pacifica player tackles him. He got the first down for VPHS.

Sophomores get

a taste of high school football finish season with 5-5 record.

By Scott Randall

"Playing sophomore football for Villa Park started off my school year with a lot of excitement. Football with Dog and Moody was an experience for everyone on the team. They made football more fun than work.

Although we did our share of conditioning, we didn't have all that bad a season.

We came out 5-5. We hoped to do better, but football isn't just winning, it's having fun and enjoying yourself. Of course, it's always a lot more fun to win.

Many of my best friends played football like John Priem, Mike Noble, Brian Stefani, Chris Deuchar, and Todd Bycott. I can remember one game when John Priem and I smashed the opponents' running back for a loss of 12 yards. I can still remember the guy lying on his back gasping for air. It was one of John's and my best hits.

I'm looking forward to playing for Villa Park my junior and senior year also. I hope to go to the C.I.F. finals."

by Steve Allred

Rich Gabel, Scott Stovall, Colin Hartwig, and Chip Smith attempt to block a field goal to keep the game against Irvine in reach for a comeback.

Struggling to stay on top, Varsity Water Polo . . .

SPLASHED INTO C.I.F.!!

By Deanna De la Riva and Trayce Thomas

Under the supervision of head coach Jeff Erlich and assistant coach John Kulisch, the Varsity water polo team finished with a (20-6) record.

The players agreed that the most challenging game was against Foothill in Spartan waters. The teams kept the score close throughout the entire game, forcing it into overtime and then into a "Sudden Death".

The Spartans finally won, 5-4. The winning goal, scored by K.C. Nowak, put VPHS in first place with no losses in the Century League.

Sean Roby exclaimed, "Winning the league championships was really a great way to end my three years here."

K.C. Nowak, Trevor Kirschner, and Robert "Frak-Attack" Frackelton made the All Century League First Team. Two Spartans were selected for the second team, Aaron Malo and Greg Larson. Sean Roby received "Honorable Mention", and Craig Ackley, "Player of the Year."

Craig Ackley explained, "There was no way we could've done so well if we didn't have such great coaches. We really wanted to go all the way, and teamwork helped us do it."

Under the supervision of Coach Steve Coates, the Sophomore Water Polo Team had a very successful season. In addition to being El Toro and Canyon Tournament Champions, they also managed to take 2nd place in Century League.

"I think we did so well because throughout the season we really came together as a team, and we showed a lot of spirit and teamwork," explained Chad Barker.

Many of the players agreed that their most exciting game was against Mission Viejo. Being the final game of the season, the team was really "psyched" to win.

Many students attended this game along with the band and cheerleaders. Mission Viejo put up a hard fight, but the team managed to pull out a "sudden death" 8-7, with both tying and winning goals scored by Chad Barker.

The most depressing game the sophomores played was against Foothill. After a hard fought battle, VPHS lost, 4-10 which put them in 2nd place behind Foothill.

The guys were upset, but their spirits never lowered. They stuck together as a team and maintained their high performance. Captain Kirk Kuli summed it up, "We are a unified force."

Basketball Improves Record

By Diana Christensen

"We will play hard, smart, and together and try to be consistently competitive. If we do the record will take care of itself," stated Coach Palminteri at the beginning of the season.

This brand new coach to VPHS did improve their record. "He was interested in us as people not just basketball players," said Brian Gorgen.

There were two returning varsity players, Chris Storck and Tom Bray. For his hard work and talent Chris Storck received the most valuable player.

"We had a lot of close games. It's too bad we didn't win more of them, but we still had fun," commented Matt Thurston.

Next year Steve Waldrip and Roger Branstine will return in an attempt to improve their record.

By Edwin Shakhverdian

"One, two, three ... Swoosh!" shouted the crowd as Geoff VanHaeren scored a seventeen footer against Katella. It seemed like the crowd was behind the team all the way, even though they were trailing by six points.

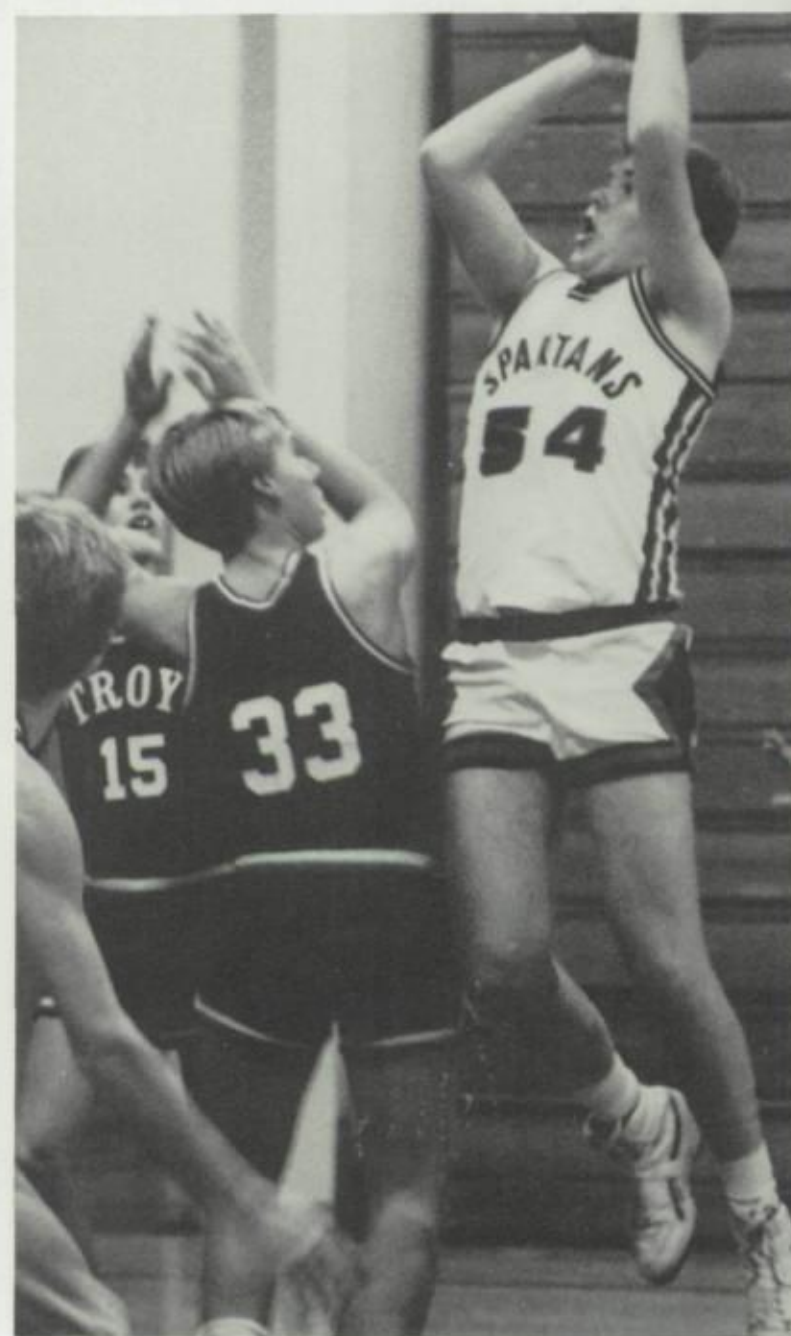

Such actions by the Spartan fans helped the teams as the "going got tough." According to James Kusuda, "In some cases the fans made all the difference."

Both sophomore basketball teams gave their loyal fans an interesting season. Although they were unable to win all their games, they finished with a record of 11-19 for varsity and 5-15 for JV. Geoff stated, "We came so close to winning the league, but placed third."

"As a regular attender of the sophomore games, I was impressed by the player's performance," says Leonard Lee. It was hard not to recognize all that effort on the court. Even the players were confident of their performance. Ken Adkinson agrees, "We had an 'awesome' team and we could have won the league if we had beat Canyon at the last game of the season!"

Phil Johnson slides through the Warriors defense to give the Spartans a six point third quarter lead.

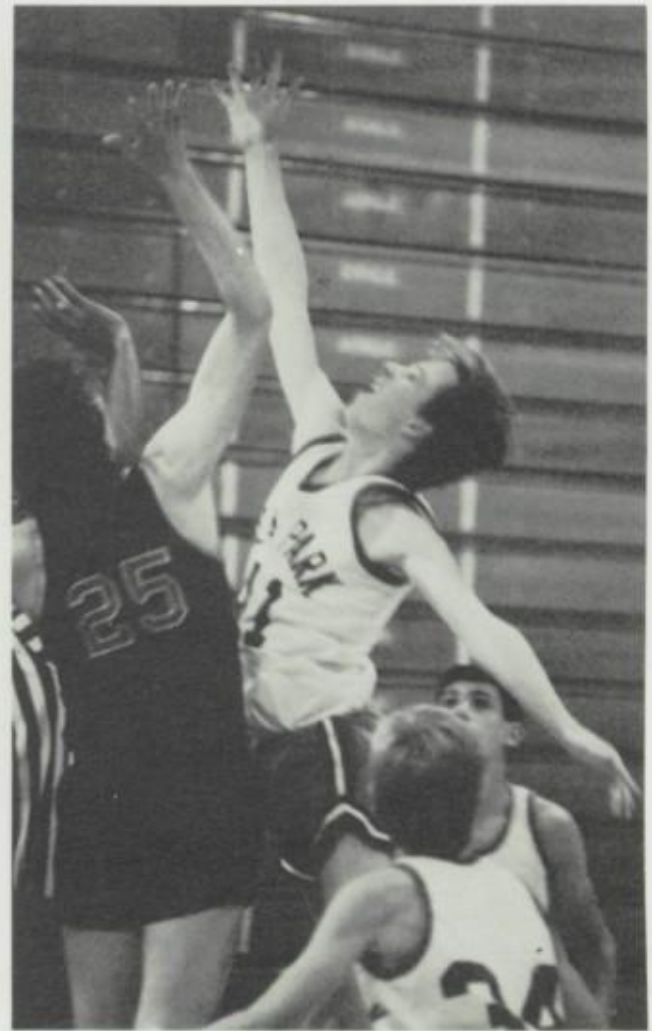

Geoff VanHaeren, going for two points, is confronted by a Warrior who knocks out the ball from his hands. Matt Reekstin waits to recover the ball.

The score was tied at 35 all. S.A. Valley had caught up with leading VPHS. With just a few seconds left on the clock. VP fouled, giving S.A. Valley the opportunity to take the lead.

Two free throws later, S.A. Valley took the lead and the game, 42-38.

"Even though we lost, it was an exciting game," explained Karen Mohrhoff. "The crowd supported us and kept our morale up, and we all hit our shots."

The Girls Varsity Basketball team played many close games, ending the season in third place, tied with Canyon.

Coach Steve Tarabilda said, "We had a very good season, even though the record didn't show it. We were in every game. The scores were close."

Deana Kurose agreed. "We worked hard and had a fun season, even though we didn't do as well as we hoped to."

Ex-Player Coaches Team

Former varsity player Cheryl Tomlinson coached the J.V. Girls Basketball team to a record of 6-4.

Their first game against Foothill was a tough struggle. The team started with 9 players in the season, but during this game only 7 suited up. Foothill had a large team of 22. In the exciting game the score "bounced" back and forth, VPHS went ahead and then Foothill. It was close until the end when Foothill won 40-36.

"The highlight of the season to me, was when I finally got to use my knee pads, and was team captain for the last game against Canyon," stated Tonia Elliott.

Team leadership was provided by Sophomore Jodi Ross, who led a much improved Junior Varsity squad. Two players led the J.V. team in scoring, Ronda Strawn, and Deanna Hampton.

"The J.V. team will be able to fill the shoes of the graduating seniors successfully," commented Coach Tarabilda.

Team Well Balanced

By Chris Norman

As the ball rhythmically hit the pavement and occasional groans arose from frustrated players, Coach Sherry Smith smiled while she gave encouragement to her team. "I think we have a real good shot at showing up in C.I.F.," she positively stated, "We've been working real hard together."

The rest of the team reflected her attitude and goals. "We're going to show the other tennis teams in the league that we're a dominant power," Brandon Garr, a varsity doubles player, said. In fact, the varsity and J.V. teams started the season beating two tough teams, Santiago and Ser-vite.

A new twist was the new coach, Sherry Smith. "It was a little different, at first, having a woman coach. But after getting used to it, I realized she's great for the team," stated Todd Grant.

"This is my first year coaching a boys team," Sherry Smith said, "But it's interesting and fun. Guys seem to be more intense than girls."

Besides having a new coach the team developed a new attitude. Team members said the team was more experienced, had more potential and were stronger. Brent Spalding said, "We have greater depth."

Two points for the girls tennis team, were the difference between second and fourth place.

Erin Meyer said, "We all had to stick together and work even harder, because of the adjustments we made with the new varsity coach, Mr. Ewing. It was disappointing because when the new varsity team lost, we lost by such small margins. We lost both matches against Canyon by two points.

It was just so disappointing because when we lost the second game to Canyon we gave up our chance to place third in the league.

I think we had quite a bit of talent but we did not use it to our full potential. Team unity plays an important role in building a strong team."

The girls varsity team ended the season, in fourth place. The two outstanding singles players were Kim Johanson and Ana Ahn. Erin Meyer and Laura Gates played number one doubles.

"The junior varsity team did excellently this season, and we worked well with our new coach, Mrs. McCartney!"

Erin Meyer exclaimed, "This year made us a stronger team, and I am looking forward to next year!"

Teams Excell

By Steve Elmore

Boys Cross Country surprised everyone by winning the league season, with only four returning Varsity runners. "The season went very well! Even though we did not win a CIF title, we still won league, stated Varsity runner Steve Allred.

The Varsity team, lead by Dave Longyear with a personal best of 14:59, was tough and competitive in regular season as well as in Invitationals.

Winning the Century League title for the 4th consecutive time made Coach White happy again. "The team held together and ran well even though many people underestimated them," he said. VPHS will lose many top runners due to graduation.

The JV's finished Century League runner-up. Throughout the tough season many runners suffered injuries to their legs, with pulled muscles or sprains. At invitationals the J.V. team held together, placing high in rankings against other schools. Over all the J.V. team knew what was to be expected of them.

The Sophomore team was serious about running. Sophomore runner Phil Madison was the teams leading runner. Madison ran his best time of 17:11 at the Canyon/Valley Dual meet.

"It will be a rebuilding year, but with freshman coming in, it will be getting better and better," stated Coach White.

Promising Future

By Steven Allred

A disappointing season can make for a great future. The girls Varsity Cross Country team, headed by Coach Brunt, finished the season sixth in Century League Finals and sixth overall, but has the potential for a brilliant future.

The team, consisting of one sophomore, three juniors, and two seniors, worked hard, but could not overcome the odds. Sophomore Karen Longyear, believed that a cause of their season's record was "our lack of experience that Canyon's veteran runners had."

Contributing to next year's team will be returning Karen Longyear. Her season was a definite success, winning the title of League Champion. Her final time was 18:36. She attributes her success to "the coaching expertise of Coach White and the inspiration of her older brother David."

Another good prospect for the upcoming Varsity Team is Mater Dei transfer Laura Doering. Along with talent, she brings a lifetime best of 17:59 for three miles. Because of the transfer she had to red shirt this season. To improve their running ability this season, both girls trained under Boys' Cross Country coach Dave White.

Backing up the Varsity team were the unsung runners of the Junior Varsity Team. Though not in the limelight as much, they still trained hard in case one of the seven Varsity members was injured or became sick.

Coach Brunt summed up the season: "We can surprise a lot of people next year!"

At the meet against Santa Ana Valley and Canyon, Katie Madison and Jode Elsberry work together to overtake a Canyon runner.

Successful Season

By Jeff Randall

For the past few years VPHS soccer has been in a slump. After a 6-4-4 season in 1985-86 the 86-87 VPHS soccer team resumed their CIF tradition under the coaching of Brian Halliday. "We're going to win things this year," commanded Halliday at the beginning of the season, and through hard work and determination the Spartans did their share of winning, finishing with a 15-4-4 record. Although the team did well, most players felt they should have done even better. After goalie Brian Fischer, recruited by UCLA, was in a car accident, the team suffered a psychological let down, but back-up goalie David Wetzler filled in fine for the Spartans. The team had a successful, exciting year. VPHS's winning record included wins over 7th ranked teams Foothill, and Sea View league champions, Newport Harbor High. By playing high caliber opponents VPHS gained a tough reputation and a 6th place 4-a CIF ranking. Not bad for a 3-A school. In CIF the Spartans faced a 4th ranked Edison in first round CIF play. The Spartans soundly defeated them 2-1. The second round of play however was not as successful. The Spartans lost 4-3 in a shootout to Long Beach Wilson.

They Are Not Deflated!

By Audrey Osumi

The girls' Soccer season was an experience in frustration and disappointment. Hopes for an outstanding year grew as the season began, and the realization that the talent was better than average excited everyone.

Shortly after beginning the practice season, injuries began. One after another, key players were lost, and seldom were the starting eleven able to play at 100%.

A team with outstanding talent and potential saw itself decimated. "At one time, we had all of our starting defensive backs out with injuries," commented Coach Dominick Corradino. "Under those conditions, it was very difficult to maintain morale or a high level."

It was also characteristic of this team to play in bad luck. Over a 20 game season, the VPHS Girls' Soccer team was beaten by more than one goal only four times.

"All of the girls on the team got along really well and it showed in the way we played," stated Shannon Armstrong.

Denise Iger is optimistic. "Next year the team will be strong again."

There were only four seniors on this year's team. Having starters returning at every position, bolstered by a strong group of J.V. players has already created excitement.

Coach Corradino said, "I can't wait. It could be a very interesting season."

Balance Beam

By Craig Hofstatter

"The Gymnastics team hopes to go far. We should do better this year than in the past. We have some really good gymnasts and a great coach," commented junior, Heather Elsberry.

Of the four events; floor exercises, bars, balance beam, and vault, balance beam was the strongest. "I was surprised to see us excell in that area," commented coach Celeste Hammil. Another place where VPHS did well was in the floor exercises. Some of the girls worked alone, but many of them had help from their coach in choreographing their floor routines.

The girls are required to do tumblers, a series of leaps, level changes, and contractions, (body waves). They were judged on how the routines were executed and the amount of difficulty involved — at least four medium difficulty moves, three superior moves and one high superior. "A constant flow and harmony with the music are the hardest things to do," commented senior, Debi Rink.

"The girls hope to come in somewhere around third place this year, and I'm sure we should have at least two of them go on to CIF," said Coach Hammil.

Joke Played

By Jim Simon

The VPHS golf team was made-up of six varsity players, four junior varsity players, and one coach. They practiced and hosted other schools at Green River Golf Club in Corona. They traveled as far as Fountain Valley to challenge other schools.

One varsity member, Jens Lerno, recalled a funny incident toward the beginning of the season. "My group had finished and we were sitting around the ninth green when Mr. Bailey and guest coach, Pat Mahoney, were on the tee. This hole was special because it was a 170 yard par three with the green about thirty feet higher than the tee. This meant that when the players were on the tee, they could only see the top half of the flagstick.

Mahoney, hit his first shot out of bounds and was penalized two strokes. His next shot was short and below the green. His last shot was terrific ending up two feet from the hole.

Seeing this, Jim Simon crawled on his hands and knees, out of Mahoney's view, and dropped the ball in the hole.

When Mahoney arrived on the green, he was thrilled to see that he made a 'hole in one.' He said, "If I hadn't made this shot, my day would have been ruined!"

For several days Mahoney was estatic about his accomplishment, until he found out the truth. As a result, the next day he gave his students a two page closed-book essay test."

Early To Rise

By Diana
Christensen

Every day Monday through Friday the swimming team got up early and arrived at school by 6 AM ready to swim. They stayed after school too.

"It's really hard to get out of a warm bed in the morning, but if I achieve my goals, it's worth it," said Greg Larson.

Coach Jeff Ehrlich planned for the swimmers to practice hard. His favorite quote was, "Morning workout builds character. If I can leave my house at 4:30 AM and be here on time so can you."

"He's a great coach as shown by his past record," stated Robert Frackleton. "He's a good motivator, and knows a lot about swimming."

Greg Larson, a junior, led the team in many events and qualified for Junior Nationals, competing against the top swimmers in the country.

In the 100 butterfly Greg Larson swam 53:25. Greg holds the school record in this event with a 52:82.

Look to Improve

By Diana Christensen

With their many swimmers, the Junior Varsity swim team had an excellent season.

"The team is dedicated and always improving their times," said Coach Johnson.

"Swimming takes self-motivation because there aren't professional teams to be on after high school or college," said Grant Bennett. "It makes me realize there are other things in life just as important as sports."

Greg McFadden stated, "Swimming is an individual sport. We set goals for ourselves. We also got a tan and stayed in shape for water polo."

Coaches Ehrlich and Johnson coach Junior Varsity and Varsity. That way both teams got all of the benefits.

It was Wednesday March 25. The girls were ready to face Santa Ana. The JV team got off to a bad start when Erin Woolery DQed in the medley relay. She redeemed herself, however, by winning the 50 yd. freestyle and 50 yd. backstroke. The varsity had a great start with an excellent effort by the medley relay team.

The girls varsity had great efforts by Shauna Scollick, Pam McSherry, Shannon Armstrong, & Debbie Kadonada. They only gave up one first place through the whole meet.

The girls practiced hard, swimming about 5000 yds. a day. "Everyone figured it would be kinda easy," stated Shannon Armstrong.

During the Santa Ana swim meet, Allison Cutler swims the 50 yard backstroke. Allison went on to win the race for VPHS.

Erin Barnette practices the breast stroke.

Practicing for their next meet, Pam McSherry warms up with a couple hundred yards of the backstroke. Pam raced in the Varsity 200 yard freestyle and the 100 yard butterfly.

WRESTLERS Motto was "Win, Pin or Die!"

By Ken Robinson

After losing in the 1987 C.I.F. Master's Meet, I was left with a deep feeling that knawed out my stomach and hung in my brain. I can't explain what that feeling was, but it made me look back on my 3 years of wrestling at Villa Park where I wrestled in close to 100 high school matches. And in all those matches there are a few that stand out.

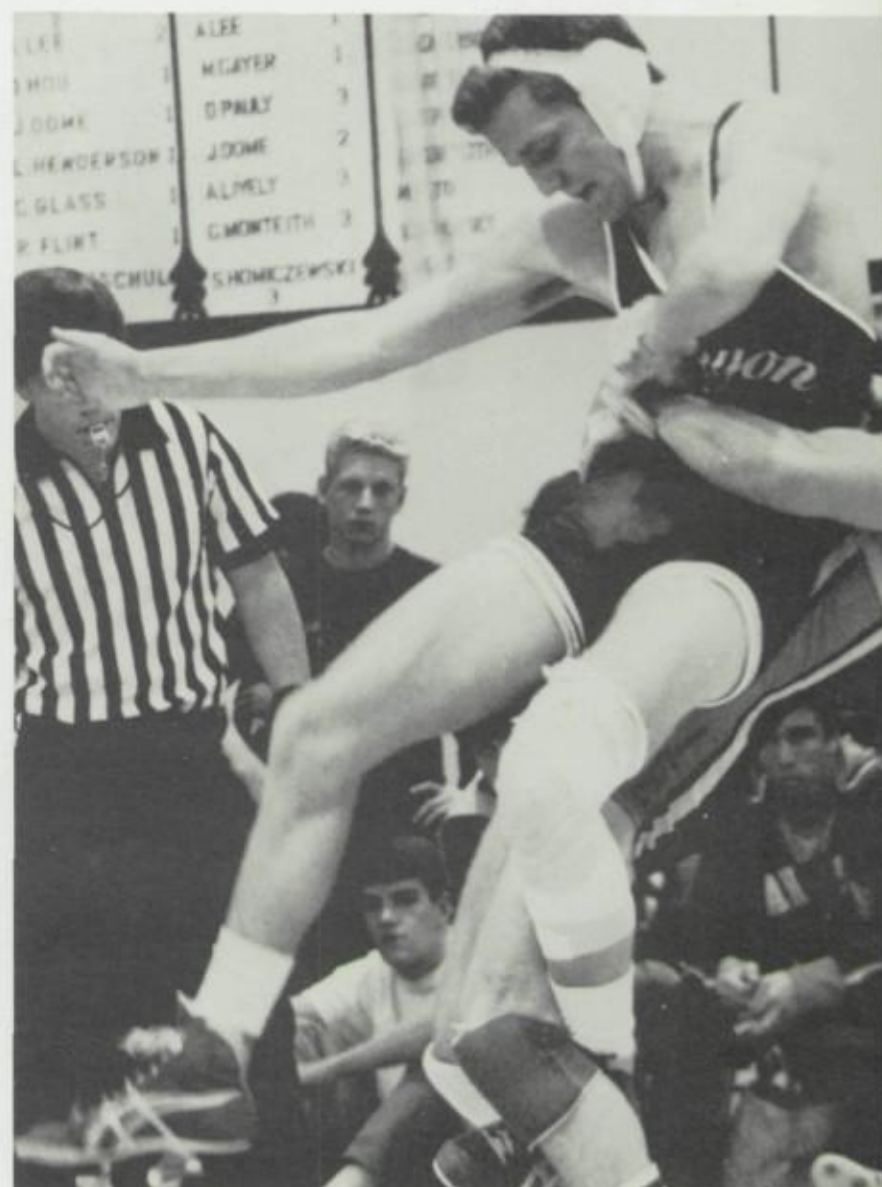

I remember the first time I ever made it to the finals of a tournament. I lost, but I'll never forget. I had a very successful year, I thought, as a sophomore. I came up from Peralto Jr. High to wrestle under a superb coach, Brent Bailey. It was very exciting to be a sophomore wrestling on a team that was ranked 7th in the county. I was one of the last of the "Bailey Kids."

As a Senior, I managed to have a good season under the direction of a new Head Coach, Mike Morrison. It was tough for all the guys to stay out and wrestle considering the potential that was lost. There were several people who could have made Villa Park a State Contender, but through one way or another did not wrestle.

The same thing happened to the team in this past wrestling season. The team was young and inexperienced with only 3 seniors, Frank Paulson, Brian Maguire, and I stabilizing it. Head Coach Morrison, however, pulled this team of "young'uns" together to make a very stable team.

Now that I am a senior, I'm glad to have been a part of V.P. wrestling. Always remember, "1, 2, 3 V.P. Pins".

This wrestling season wasn't too bad. Actually, it was pretty good, with only two losses in the year.

The next few seasons should prove to be very good if the team buckles down and the newly formed booster club gets off to a good start.

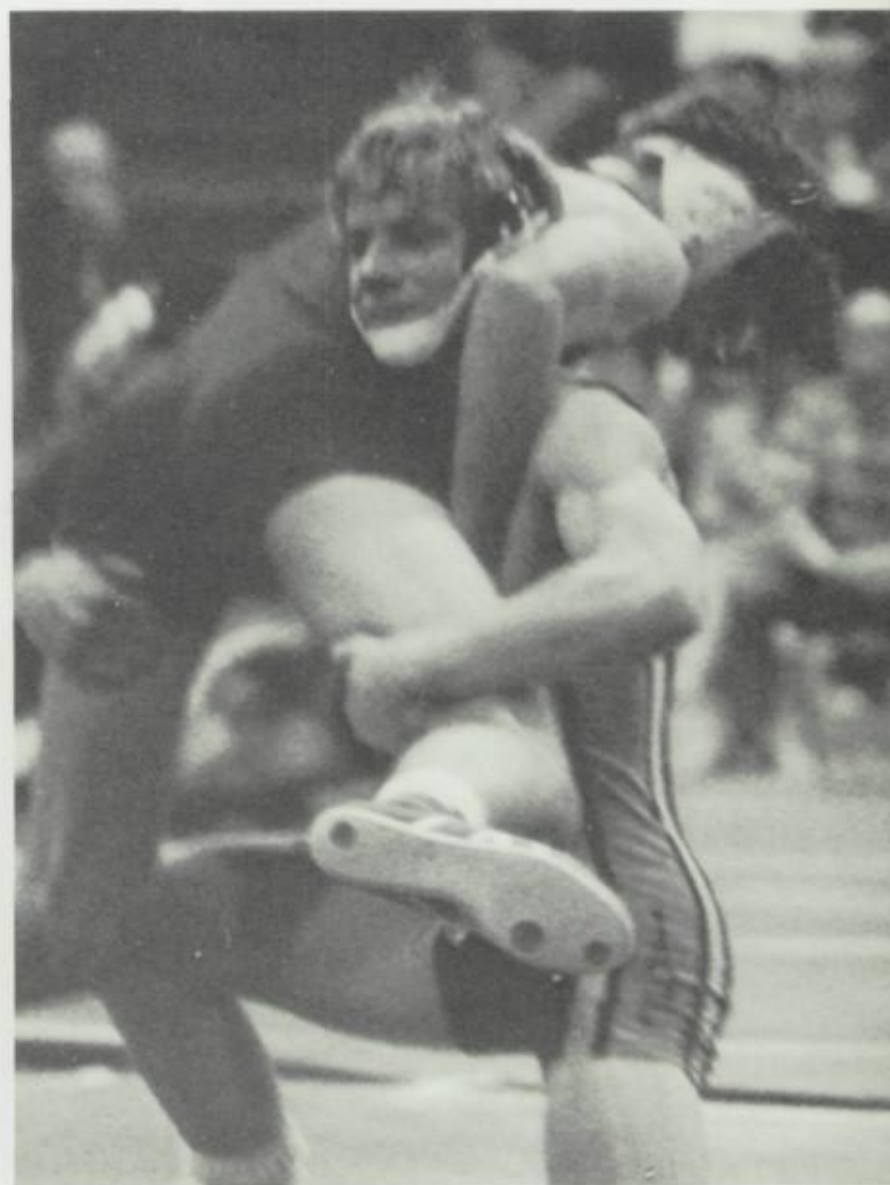

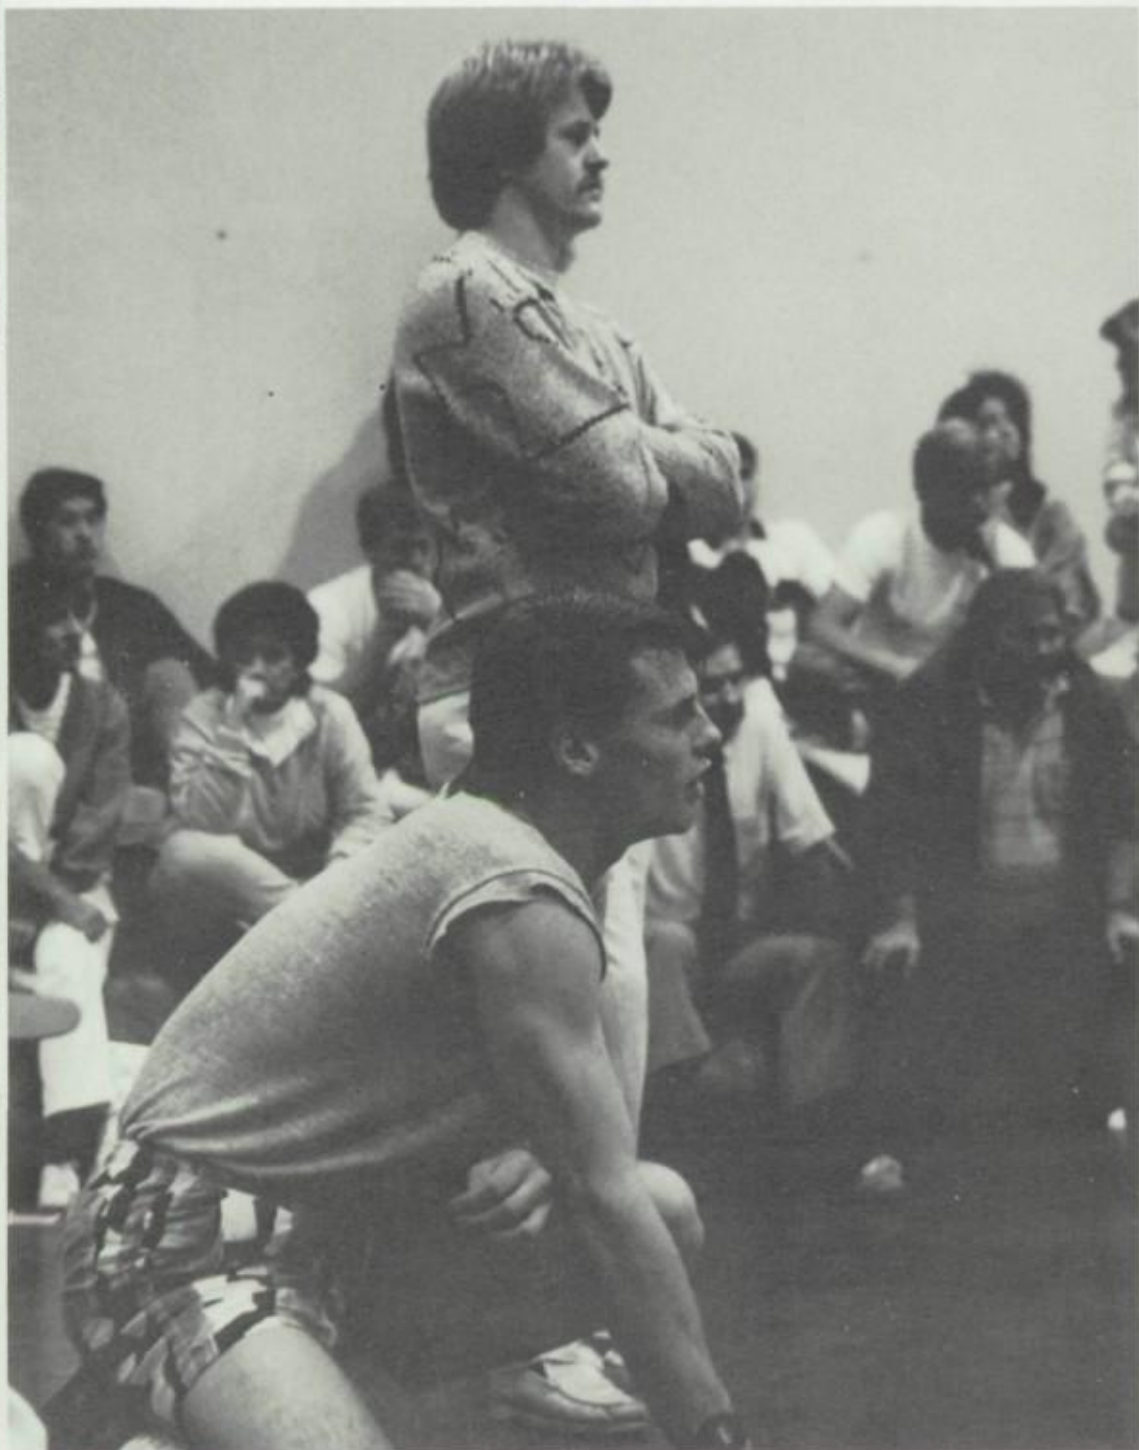

Sophomore wrestlers like, Brian Fortenbaugh, league champ, Matt Deluca, Jim Parimba, John Milis, Ty Helzer, and Bob Piper, also a League placer, will help the team tremendously.

Juniors, Marty Strayer and Tim McNulty will also be a big asset. Even though they're young, it would be a good bet that they will give Canyon a run for its money in the future.

TEAM CHARACTER

By Genalyn Talavera

The turning point of the season was probably the league game against Santa Ana Valley.

VPHS came in with the record of 0-3, while Valley was 2-0. That had no factor because the attitude of the varsity was "Play hard and win." And that's just what they did.

The exciting game lasted from 3:15 to about 7:00, and every inning was more exciting than the one before. Santa Ana Valley truly tested VPHS's endurance.

By the end of the 7th inning Valley tied up the game 5-5. Jerry Aschoff, junior was called in to relieve Tom Kelly the starting pitcher. Aschoff, under pressure, pitched exceptionally well. In fact, he was one of the key factors in changing the game to VPHS's advantage. In the seventh innings Valley, led 7-5. Tony Inga, third baseman, was up to bat and drove in two Villa Park players to score and tie the game, again, to 7-7. The entire Spartan team was "pumped up," and full of confidence!

In the end, the final score was 10-7, our favor. Their determination, positive attitude, and team spirit won them that game!

"Although he worked us hard, it really paid off," smiled Jerry Aschoff, varsity pitcher.

"We will go a long ways with good players that keep positive attitudes," said Ochoa in a positive voice.

Playing on the varsity baseball team was an experience. Being one of only two sophomores on varsity was a challenge. I believed being selected on varsity for my first year in high school motivated me to work harder. It gave me a chance to prove I can play baseball just like the rest of the players.

I learned a lot from my teammates, like Jason Wilkerson, senior, who I played beside in outfield. And also, Coach Ochoa who drilled discipline through hours and hours of strenuous practice. I hope our baseball season does well and I look forward to playing on varsity my next two years!

The sophomore coaches Mr. Mike Byrne (head coach) and Mr. Steve Segovia (assistant coach) were graduates of VPHS. Although neither of them had coaching background both have had experience in baseball. Byrne was all league second baseman at VPHS as well as at Cypress College. Segovia was the player of the year in 1981 when he attended VPHS.

During pre-season the team was undefeated 7-0. "Our team was really good, we worked well together," commented Danny Alleman, shortstop.

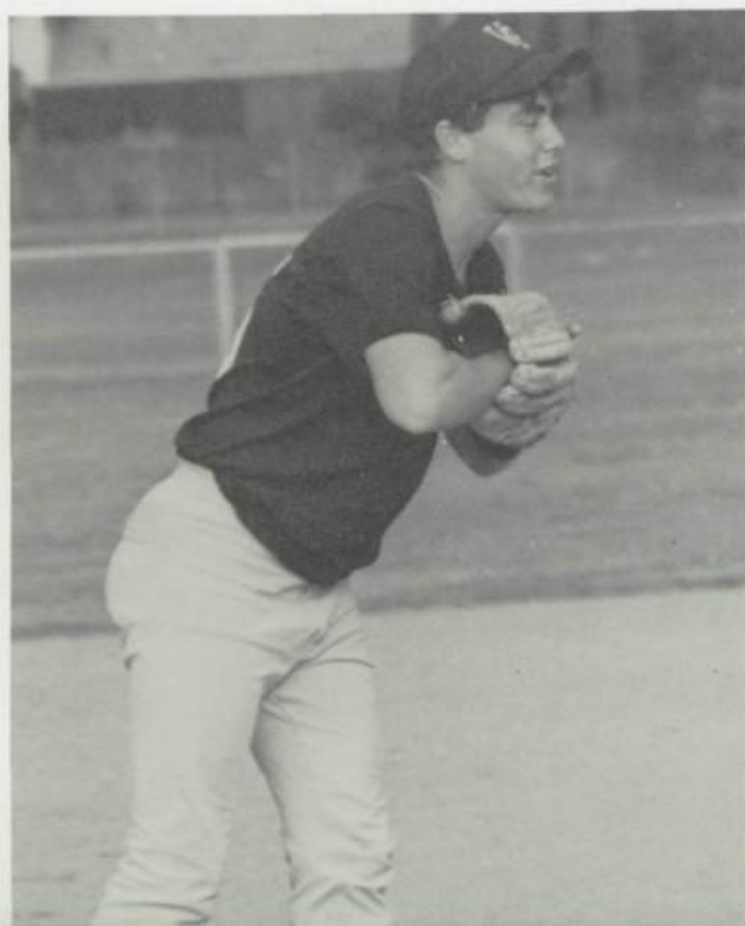

It was the first year for Mr. Dennis Moody to coach the junior varsity. "It was less stressful to coach JV's because they know what they're supposed to be doing," stated Moody. But if they slack off he assigns a "Moody Marathon" consisting of 200 yard bear crawls, a half mile run and two trips of tail blazers. These were punishments for mental errors such as letting the ball go past or not paying attention during games. The JV's were confident about their performance and ability as a whole.

If anyone had seen The Bad News Bears, they will remember how the team started off badly but ended up winning. That was how the J.V. softball team described themselves.

"We play like The Bad News Bears, even at practices, which were strange," commented Audrey Jensen, 1st baseman. If they missed a grounder hit to them they would miss the next one too.

"If I got a ball thrown to me and I missed it, Audrey usually caught it for me. We always dropped the ball when we weren't supposed to," quoted Laura Bernhard, catcher.

It also seemed as if someone was always getting hurt. "One time a line drive hit me in the leg" remembered Audrey Jensen. Jokingly, Laura Bernhard said "I haven't really gotten hurt but, do you know how hard it is to throw the ball with acrylic nails?"

Like The Bad News Bears, the J.V. team hoped to end the season by coming out on top.

"They are a fun group to work with. They find ways of entertaining themselves," said coach Cheryl Tomlinson.

Practicing all summer and working hard certainly paid off for the girls varsity volleyball team. Even before league games started, Volleyball was in full swing.

At the Valencia Tournament eight teams participated and VPHS placed first.

With a record of 11 and 5 the Varsity placed third in the league and went as far as second round CIF. This was the first time the girls volleyball team had advanced to post-season play. "The unity of the team and practice are what helped us to do well," said Anne Salzman. "But even with all the practice we still had fun," added Tiffany Hamilton.

Suzi Barnett, making first team All League, also won the MVP award for All League. For the second All League Team. Shannon Armstrong and Nicole Genova were selected.

Mrs. Sherry Smith coached the Junior Varsity Team. "We had a good season using our new talent and our returning players all pulling together," Mrs. Smith commented. With a record of 12 and 3 the J.V. team was successful.

Numerous Problems

*Limit girls
Track team success*

By Frank Paulson

Unlike the boys track team, the girls team struggled. Coach Russ Murphy explained why this was so.

Cerro Villa Junior High School, which feeds students to V.P.H.S., had a terrible girls track team. Also, there were no girls youth running groups for children as in most other areas or as the boys do. Another reason was that softball is a very popular sport with girls and occurs at the same time as track. Finally, the girls had only 16 members on the team (two who were ineligible) compared with the boys team, which had over 80 members.

"We just didn't have enough girls on the team to be competitive," stated Murphy.

There were a few bright spots on the team, however. Sophomores Karen Longyear, an excellent distance runner, and Michelle Paproski who excelled in the shot put and disc, look to be very competitive in the future. Also, Coach Murphy always makes the sport fun with his humorous jokes and sarcasm.

"You never know what to expect when 'Dog' Murphy is your coach. He's an experience in himself," stated a 3 year varsity runner, Susan Round.

Senior Beth Stuart anchors the 440 relay. Beth was one of VPHS's best sprinters.

Chez Smith clears the last hurdle and sprints to the finish line. This was the first year she had run this event.

"Here comes Valley taking their team lap, hoo-tin' and clapping. Wow, they look pumped up!"

"So what. Pass the suntan oil."

VPHS track team ... Quite a bit out of the ordinary. But hey, what's wrong with bandana's, lounge chairs, sun glasses, beach blankets, and suntan oil? Nothing, as long as a victory is always there.

If someone went to a VPHS track meet, they usually found the leisure at the sporting event surprising. One section resembled a wrestling ring, where Bob Piper and Scott Johnson team up on John "Hulk Hogan" Armstrong. It didn't matter that the high jump was just swept, that was supposed to happen.

Ah ... In the distance the Boc Choy Headquarters, consisted of a Bacardi and Coke sun-umbrella. Guys were dressed in blue, black, and silver track uniforms complete with one hot-pink sock, worn on the left foot.

"Hey, what's the pink sock for?"

"The hell of it. It's just a tradition."

This tradition started three years ago, and has been passed on to many active members.

Thank God the sun was out. The Pole Vaulters couldn't handle being pale another day. Those crazy Irish men just kept piling on that Hawaiian Tropic. Everyone seemed to be having a great time, but wasn't this supposed to be serious? Well, one must not forget, this is a VPHS track meet, where fun is fun, and winning just comes naturally.

Ken Domer and Jeff Hoey bound over the last hurdle heading for the finish. This event scored 8 points for VPHS over Newport Harbor.

VPHS Track — 52 WINS AND COUNTING

Nick Frac and Rob Barnett cross the finish line in a close one two race for the J.V. team.

By Brian Maguire

The track team has successfully continued a winning streak over the past five years with no losses and five Century League titles.

This year wasn't any different from previous years, and again, the pride showed thorough. Spectacular efforts by Ken Domer, Jeff Hoey, Jeff Randall, Chris Kell, Brian Wilson, Dave Lawhon, and the rest of the Villa Park team proved once again their status and perfection.

According to many people, the 1987 team was not expected to be as exceptional as past years, but those rumors were quickly shut down after the "blow-out" of Dana Hills, also a team with an outstanding (9 year) winning streak.

The VPHS team proved even more convincing with the defeat of Santa Ana, another strong team. It was smooth sailing from there, right up to the sixth Century League Championship.

Senior Brian Maguire gets back for a 12'6" jump. Getting high is what it was all about.

Kevin Sach finishes strong on the last lap of the 880. Sach, a sophomore this year was a strong competitor for the sophomore team.

Rounding the corner Eric Ebell increases his lead on a Newport Harbor sprinter. Eric's time was very impressive on the J.V. level.

Crash landing, Matt Reekstin, finishes an exceptional long jump for the J.V. team.

The people behind the sport...

By Randy Barnes

How would you like to wash 40,000 pairs of socks? Head equipment manager, Jerry Smith does it every year. He is also in charge of the gymnasium.

He is not the only one who works behind the scenes in the athletic department. Others include John Corona, head of grounds and swimming facilities and Linda Edgmen who is in charge of the girls locker room and all P.E. equipment.

Mr. Corona also fixes all the sports machinery such as the pitching machine and the retractable bleachers in the gym.

In addition to these two, Mrs. Edgmen keeps the physical education equipment in order, for students to enjoy.

"Jerry has a great responsibility in taking care of all the equipment, because without him the students could be injured with faulty equipment or we could lose lots of equipment. John Corona is also a great asset to both our athletic departments," Coach Ochoa stated.

"Mrs. Linda Edgmen is a terrific person and good at her job. She keeps all the P.E. equipment in excellent working order for all students to use and enjoy," Mrs. Gardiner stated.

The next time you pick up a racket or ball to play a game; remember the people who make it possible for you to enjoy yourself.

It doesn't have to be in school.

By: Brian Maguire

Students at VPHS have different, sometimes unusual activities.

Apart from the school sponsored things, such as football or baseball, people have their own sports such as hockey, broom ball, water skiing, snow skiing, ballet, surfing, skimboarding, skate boarding, and everything else.

When I first moved to California, I found out about surfing.

Of course I had seen it, and had known people who surfed back in Massachusetts, but it was not nearly as big as it is out here.

Almost everybody surfs, or tries, and everything you see, from shirts to sunglasses, is made by or about surf companies.

The people who surf take it very seriously, as the one and only sport. They live for it, up at 5:30 in the morning, just to catch that perfect wave.

A well known phrase, "We're going to the river," which is well known in California, means people hook up their boats, pack up the kids and vests, and pile into the car, heading for the Colorado River for a weekend of water skiing.

Or, on drier note, they go to the desert. ATC's scatter over the desert, flying over the vast dunes.

One of the unusual activities is ice blocking, when you buy ice find a hill and go "nuts." Everyone enjoys it, "You just get this sudden urge to go 'hairballin' down hill on a twenty five pound block of ice," stated Mike Gray.

Everyone's their own person, and they do their own things, whether they take it seriously or just for fun.

MAD MONEY

By Jami Allen

The question now-a-days is where is all our money disappearing to?

Well, nobody knows exactly, but a number of students at VPHS seem to have an idea.

Most of their money goes for gas for trucks, cars, and scooters. The cost of gasoline never seems to stay the same. At the Texaco on the corner of Taft and Tustin the prices in November were Regular — 70.9, Unleaded — 78.0, & Diesel — 92.9 a gallon. Regular gasoline has the record for the cheapest, but unfortunately most students drive cars that take unleaded. By the end of the year who knows.

Hiding your birthday suit with clothes becomes an expensive expenditure in itself. Everyone seems to like the latest fads in clothes, and "That ain't cheap!" Most students spend half their pay check or their parents' pocket money on clothes. A pair of boots in September "ran" between $34-108.00, a plain sweater was as expensive as $75.00, or more.

food. Everyone likes to eat out. Staying home dining isn't as fun as "pigging" out with friends. The hottest spot VPHS students eat is McDonald's. A Big Mac, large fries, and a medium coke adds up to $3.65, a drastic change from $3.45 for one hamburger at Spoons. From hamburgers and fries at McD, to Taco Bell or Del Taco for a Taco Grande which is $1.59, compared to a Deluxe Del Meat for $1.89.

If not the necessities, we spend our money on miscellaneous things, such as a haircut, which costs around $9-45.00. For those who have acrylic nails, a fill is $20.00, plus a tip of two dollars.

Entertainment is a cost that "adds up" in many different areas; for example, on a weekend, one can spend at least $40.00 or more just going with friends.

If we weren't so caught up in the Cost of Living, we wouldn't have to worry about materialistic objects, but it wouldn't be as fun.

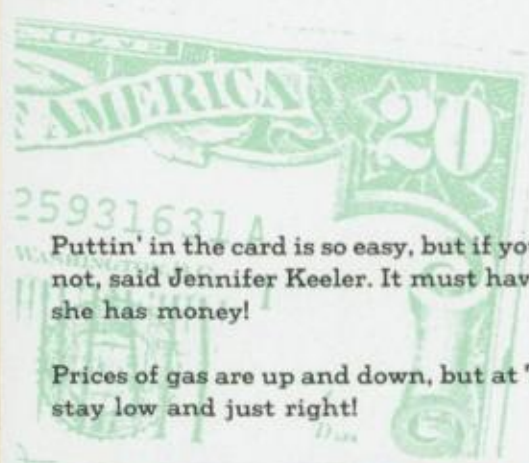

BRALTAR = QUICK
STO

The golden arches stand for McDonald's but also fun and hangin' out for students at VPHS.

Puttin' in the card is so easy, but if you have no money it's not, said Jennifer Keeler. It must have been easy, because she has money!

Prices of gas are up and down, but at Texaco, they seem to stay low and just right!

Seniors

Seniors seem to spend less on important objects and more on material things.

Shoes-$20-$108.00 a pair
Entertainment-$20-$40.00 a weekend
Insurance-$60-$167.00 a month

Juniors

Juniors like the cost of more expensive things.

Gas-$20-40 a month
Clothes-$30-150 a month
Records-$6.77 a week

Sophomores

Because sophomores have no cars, and make less money, they tend to spend it on other things.

Drugs and Alcohol Aren't VPHS's Addiction. It's ... Junk Food

By Dave Lawhon

You begin to notice the subtle signs of addiction as second period comes to a close. Your stomach begins to rumble and eyes start to focus on the clock. Thoughts of egg muffins, or burritos, or fresh baked cookies, or even "Runts" run rampant.

Once the bell rings, students dash, as if there were no lunch for their Junk Food fix. Some hit the candy machines spread around the campus.

Anxiously they push their coins into the slots and press the button for their favorite candy bar. Much of the time these machines do not work, but everybody feeds them their money anyway.

And what do you do when the machine steals your money? Some people would take it in stride and walk away and never return to that particular machine, but not at VPHS.

You get so desperate you kick it, hit it, and press the change return a thousand times. If that doesn't work, you get one of your friends to kick it and beat it up a little bit more. In your desperation for a Junk Food fix, which the machine would not permit you to have. You walk away whining like a puppy dog.

Those people who have already given up on the machines hit the snack bar. Some become so desperate that they would even wait in line for minutes for a burrito or those tasty chocolate chip cookies and the Cherry Coke that has enough acid in it to eat the paint off a car.

Do you ever wonder what the ingredients are of all of this Junk Food? What is maltodextrin, or glucono-delta-lactone, or even sodium stearoyl-2-lactylate? Oh well!

Ex-VPHS student Steven Bain is attracted to the candy machine. Even though it does not work much of the time, we all continued to put our money into it.

Recording The Fun

By Cheryl Dorler

Dear Diary:

I can't believe what a great time I had at the concert tonight! I haven't been to a concert in ages. It was much more exciting this time because I didn't have to tag along behind Mom and Dad. This time my friends and I drove ourselves. I'm telling ya, I enjoy freedom!

Well, it started 3 weeks ago when I heard that Oingo Boingo was coming to Irvine Meadows in concert on Halloween. Some radio d.j. announced that tickets were about to go on sale, and they would probably sell like hot cakes!

So I went to buy my tickets and took Steve with me. There was no way I was gonna sleep out in the Mall parking lot by myself. Steve and I had to camp out in front of the Ticketron booth with half the city, just to make sure we would get our tickets.

What an experience! Most of the people had radios to listen to, others read books by flashlight, and a lot of people played cards. There were a couple of kids who played football until they lost the ball on the roof, but even that didn't stop them. They just formed a 3 man ladder to get it down.

Later, Steve and I got in this rad fight. It was so stupid! We waited in line all night, freezing our buns off, just to buy 4 tickets because we planned on taking dates, and then Steve got cold feet and wouldn't ask Cathy to go. What a geek! I got my date. I asked Cheri. She's so hot looking! As it turns out, Cheri's cousin Jennifer came along as a blind date for Steve.

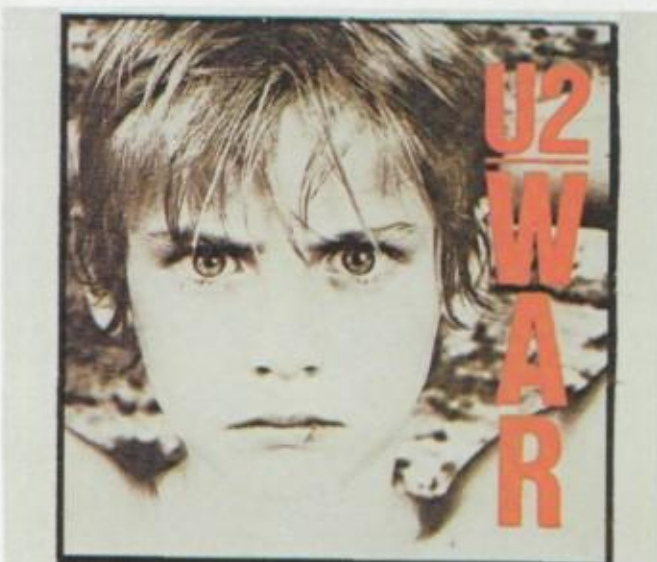

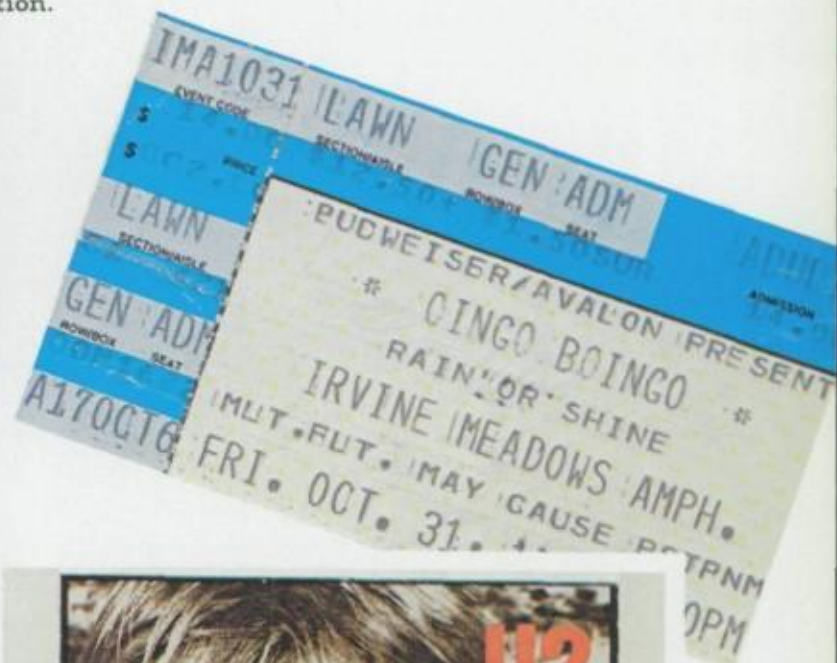

Before I went and got Steve tonight, I took a shower and spent 20 minutes slicking back my hair and perfecting it. Then I went over to pick up Steve at his house. Man, he was nervous! Anyway, from there we went to Cheri's house. I don't know why, but girls take so long to get ready. Then came the big moment. Out from behind the bathroom they stepped. Would you believe Jennifer was actually pretty cute. I told Steve that her looks came from being related to Cheri.

After we got there, we stood in a line for the longest time just to buy a T-shirt. Jennifer said she had to have one because all her friends had one. I'm sure! Fifteen bucks just to have the words 'Oingo Boingo' on an ordinary T-shirt. Then we spent 20 minutes looking for our seats. We must have looked real stupid walking up and down the aisles. And then some man thought he'd be smart and tell us that the rows were in alphabetical order. What a jerk!

When the concert finally started, laser beams flashed and a drumbeat rolled. As soon as the songs started, most people jumped from their seats and started dancin' in the aisles. Others just swayed to the music. It was such a unifying and exciting feeling. I'll never forget this night.

The audience literally goes wild at the Youth for Peace concert held at the Olympic Auditorium. Greg Earl attended the concert and took pictures of the action.

Sports Injuries

By Craig Hofstatter

Everyone who participates in a sport, whether it be a contact or non-contact sport, runs the risk of a sports injury.

The lucky ones escape with only cuts, bumps, or bruises, even sprains or pulled muscles. But for some the pain is far greater and the injury more serious.

The most common serious injury usually involves the knee. Here at VPHS about a dozen such injuries occurred, some so severe the student can no longer engage in sports activities.

Commenting on her knee injury which she received during a soccer game, victim, Erin Slawson stated, "It was really difficult to adjust to my new lifestyle after surgery. Suddenly, the only thing in the world that mattered was my knee, and getting rid of the terrible pain that went along with it."

Often times knees need to be completely reconstructed requiring a lot of time, money, and operations. Recovery can take months, or even years before the knee again functions properly. Sometimes full recovery never comes.

Frank Paulson commented, "football involves a lot of injury because of the constant contact between players. Nearly everyone has some type of injury and sometimes it will affect the whole team, when key players are taken out of the game.

What's In

By Jill Siegel

New fads emerge, and this year was no exception. While sitting in your average high school English class, you could tell that around campus a more "casual" look prevailed. Students wore ripped jeans, tennis shoes with holes, and sweatshirts. T-shirts were very big this year, with girls as well as the guys. In your average class, nearly one-third of the students were wearing t-shirts on any given day. Prices for these shirts ran from a $1.98 shirt from pep boys, to a $20.00 "designer" t-shirt.

The shirts worn expressed places the wearer had visited, such as Hawaii; their favorite beer, such as Corona; or their favorite interests, like surfing. However, what proved most popular were t-shirts from various rock concerts.

The Monday after the Halloween Oingo Boingo concert, there seemed to be a half-dozen Oingo Boingo shirts in every classroom. But did all these wearers really attend the event?

"I didn't go, but my friend got me the shirt. I wanted it because Oingo Boingo is my favorite group, and I don't really mind people looking at my shirt and thinking I really did go to the concert," admitted one Spartan rather sheepishly.

Footwear this year seemed to be whatever was comfortable. Most Spartans were seen around campus in tennis shoes. The most popular kinds were Reeboks, Converse high tops, and Vans. "I like my Nike high tops because they make me run fast when I am late for class," exclaimed Ken Robinson.

Although many Spartan women were seen sporting tennis shoes, the newest line in footwear for them were boots. There were many styles, from cowboy to Indian. The colors varied from basic black or white to hot pink or red, and boots could be bought at anywhere from $15.00 to $120.00 for lizard skin cowboy boots. "I have three pairs. I wear them because I like them and they're comfortable," stated senior Alicia Bugg.

Some Spartans expressed themselves through what they wore, others through the decorations that adorned their vehicles. Many bumper stickers with sayings like "The more I know men, the more I love my dog," were seen on cars out in the VPHS lot. Personalized license plates were all the rage, along with little yellow signs exclaiming such things as "Party Animal On Board" in the rear window.

But decorations were not limited to the outside of cars. A peek at the dashboards of many cars revealed numerous toys and stuffed animals. Tina Rameriz, whose vehicle contains an alligator, a monkey, and various other animals, gave a possible explanation. "I like to play with them at red lights!"

For the year of 1986-87, the VPHS Spartans have shown that although we may not know everything, we do know, "what's in!"

Boots are another fashion accessory worn by VPHS students. Shown here are a variety of styles and colors.

Who's on board? Yellow signs expressing various views are placed in the rear window of cars.

Students at VPHS display their tennis shoes. Styles range from Reeboks to Vans, and everything in between.

At VPHS, t-shirts are an important part of a typical Spartan's wardrobe. The shirts Craig Hofstatter, Brian Maguire, Darren Testa, Genalyn Talavera, Jill Siegel, and Greg Earl wear express the many different styles worn.

LITTLE ENOUGH"

By Kim Williams

"Help! I'm stressed! I don't have enough time to do everything that needs to get done. Between classes, homework, work, and college applications I hardly have enough time to sleep, let alone take time out for fun. If I do two things at once for the next week, then maybe I'll have time to relax this weekend."

Sound familiar? Many students get caught in the battle of conflicting schedules. "Organizers" are now a popular way to plan out the week, but most of us are still pressed for time.

The average senior works approximately sixteen hours a week, while fewer juniors and few sophomores hold jobs. Juniors and seniors seem to get the most sleep; some sleepy heads get nine hours a night! But while the upperclassmen are 'stacking z's,' the sophomores are hitting the books. They average three to four hours of homework a night, in comparison to two hours spent studying by the juniors, and less by the seniors. Juniors spend the most time playing sports, while sophomores talk on the phone more than upperclassmen.

Social activities somehow find a way into the weekend plans of most. Whether they consist of a few friends going to a football game, a shopping spree, or a night on the town, everyone enjoys a chance to relax.

"The time I'm most organized is when I have nothing to do."

Steve Allred

Not everyone spends their time in exactly the same way. Priorities dictate the schedules of everyone. The "honors" students on campus tend to spend more time studying, while the "jocks" place importance on sports. And those of us who add work to the daily grind are even more pressed for time.

No matter what activities one thing is for sure — there is never enough time! As Ben Franklin said, "What we call time enough, always proves little enough."

Donating their valuable time to help others, students gained GREAT REWARDS

By Michelle Fang

Besides learning from classes, a student can learn outside of school in many ways. Learning does not derive just from books and papers, it also comes from personal experiences. This is the main reason why so many people chose to do volunteer work. A few people may ask, "Why work for no pay? Money was not the main point. It was the valuable experiences volunteers gained that actually counted. In addition, volunteering also made community services special.

Other than gaining experiences, working as a volunteer also helped an individual socialize with others. For instance, after spending three and a half hours in the Student Center at night waiting for calls, the students in the Student Against Drunk Driving (S.A.D.D.) was amazed at how well they got to know each other. "We don't just sit there for three hours without conversing with one another," commented Chris Rommel "When no one calls, we talked about our days and things like that."

The most common public program available to high school students was Regional Occupational Programs (ROP), which offered a variety of community services. Through this program, students were able to help others while preparing a career for themselves. "I'm not sure what I'm going to do in the future, but I know that my career is going to be with kids, that is why I volunteered to teach little children." Amy Sorenson, who worked in Trinity United Presbyterian Church, stated with a smile.

The advantages of working as a volunteer were endless, and the experiences gained led to a future full of personal rewards.

Juniors Into Soap

By Randy Barnes

When you don't go to work or your sport is over, it's time for your favorite afternoon T.V. show between 3 and 5 O'clock.

The number 1 show most watched is MTV. MTV is not just watched and listened to, people use it as a tool for doing aerobics, house work or home work (they say it helps them to study). To get MTV all it takes is a cable hookup a stereo hookup and money. And what does all this money, time and threat to auditory and visual system of the body amount to? A lot of fun, and an inside look at the latest groups.

But videos aren't just the only thing MTV has to offer. It also provides concert information, guest VJ (video jockeys), and interviews with many of the groups and singers of today.

In addition to MTV, many juniors watch soap-operas. They set their VCR's to record their favorite soaps or they went to a friends house who would record it for them. Then when 3:30 rolled around, they'd curl up and watch their favorite soap characters (recorded earlier in the day) lie and cheat on each other. "How else could I watch Santa Barbara?"

Scott Cregan

17 year old Scott Cregan, is an outstanding varsity football player and a credit to the game. With Scott's 8 years of experience at tight end and inside linebacker, he is credited with 51 tackles this year. Scott plans to return next year with the other 15 juniors coming back as skilled veterans.

Shop 'Till you drop!

By Ed Shakhverdian

Whether it's Christmas time or an ordinary school day, one can find juniors shopping in the Orange Mall or other shopping centers such as Target, K Mart, City Mall, South Coast Plaza, etc.

For some juniors shopping is an escape from school life, for others it's a way to get rid of petty cash and feel good about it. Joel Kupperstein stated, "I go shopping whenever I have money or I go with my Mom because she doesn't leave home without her American Express."

It is true that some people benefit from their parents' cards, but what about the ones who can't. Hideaki Hayashi reveals, "By getting good grades I get a raise in my allowance; therefore, I am able to spend the extra income."

A survey showed that the majority of juniors shopped more for clothes than anything else. John Sagreto agreed, "Wearing new clothes gives me respect and attention of others."

This leads to conclusion that the majority of juniors are out in the malls, plazas, and department stores searching to purchase, with their hard earned "dough," the one thing that would please them.

DUTCH TREAT??

By Ed Shakhverdian

When was the first time you went out on a date? Although most juniors said before high school, many responded that they had just started dating this year.

Why now? According to most students who began dating this year, their main reason was they now have a car, a job, and privileges which make dating more convenient. Tom Bernard said, "Having a car and money solves most of the dating problems."

Where do you go on a your date? The response to this question covered a variety of places. The top seven places were:

1. Movies
2. Dances
3. Parties
4. Games
5. Restaurants
6. Beaches (Balboa)
7. Parks (Disneyland & Knott's)

Who pays for the date? Most boys and girls answered that guys paid for the dates, but some guys said they wouldn't mind if the girl treated them occasionally.

For many juniors this was the period when they began dating, and many believed that these will be some of the best memories they will have of VPHS.

Have you taken the time to choose your car?!

By: Edwin Shakhverdian

For the majority of VPHS students, the time for getting the first car came when they were juniors, when many students began to "go out," and needed transportation.

This privilege was harder to obtain than it seems. For some students it meant improving grades or getting a job or taking responsibilities like adults. Greg McFadden stated, "I had to raise my grades to get a car," and Randy Solinger said, "I had to find a job to pay for mine."

The next difficult thing was choosing the "right car." Most of the time, parents chose, and usually parents were concerned with insurance, maintenance, gas mileage, and safety, while teenage drivers were thinking about RPM, MPH, HP, tires, acceleration, color, etc.

What kind of first cars do a majority of juniors own? A survey of 120 juniors showed Toyotas, Hondas, and VW's.

What made these popular? According to Jeff Deutsch, "Toyotas are inexpensive and built to stay that way." Jim Simon argued that, "Hondas offer top options for a low base price and are built to perform!" Travis Cooper said, "VW's are cheap and easy to fix."

Cars come and go at this school and every year styles and models change to meet the demands of the juniors.

Juniors Join Work Force

Juggle Job & School

By Randy Barnes

Juniors often face money related problems such as supporting a car, paying for a social life and saving for the future. This is when they must give up free time and join the working world.

A typical junior may be kicking back, listening to KNAC and thinking how cool it is to be an upperclassman, when his father walks in and yells, "I'm not going to raise your allowance; you'll have to get a job."

He is then thrown into a panic and faced with the thought of working to support himself.

He is ignorant about how to get a job, where to apply and where to start.

What he doesn't know then but juniors learn too soon, is that work will take its toll on everyone. Eventually he will feel the pinch of working and going to school.

But if he, like other VPHS Juniors, can juggle the new job, class room work, activities, social life, chores and grades, he may find the new earned money worth it.

STRESSED?

By Trayce Thomas

Stress. It's a feeling many frustrated Juniors, knee-deep in homework, furiously trying to finish everything at once experience too frequently.

During the Junior year, students begin to have new experiences and responsibilities like working and driving that can be difficult to adjust to. In most cases, schoolwork also becomes more important as graduating becomes a tangible destination. "My grades are really important right now because I've got to start thinking about college," said Junior, Angie Molinari.

"My grades are really important now — I've got to start thinking about college"

"It seems that my parents are more sure of my college education than I am," stated Theresa Wheat.

Brandi Newman explained, "When I get really stressed about something, it helps if I go jogging to get my mind off of things."

"Talking to someone about my problems really helps to make them less stressful," said Colleen Preston.

"I always try to leave a little time for myself so I'm not constantly working on homework or something."

"Many have their own ways of dealing with stress," added Susan Tillou, but the most successful trick seems to be learning how to balance work and play.

Our own style

By Randy Barnes

The junior class has a style all its own, from its looks and spirit to its abilities. In sports the number of juniors playing varsity is almost equal to the number of seniors playing. Also a large number of juniors are starting in most all sports. They will be returning next year as skilled veterans ready to take championships.

In addition to sports ability, juniors also have their own style of fashion to match. Everyone knows who the juniors are by the way they dress, the style of their hair, and their personalities.

Juniors are the "rowdiest" and "loudest" class in years, which will be a great help in lifting the spirit that our school needs.

With the way we're going, VPHS will be an exciting and thrill a minute school in 88.

Sweat Through the PSAT?

"It's seven o'clock. Get up! You'll be late for the PSAT!" said my unconscious mind as I flew an F-15 in my dream. I next remember getting dressed and driving to school, without breakfast.

At school, I saw juniors rushing into the cafeteria and the library, and so I followed them to the chilly cafeteria and placed my tired, "foodless" body on a hard chair.

Allen said, "The test lasts three hours." I was 'put out' for a moment, then I realized that I would miss my English class. So I took the good with the bad.

After an hour of test rules, Mr. Edwards gave the "Go" signal and pencils started filling in the little bubbles. Although I wasn't allowed to look at others while taking the test, I noticed that some people were serious about scoring high, hoping to achieve a National Merit Scholarship, offered to the highest PSAT scorers.

I wasn't 'too wild' about that, and I attempted to learn the types of questions presented because they are suppose to be similiar to those on the SAT. Three hours of constant thinking was enough for me and the PSAT was too much.

After leaving the test room I thought about test results and how they would effect my future plans. The PSAT scores can determine the amount of studying needed to be done for the SAT, a ticket to my desired school.

JRs. wait for weekend

By Trayce Thomas

During school hours, it's everything but party time for most VPHS Juniors. But every Friday at 2:35 the entire campus is filled with sounds of slamming lockers, complaints of homework, and weekend planning. At the end of each week, most students crave a "little action" to release them from school pressures.

Going to football games seemed to be a great out-of-school activity. After all of the football games, the local hang out for fans, parents, and players was "Lampost Pizza." Spirits were high as everybody ate pizza and discussed the game.

For most Juniors, the party scene seemed to be the most popular way to release tension. On most weekends, it wasn't difficult to find a party in full swing. "I like going to parties because they're a good place to see your friends and meet new people," said Rodney Carpenter a junior who felt this way.

Also Juniors were found at the movies on weekend nights. "I usually go see a movie if I'm bored and there's nothing else to do," stated Danielle Sneed. Some of the most popular movies were The Fly, Ferris Bueller's Day Off, and Stand By Me.

Where was everybody during weekend days? Schelle Saladin and Kay Brueckmann shared the same answer — Shopping. Kay explained, "I live to buy new clothes and spend money." "Besides, what else is there to do?" added Schelle. Surfer, Justin Burnam, felt differently. "The beach is the only place to be on weekends," he stated. Like Justin, many students found the waves, sun, sand, and people very becoming.

School is back in session, tests are given, and homework is assigned, but it's good to know that between weeks of non-stop school work, reports, studying, and tests, the weekends were always there as an escape. If only for a couple of days, it helped.

Under the instruction of Ms. Blakely, Vocal Ensembles, Vikki Jacobson and Deanna Strachn rehearse "Grandma Got Run Over by a Reindeer" for a winter performance.

John Watrous

John Watrous, Junior Treasurer, has maintained his grades well above average since he arrived in California from Kansas four years ago. Although John does well academically, he doesn't allow this to keep him from the basketball court or the baseball diamond. In fact, he hopes to become a major ball player in the future.

John said, "I take things easy so I don't have any pressure on me." This was seen when John took the CAML tests. He calmly took his time in solving the problems and finding the correct answers. In his sophomore year at VPHS, he got the second highest score and placed in the top five again this year.

He hasn't decided where to attend after graduating from VPHS, but he thinks that he will make the right choice when the time approaches.

So What's Your Excuse?

By Trayce Thomas

Excuses, excuses.

After two years at VPHS, Juniors became articulate at making up excuses. The best excuses are, of course, those that are believable and at least "half-truths." Here's a look at the darker side of those excuses.

BEING LATE TO SCHOOL:

"My car wouldn't start" (If you didn't have a car, this would hardly be a surprise). "My alarm clock didn't go off" (You purposely didn't set it the night before). "My battery was dead" (In your flashlight?)

LATE TO CLASS:

"I didn't hear the bell" (You were pulling into the parking lot when it sounded). "I was in a meeting" (So what if the meeting was a social gathering of you and four of your friends).

LATE HOMEWORK

"My locker wouldn't open" (Only because you didn't try to open it). "I ran out of paper" (No matter that you live a whole block away from Ralphs). "It's in my book, but I left my book on the bus" (Meaning your Volkswagon bus, the one in the front row of the parking lot).

The best excuse is no excuse at all, but none of us use that!

16 — How sweet can it be?

By Trayce Thomas

Old enough to drive, get a job and date. These were a few of the changes that took place when a VPHS student reached the unforgettable age of 16. For some students, their sixteenth birthday changed their lives drastically. Cathi Loss explained, "When I turned 16, I got my license, a car, and a lot more freedom."

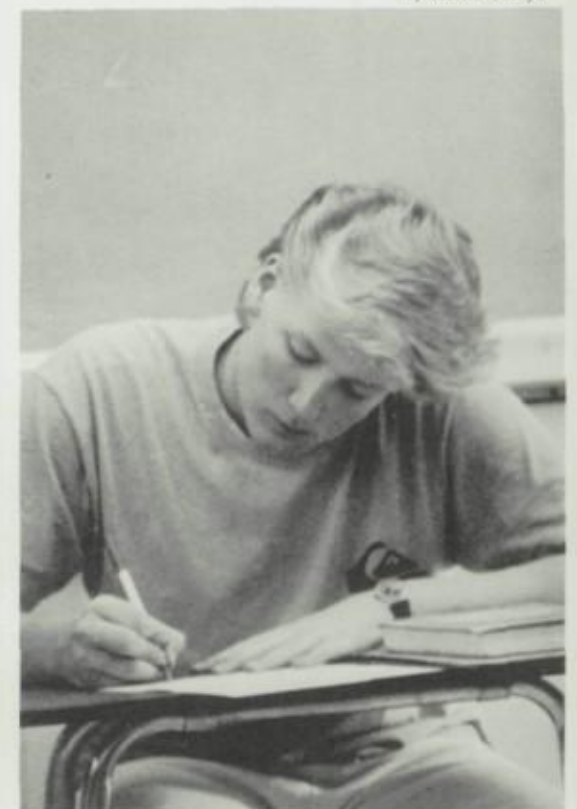

For most Juniors, 16 was a long awaited age. "I couldn't wait for my sixteenth birthday; it always seemed so far away," stated Deanna de la Riva. For others, their sixteenth birthday wasn't exactly as they had expected. Malinda Baker explained, "I had expected a car when I turned 16, and I got a bike. I wasn't exactly thrilled."

Also, most Juniors turning 16 agreed that they turned into chauffeurs. Tracy

Townsend was one who felt this way. "When I got my license, my brothers and all of my friends always needed rides, but I didn't really mind," explained Tracy.

Finally, the expenses of owning a car seemed to be a shock to most juniors. For many 16 year olds, this year marked their first successful job hunt. Fast food places, like Del Taco, McDonalds, Carls Jr., and Naugles employed many of them. A number worked at gas stations, and supermarket jobs were also popular. Still others worked in stores or private businesses.

Although many students felt that 16 wasn't all it's cracked up to be, they realized their sixteenth birthday only came once.

Students were under the most pressure around test time. Trying to complete his history test, Eric Jaquay writes carefully.

February 1987 brought us refinement in the form of Fine Arts Week. In the same week, "big folk" came along and demonstrated lack of refinement. The 1st annual Lack of Talent show was put on by 50 crazy teachers, staff, and parents. It was difficult at times determining who was having the most fun, cast or audience.

Their performances ran the gamut from: a piano played with a grapefruit, to dancing raisins, to whistling belly buttons. A dedicated group of performers is already at work planning (plotting) a bigger 2nd edition for 1988.

Miss Blakely helps her class along by singing the words for them.

Once Again

By Cheryl Dorler

Sitting among 30 ruthless students who were either talking to their friends, finishing their other homework, or listening to their walkman radios, I often wondered what it took to be a high school teacher. The VPHS Staff and Faculty would all agree it took a great deal of patience. In addition, it also took a reasonable amount of originality.

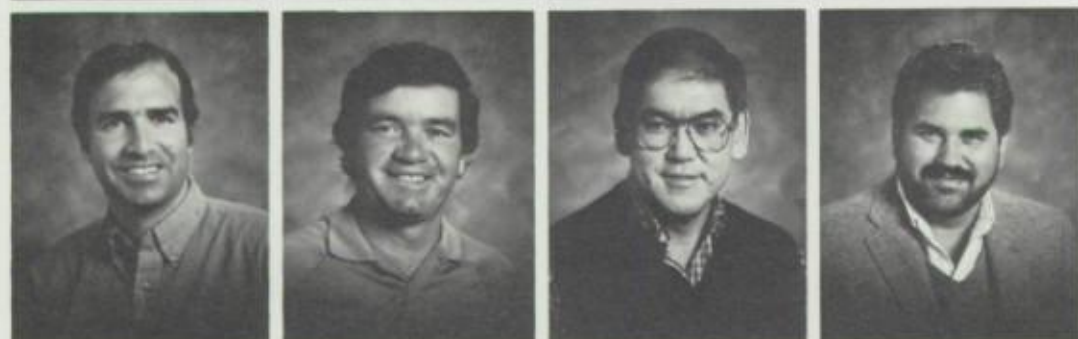

Originality was needed to avoid repeating too often in one semester. Do you suppose certain teachers were aware of the number of times they were caught repeating themselves? See how many of these quotes you can match with the teacher who repeated them.

Lab Finally Opens

By Norm Johnson

It sounded like a good idea.

"The school needs a computer lab for general computer use like writing papers or practicing German vocabulary."

It was a good idea! But it was much tougher to accomplish than it first seemed, in March of '86.

The idea first came from Ms. Joy Iseli or Mr. Joe Quartucci. But whomever, a committee was formed.

Soon a room was chosen (R-3), and carpet installed (grey commercial).

Two weeks, March 2-13, were used for debugging the lab and it was opened to all VPHS staff and students on a sign-up basis.

It took a year, a lot of time, personal sacrifice and a tolerance for set-backs, but the computer committee Mrs. Gertrude Bigelow, Mr. Bruce Campbell, Mrs. Evelyn Ching, Mrs. Marilyn Hettick, Ms. Joy Iseli, Mr. Norm Johnson, Mr. Joe Quartucci, Ms. Julia Thielman and Mr. Tom Yim, opened up a new frontier for VPHS.

In honor of the homecoming game, Sue Gardiner, Luella Syler, Barbara Morton, Anne Folkert, and Barbara Poole show their spirit and support for the football team by dressing wildly and playing various unusual instruments.

What's your goal?

By Teri Schuffert

A lot of people have goals they'd like to achieve in a certain amount of time. Sophomores, too, have goals they'd like to see through by the end of school.

Erin Barnett — "I want to make the swim team. I want good grades."

Marci Rosen — "My car and my boots. And maybe leather clothing."

Jackie Nguyen — "Good college and good grades. And a car."

Inga Starrett — "My greatest love."

Michelle Bice — "To be able to get a scholarship. To be a varsity cheerleader."

Pam Trent — "To pass each grade and never be in another sophomore history class again."

Apryl Keller — "To graduate and not have to get up early again."

Jamie Waters — "Just to live through being a sophomore would be great for me."

Cressant Gilley — "To maybe become a cheerleader again."

Lisa Binns — "To never have another biology class again."

Sophomores Nick Freck and Ryan Brody chat as they make their way out of the parking lot. Behind them, Gary Frey listens.

Beginning High School

By Jackie Schulkey

The anticipation increased in most 2nd period classes as the students waited for the bell to release them to assembly.

Most sophomores were not too sure what to expect at the 1st assembly held at VPHS.

"Where is it?"

"I don't know, down where the stage is."

"You mean the amphitheatre."

"I don't know."

"You know what's going on there?"

"No, I'm not too sure. I think it has something to do with spirit."

"Oh well, maybe I'll just ditch."

"If you did you'd be missing what this school's all about."

"What's that?"

"Spirit, we need more spirit."

"Yeah, but how is it going to help give us more spirit if I show up?"

"It will, you'll see."

RING!!!

Sophomores ran from their classes to the assembly.

"Wait! I'm gonna go to my locker."

"Okay, but hurry. I want to get a good seat."

"Where do you wanna sit?"

"Let's sit in the back and sleep."

"Na, I want to sit in the front and participate."

At the assembly, the sophomores were asked;

"Hey sophomores how do you feel?"

At first they didn't quite know how to respond. At least until the cheerleaders asked the juniors and seniors.

When the assembly was over many sophomores weren't sure what had actually happened.

"What was that about?"

"I don't know, but classes are shorter."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Nothing, except it took up time."

"Do we go back to class?"

"I don't know, I guess not because the other kids aren't."

The sophomores walked back to the quad for nutrition.

"So do you feel more spirited?"

"Nah, but I guess I'll go to the next one to see if they get any better."

There Has To Be A First Day

By Teri Schuffert

Dear Diary —

Today was one of the most exciting days of my life because I started High School!

Okay, so maybe the day started off lousy but that was only because I lost my schedule which had my classes and locker combination on it.

I went to the office, but they just looked at me like I was a typical sophomore. I finally found my schedule stuck between two of my folders, but by that time, I was already late to first period P.E.

So off I ran to the large gym where everyone was supposed to meet. It was my luck to be the only one tardy. I ran into the gym all out of breath only to see a stern look of disapproval on Coach Ochoa's face. I sat down on the bleachers next to my friend, Apryl Keller.

We compared our schedules, and wouldn't you know it, my first day and I get into trouble for talking while the teacher was.

After first period, I was on my way to T-12 for Math Fundamentals with Mr. Ehrlich. Suddenly, I slipped in a puddle of mud (it seems they are forever fixing the pipes) and fell down. I was so humiliated. I ran into the girl's bathroom, cleaned up really fast, then ran to Mr. Ehrlich's room, but I was late again.

Second period flew by, then came nutrition which was fun. Apryl, Julie, Lisa, and I sat around munching. Third period was History with Garrahy. Fourth period was Life Science with Coach Haas. I got to class just in time and grabbed a seat. Haas pronounced my name wrong, but that's okay he'll get it right tomorrow.

After fourth period was lunch. The entire school must have crammed into the cafeteria. I bought some pizza and went to sit down with my friends.

After lunch, as I went to get up from the table, my jacket hooked onto my plate and flipped it over. I got pizza stains on my white shirt, and so I went to the office to call my Mom to bring me a new shirt, but she wasn't home. I washed it off the best I could and went on to fifth period, Sophomore English.

By the end of fifth period I felt better about school. I ran to my upstairs locker and tried futilely to unjam it. I finally got it open as the bell rang. Needless to say, I was late to my last class. I ran in to see the teacher and the rest of the class talking but they all stopped when I ran in. Everyone stared at me with the pizza stains on my shirt and mud stain on my pants.

The rest of the period was dedicated to me and my being a sophomore.

After the bell rang, I walked home to tell Mom about the first day but she wasn't home so instead I wrote in you, dear diary.

My 1st Year.

By Jackie Schulkey

Dear Diary,

Today was sophomore registration. I was so scared! I didn't know where to go.

When I first got there, it looked so different from Jr. High. It was huge. The buildings were tall and there were so many of them.

When I got to the small gymnasium, I had to wait in line outside. While I was waiting, I heard some guys talking behind me.

"Hey dude, what did you do this summer?"

"Oh, I went to the beach."

"Did ya go to the O.P. Surf Pros at Huntington?"

"No dude! Was it rad?"

"Yeah, the last day was hot!"

When I got inside I noticed the smell was horrid, like a smelly sweat sock that had been left in one of the lockers all summer. On the left was a door that I think led into one of the locker rooms. On the right side of the door was a long mirror where people stopped to fix their hair and makeup.

In front of me was a whole bunch of tables and then two doors on the other end of the gym.

I saw some guys from last year at the other side of the gym. They all looked so different.

"Would you please step in and turn in your registration papers."

I stopped gawking around and turned in my papers.

After finishing this, I was advised to get my ASB card picture taken.

"Is this the school picture?"

"No, this only goes on your ASB card, you take your school picture over there where the two giant screens are."

"Thanks a lot."

When I first came, not too many were around, but by now the room was crowded. I could hear everything was going on from the photographer's voice.

"Okay now 1 ... 2 ... 3. Next.

To the giggling girls standing at the back table.

When I finished registering and bought my yearbook, I walked down to the office to pick-up my schedule and locker combo.

"Do you know where locker #2989 is?"

"No. Do you know where T-13 is?"

"No, sorry.

If I learn these procedures, I think I'll make it through my sophomore year.

Embarrassing Moments

By Jennifer Romandy

Having embarrassing moments once in a while isn't such a big deal — everyone has them. But when sophomores have them even once in a while, there's something peculiar and desperately wrong. That's why we have Juniors and Seniors to make sure that these special events don't go unnoticed.

Embarrassing moments can range from mild slips like sophomore Phil Gech being pushed up the stairs because he was walking too slow to Kirk Kuli being trash canned. Well, at least Phil had an excuse unlike Jennifer DeClark and Aaron Curtis, who both tripped up the stairs without any help at all.

Other sophomores were embarrassed by seniors who bothered them. Albert Abitan feels "Seniors always make fun of us." And Scott Cook was steamed because, as he put it, "They always tripped me and everyone laughed."

At first sophomores could be identified by the confused and strange expressions on their faces because of being lost of like Hanh Nguyen who couldn't find her English room. But the worst was when sophomores Trisha Jones, Tina Piper, and Heather Rener sat in the Senior section at rallies. "We didn't want to sit with the sophomores and thought no one would notice." You can almost imagine what happened then.

Some sophomores get embarrassed by their own actions. Phil Johnson, who threw an apple at Jomo Stewart, fell on the ground, and Michelle Butler fell off her chair in Biology. "I was leaning back and fell in front of everyone," she said.

The grand finale of all embarrassments has to be when someone is trash canned. Kirk Kuli and Ken Jones will remember this one well.

Happiest Times

By Jennifer Romandy

High School holds the fondest memories in most peoples' minds. Through the long drawn-out days, gossip is spread, excitement happens and the hottest guys and girls turn everyone's heads. Older people say that high school is the happiest time of one's life. Is that true?

"What do you like most about VPHS?"

Jennifer DeClark — "I like mostly everything."

Keith Dellalonga — "Most of the people here are nice."

Dana Folsom — "The selection of classes."

Debbie Halligen — "I like the teachers better."

Phil Johnson — "The parties."

Todd Boycott — "The girls."

Mark Archibald — "It's a lot easier to ditch."

Julie Marks — "It's extremely better than C.V."

Eric Verdult — "High school is easier than junior high."

Mark Salmeron — "Coach Oach."

Tina Piper — "I like the athletics."

Aaron Curtis — "I actually don't know."

Ken Jones — "The girls and all the different activities."

Scott Cook — "The teachers are cool. They're more laid back."

Paul Matheson — "For me, it's a totally new atmosphere."

Carmela Birmbaum — "There are more people and activities to make more friends with."

Marci Rosen — "I'm new so I don't know anyone."

David Teigen — "It's a lot different from junior high."

Madalyn Wartburg — "It's big with a lot of people and the boys are good looking."

My Collection

By Jackie Schulkey

All kinds of people collect things from a few of somethings to hundreds of others. Sophomores are no different.

They collect items which show their different and unique interests.

Robert Burnette collects Heathcliff books.

Q: Why do you collect them?

A: "Because they're easy and fun to read."

Q: How many do you have?

A: "Fifteen."

Q: About when did you start collecting them?

A: "When I was in fourth grade." At least two students collect hats. Scott Cook collects baseball caps.

Q: Why do you collect them?

A: "There is no real reason. They decorate my room and show the places I've been. They're also just nice to have around because I wear them."

Q: About how many do you have?

A: "I have about 100."

Q: When did you start collecting them?

A: "I started when I was about three years old."

The other hat collector, Dan Hare, collects cycling ones.

Q: What do you do with all those hats?

A: "I wear them and I also go cycling in them."

Q: How many do you have?

A: "I have about 10."

Q: When did you start collecting them?

A: "About two years ago."

Another student who collects something different is Glen Salyer.

Q: What do you collect?

A: "Baseball cards."

Q: Why?

A: "Because some of them are rare, and if you collect the right ones they go up in value the longer you have them."

Q: About how many do you have?

A: "I have about 100."

Q: What is your rarest card?

A: "A 1982 Wade Boggs."

Q: When did you start collecting them?

A: "About four years ago."

The most that any sophomore collected was Mia Schwoerer, who has over 500 post cards.

From this modest start it looks as though the sophomores will some day collect everything.

It Doesn't Take Long

Become a VPHS Spartan.*

By Jennifer Romandy

It seemed like a tremendous change, switching from junior high to high school, but sophomores did it with certain style and taste.

"The best thing to do when switching was try not to look too obvious," joked sophomore, Lisa Binns, "sophomores have to be careful otherwise a joking junior or senior might harass them."

In the first weeks of school, anyone could easily identify the typical sophomore. They carried their books clutching them tightly, desperately trying to remember their locker combinations as they walked around, looking for their classes.

After a little practice, however, the sophomores really got the hang of it, and the difference between sophomores, juniors, and seniors couldn't be told at all.

Another thing that really helped the sophomores was the fact that they were not egged or trashed or booed at any of the assemblies, and no degrading name was chosen for them.

Sophomores weren't the dreadful little creatures everyone assumed them to be. With a little coaching and coaxing, it wasn't long before they began to enjoy VPHS and become accustomed to their surroundings.

We're New Students?

By Jackie Schulkey

A poll of sophomores taken at VPHS asked: What do you do during class?"

"Write notes to my friends."

"Talk to the people around me."

"Do my homework from other classes."

"Do my work."

The most popular answer was "I don't know," or "I forgot."

Visits to two sophomore history classes revealed their activities.

In Mr. Shelton's 5th period history class some of the students tried throwing spit wads.

"Come on guys! Now you don't want to have some extra homework do you?"

The class quickly came to order.

One girl in the corner was passing notes to the girl next to her. They must have both thought that Mr. Shelton didn't see them, because they continued until they were caught.

Mr. Garrahy's 5th period class was in the middle of a study period. Some guys were busy talking about some movie one of them had seen that weekend.

"I saw Aliens."

"Was it as gross as everyone said it was?"

"Nah, At least I didn't think it was, but my girlfriend thought it was pretty gross."

"What did she do?"

"Nothing, she just didn't like the movie."

In another corner some girls were talking about some guy.

"He's so cute!"

"Yeah, but he knows

it."

"So, he's still cute."

"But he's also going out with some senior."

"Oh well, I don't care. I can still look at him, can't I?"

"Yeah, I suppose."

Only about one other thing was going on in that room. Mr. Garrahy was busy correcting papers so he wouldn't have to do them that evening. He stopped correcting papers and stood up to talk to the class.

"Now, since you've been good all week, the school has decided to give all of you students Monday off."

"Oh, gee; thanks Mr. Garrahy."

"No problem."

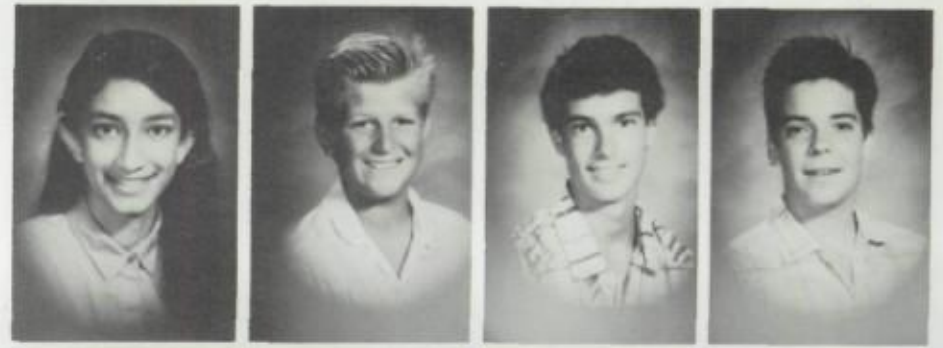

The bell rang and all the students left the class except one who walked up to Mr. Garrahy.

"Thanks Mr. Garrahy, this is the 1st time that I've been in a class and wanted to learn something."

"Well, it's not all up to me. You have to put something into it to get something out of it."

Sophomore Soufflé

By Teri Schuffert

2 cups of Driver's Education
½ lb. of a sixteenth birthday celebration
¼ teaspoon of a Sophomore English class
1½ tablespoons of Physical Education
3 pinches of Modern World History
¼ quart of Fashion
9 parts of Music
Just a dash of friends and family
1 cup of Hallways/Stairs
5 teaspoons of Lockers and Combination
And to liven things up a little, add the smallest amount possible of Biology.

Directions: Take the above mentioned and mix together in any size high school. Stir occasionally once a month for nine months. Remember that this is a delicate mixture so be careful when cooking. Should make plenty (well, enough for leftovers at least).

The ASB always,

GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS

By Genalyn Talavera

It's obvious that there have been many changes this year. I ask myself, what is new or different about the ASB Board? Aren't they just students using the position to take a "kick-back" class, and their offices to receive school privileges?

This stereotype of the ASB Board has been around as long as I could remember, but this year's ASB has broken this stereotype.

"What makes us different is the wide range of character and views we possess," said ASB President Ken Domer. "We work together thinking up ideas and compromising on them to improve VPHS."

One of their goals was to improve the unification of the classes. Ideas to do this included dress-up days, student-lunch activities, and the interscholastic volleyball games.

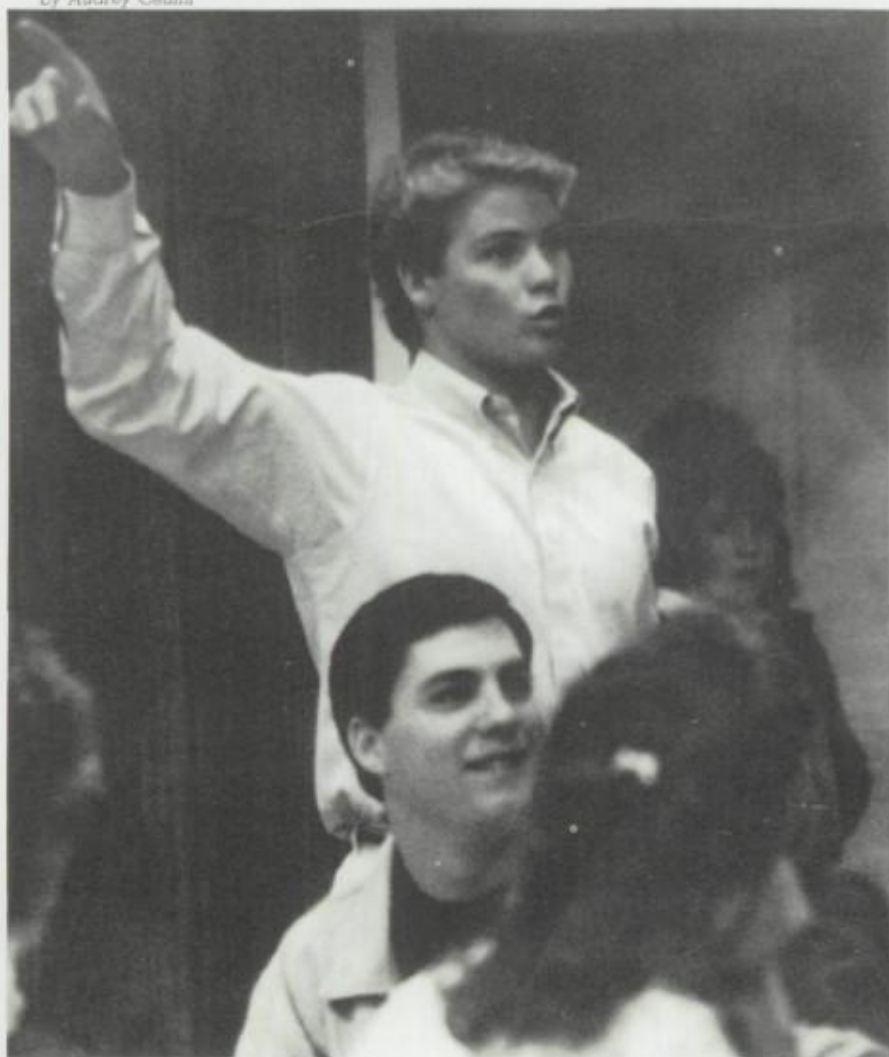

Other ideas brought up by the board were off-campus lunch passes and senior parking stickers. The lunch pass was vetoed, but the parking stickers went into limbo in January.

"I wish we had the power to put our ideas into effect because without the power, ideas are just ideas," Ken Domer stated. He also said that it was hard to work because with the limits imposed by the administration. "But we tried our best with what we had, if we were able to do our own things and act our own ways instead of being tied up and pulled on strings the ASB would be more effective and an aggressive organization," Ken Domer said.

"They are an effective group of students filled with imaginative ideas," stated Ms. Theilman.

SUCCESS!

By Jill Siegel

Just what do the AWS and Board of Control do? First of all, under the direction of President Irene Lickl, the Associated Women Students planned many activities, such as "Date Dad."

The girls took their dads out for an evening of games, dinner, and dancing. "Date Dad is a fun event my Dad and I look forward to every year," said Michele Young, board member.

Other activities included having a guest speaker such as a Merle Norman representative at lunch. The board also made weeknight visits to local hospitals.

AWS also sponsored Sadie Hawkins December 6th. Board member Ilene Lelchuk, in charge of this, said, "Sadie Hawkins is always one of the most popular dances of the year. This year we sold more than 300 tickets and felt it was a huge success."

This feeling was echoed by senior Jode Elsberry: "The dance was a total blast and something I'll always remember."

The Board of Control was headed by elected board president Dave Piper. Dave was in charge of running the class and ASB election assemblies. "The job of the Board of Control consisted of counting votes for the various campus elections," said Dave. Early in the year, Dave selected the Board of Control from the petitions handed in. Jeff Hoey, one of the chosen, said, "The Board got along well, and had a busy and successful year."

This year was a productive one for AWS. We worked hard and accomplished many things. AWS includes every girl on campus, and together the members and officers presented Date Dad, Sadie Hawkins, and Hi Mom. We feel it was a very exciting and productive year!

During the meeting about Coronation, President Kevin Halligan goes over plans with senators Cindy Wright and Samantha Miller. Treasurer Kip Ashton advised funds.

Senior Class Officers Get Things Done

"Doesn't the ASB do that?"
"No, it's the senior class officers."

"Senior class officers? I didn't know they did anything."

I was assigned, as a year-book staff member, to cover the senior class officers. Asking around, I heard these quotes and more. So who are these officers and what do they do for us? For one thing, the coronation dance. You know, one of the biggest dances of the year, all taken care of by the senior class officers — from where it's to be held, to hiring the "rent-a-cops."

Kevin Halligan, President

took care of all the bidding for the pavillion and the security. He also assigned jobs to Cindy Wright and other senators to handle food and music.

As a group, they also chose the teachers who would pick the coronation court, which wasn't easy because of the teachers we have.

"People don't think we do much," stated senator Jeff Randall. "They think we just sit on our jobs holding a title."

He added, "They don't get the recognition they deserve, possibly because the things they do are really not known."

Our senior class officers did a good job.

As Senior Class President, I feel fortunate to have had the opportunity to work with the other officers and the senior Cabinet to plan our class activities.

Homecoming week was a great success with the majority of the students participating in some way. Coronation, ditch day, senior breakfast, grad night and other senior activities are all part of our senior year memories that we will take with us when we graduate.

This year our goal was to promote class unity and school spirit. Each student was encouraged to participate in some form of Spartan life. I feel we've been successful in our efforts. I am very proud to be a member of the class of '87!

Pondering over the information given by Mr. Brunt, Kip Ashton and senators Dave DeLeon, Jody Scott, Samantha Miller and Lynda Pollin try to make a decision about the teachers who will pick the court.

Advisor Mr. Dick Brunt takes notes while giving his attention to the discussion concerning other senior activities.

Secretary of the senior class, Mindy McVey, expresses her opinion about the Coronation plans while senator Jenifer Holzwarth listens.

The class officers do more than just sit around and talk or decide what type of music to listen to at lunch.

They planned lunchtime activities along with the senior class officers and the Junior class adviser Ms. Julia Theilman. In addition to lunchtime activities, they also planned the Junior/Senior prom and other dances.

The Junior class officers have made this year not only fun and productive but interesting as well.

FOR FUTURE FUN

Since their election, the sophomore class officers have kept themselves busy with such activities as car washes, Penguin nights, and prom-planning.

Concentrating mainly on fundraisers, the sophomores sold things from candy to jewelry. "We're the first group to ever have a jewelry sale, and I feel it was a big success," commented advisor Mrs. Cynthia Nuitz.

The officers were spirited and eager to try new things. They spent lunch hours selling candy grams, gobble grams, and taking orders for jewelry for VPHS students. "I think the candy grams were the biggest success because we raised a lot of money and united the school at the same time," stated senator Mike Raum.

Secretary Chantal Soudant explained, "We all get along really good and we're motivated to get things done!" Mrs. Nuitz added, "I think the spirit of the sophomore class has gone way up because of these officers and they deserve a lot of credit. They aren't afraid to communicate their ideas to each other, and to the rest of the school."

"It takes a lot of hard work and time to be an officer, especially a sophomore officer. Entering their first year in high school, these students need good leaders to look up to," said Mrs. Nuitz.

This was the year for many new additions to our school. We received an additional six cheerleaders and twice the spirit. When asked why the additional cheerleaders were needed, cheerleader Barbara Dunn stated, "Last year the Pep Squad received a lot of criticism for not being able to attend every sport's game, this way we have enough cheerleaders to support every sport."

"I really enjoyed going to camp and getting to know the other squad members," noted cheerleader Keri Uchytel. The Varsity Cheerleaders were responsible for generating school and student spirit.

Song Reacts to Crowd

By Dave Lawhon

The songleader squad had a total of thirteen girls. In past years the squads have consisted of only six. "I like having a lot of songleaders; really," said Ranae Randels, "There's more school spirit."

"We work hard," said Holly Bleier. They did work hard, spending countless hours during the summer, preparing for the new school year, and a lot of time after school practicing for pep rallies, football games, basketball games, etc. They also gave the football team drinks and refreshments during Hell-week.

"It's a thankless job," said Holly Bleier. "After spending a lot of time preparing for a pep rally or whatever, no one came up to us and said that we did a good job or anything like that. But if we didn't want to do it, we wouldn't. We could have dropped out in the beginning."

"We're doing something for the school," said Ranae Randels.

"We get very nervous," said Holly Bleier. "We never know how the crowd is going to react to our performance."

With thirty pepsters, one would think that they wouldn't get along too well, but Kelly Kindt and Holly Bleier both agreed they got along fine.

Squad leader leader Kelly Kindt also said, "It should be a number one priority."

"Some people just go out for it not knowing how much it takes," said Ranae.

More Than Ever

By Kristen Demers

The Junior Varsity cheerleaders overcame major obstacles, one even before their year had begun. They as well as the rest of the pep squad, were subject to ridicule by a student body outraged at having their voting privileges suppressed. The joke of the year was to figure out who, if anyone, was a non-skirt, (any female at Villa Park that was not a cheerleader during the 1986-87 school year).

For the J.V. Cheerleaders the year has been fun and will always hold many memories, like the time that seven of the thirteen of them were sick and/or injured at camp, or the first assembly in front of the entire student body.

According to J.V. cheerleader Trayce Thomas having such a large odd number had its positive as well as its negative aspects. "A plus is that we were able to attend a lot more games not just one sport at a time. Since there are so many of us, we had a lot of spirit and reinforced each other when we got down."

Susan Tillou, shared what she believed were some of the negative sides of working with such a large group. "There were a lot of communication gaps, and we didn't always agree. It was hard work but it was still all worth it."

Tracy Townsend added, "It was fun. It is going to be great to look back on this year."

The week of Homecoming was extremely hectic. School teachers were surrounded by 1458 spirited spartans. The Homecoming dance was the frosting on the cake called "Spirit Week."

Responsibility for the dance rested on Tracy Albrecht's shoulders. The dance went smoothly. Even though the planning that went into the night's activities 'stressed' even the most organized person.

The girls worried about selecting a boutonniere, buying a dress, whether or not to bring money, if their hair looked right, their parents taking pictures, what to order for dinner, and thousands of other little things.

While the guys worried about renting a limo, making dinner reservations, choosing a corsage, money, matching socks, money, getting ready on time, money, uncomfortable shoes, and MONEY!

And why did students even go to the dance? Only 10% of those who showed up actually danced. But it was the memory of the whole night that sticks. The dance was just an excuse to dress up, go to dinner, and party.

Perhaps the highlight of the dance was the traditional dance of the king and queen. Ranae Randels and Ken Domer danced under the light of a giant video screen.

"It felt good (being out in front of all those people), I'm glad it only happens once," Ken Domer commented nervously.

"They looked real cute," commented Brian Maguire, Ranae Randels date for the dance.

Heather McMasters flashes a smile while dragging Eric Sach out to the dance floor.

"Sadie Hawkins," the guys sigh with relief, "finally the girls can pay for something."

Yes it was that time again; time for the girls to get up the nerve to do the asking and the guys to be confronted with whether they wanted to go or not.

"The Sadie Hawkins dance was great. Everything looked fantastic," stated senior, Ranae Randels.

It did look great, containing everything from out-houses to long underwear hanging on a wash line. All the couples wandered around in their cute, matching shirts (which tended to stray away from the traditional flannel "hick" attire). Most of the couples went for the original look, sweatshirts, Billabong surf shirts, Hawaiian shirts, Rugbies and anything loud and obnoxious was worn to be different.

A new thing for the Sadie Hawkins dance was the games, which many people participated in and enjoyed. These consisted of bean-bag throws and pitching ping-pong balls. They only cost a dime and cute little mugs and glasses were won.

The major attraction, of course, was getting pictures, (which sophomores needed to show mom, so she'd believe that the kids were good). Another attraction was getting hitched which was done by "Pastor" Haskins.

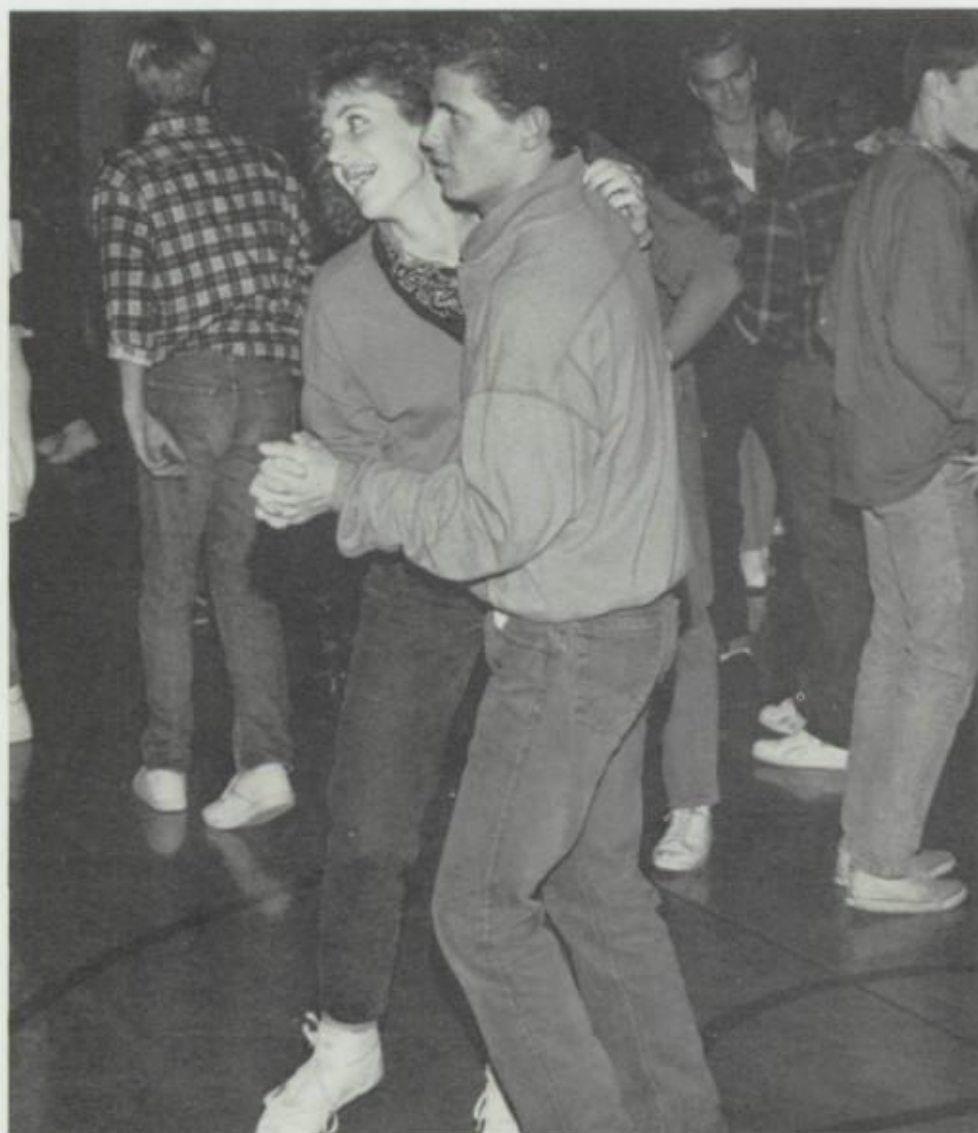

"The dance, all in all, was the best I've seen in three years I've been here, and it'll be tough to top," stated Jeff Randall.

Jason Stuart, Heather Dornan, Ann McKinley and Kelly Burch resemble a Toyota commercial, expressing what a fun evening they're having.

Free Ride

Couples "Sail Away"

By Jeff Randall

It's 1987, and by now it's obvious how "Women's Lib" has found its place in our society — at least in high school society. Woman's lib is really something most people have forgotten about, although certain cliches do linger. What about Rose Bird? or Sally Ride? two prime examples of ambitious women who broke into fields dominated by men.

And just as men were in charge of taking their ladies to formal dances, the women have created a dance where they are in charge of asking the guys.

Some girls not being accustomed to this, became really nervous. Some even out of town to completely avoid the occasion.

"I didn't want to go to a dance in our cafeteria, besides I was in San Diego," justified Jami Allen.

Even though the dance was in the cafeteria, that didn't damper the spirits of those who attended.

"I thought it (the cafeteria), was really nicely decorated, and everyone looked like they were having a good time," commented dance committee member, Irene Lickl.

Many people however concentrated on the activities surrounding the dance. Some girls rented limos and planned candle-light dinners.

"My girlfriend rented a limo and my friend had to sit in the front seat," said Frank Paulson.

"I didn't want to go to a dance in our cafeteria, besides I was in San Diego"

— Jami Allen

Girl Date Boy is an underrated dance. Perhaps the fact the dance is in the cafeteria may have something to do with it.

"But after all, it's not the dance you go to, but who you go with," said Brian Maguire.

Garret Ross and Tiffany Hamilton look up, while others lose themselves in a love song.

Instead of sailing away, Jeff Granito and Holli Bleir chose to dance the night away.

A Memorable Night

By Cheryl Dorler

"This brings back fond memories of when I was a senior attending my prom here at the Balboa Pavillion," stated senior class advisor Dick Brunt. "The Pavillion served as a great dance hall then, and it was certainly a success this year."

These same memories will some day be held by Villa Park students when they reflect on their high school days.

"The dance was really nice," claimed Tammy Harris, "I had a lot of fun." Most couples started their evening by eating in one of the fine restaurants in the area. Tammy and her date dined at Paparossi in Irvine. Other popular places were Bobby McGee, Reuben E. Lee, The Ritz, The Ancient Mariner, and The Rusty Pelican.

Senior class president, Kevin Halligan began planning this event in August with the help of the senior senators. This committee searched Orange County to find an appropriate location for the dance and a talented band for live entertainment, but most of the decisions were made by Kevin.

Couples arriving at the dance presented their ticket, and headed straight for the picture line to have a portrait taken. They found a table with their friends and danced to Scandal. After dancing, Mr. Brunt announced the court.

The court entered, girls in traditional gowns, and the guys in pegged pants and brightly colored Converse high-tops. Kevin Bates and Nicole Genova were crowned Coronation King and Queen, and shortly after the dance ended, for many couples the night was still young. "I feel this dance was one of the best formals this school has had," commented senior Mike Danielson.

Sharing a quiet moment together, Matt Genova and Martha Rollison enjoy each other's company.

The Coronation court, Gina Mater, Kelly Kindt, Nicole Genova, Laura Gates, Irene Lickl, Valerie Raya and Beth Stuart, wore traditional formal gowns.

Male members of the court, Kevin Bates, Ken Domer, Kevin Halligan, Trevor Kirschner, Mark Kuli, K.C. Nowak, David Piper, wore pegged pants and bright colored Converse high-tops.

Bob Waldow and Kristin Oliveri gaze out the window at the lights on the boats sailing across the harbor.

FIRST TIME SUCCESS

By Erin Slawson

Fine Arts Week was a first at VPHS. Each day of the week offered a new professional display of talent. One of the most popular days took place when the Firebird Theatre performed "The Fisherman's Wife."

After the professional performance, students were invited to create their own scenario based on the play, and then act it out on stage for the rest of the students. The students and the actors swapped costumes, and then took over.

Senior Jackie Perez enjoyed playing the part of the fisherman, "At first I was scared, but then I relaxed and had a great time," she added. Michele Young was a success as the Sea Goddess, "I really had a blast on stage," she added. "It was really entertaining," added Eric Bergman, an audience member.

ASB Activities

By Craig Hofstatter

The ASB Cabinet scheduled many activities for the student body. Ken Domer, ASB President submitted his ideas which guided the rest of the cabinet in formalizing student activities.

The ASB was in charge of many activities throughout the year, including Homecoming, various stag dances, all lunch time activities, and the Rec. Nights.

President, Ken Domer, said, "The ASB did a lot of things this year to create a better atmosphere. I just wish we could do more — have more power. Not all our ideas were accepted, due to resistance from Activities Director Ms. Thielman and Principal Dick Kirwin."

Some improvements that did take place were the radio stations played at lunch, as well as "album side," which were very popular.

Other activities planned and executed by the ASB were The Battle of the Bands and the Lips Sync contest, also big hits with the students.

Bending over backwards, Sharon Hochman makes it under the limbo stick as Vicki Jacobson and Kelly Kindt hold it down. This first stag dance, sponsored by the ASB, was a huge success.

Laura Gates, SADD Board member, worked with the four other members to fulfill the year's goals.

"I like to get involved in school activities, especially one as worthwhile as SADD. People tend to misunderstand. They think SADD tries to prohibit students from drinking in general, but rather, SADD tries to alleviate the number of intoxicated drivers on the road."

Laura enjoys playing tennis and collecting teddy bears. "I like them because they are soft and cuddly." Laura also enjoys swimming, reading and, most of all, spending time with her family and friends.

In the future, Laura hopes to attend UCSB, UCLA, or USC. "I plan to eventually have a family, but I would like a career first," stated Laura.

SADD Gains Members

By Michelle Fang

SADD, one of the largest, about 120 people, and strongest organization on Villa Park Campus, gained a number of new members. There was even a list of 50 people waiting to join. "Membership this year is the best it has ever been," commented SADD Board member Rob Fauteux.

Every member worked as a team to help eliminate intoxicated drivers by offering safe rides home during weekends.

"I'm very pleased to see the growth of this organization," advisor Vince DeFalco stated. "It not only provided unity but also increased the awareness of the dangers of drunk driving."

Other SADD members also felt positive about the increased size of SADD. "I think it's awesome. With so many people in SADD now. We don't have to work as often as we used to last year," stated Senior SADD member, Denise Berg.

At VPHS there have usually been two choirs, but this year saw an addition to the program, Womens Ensemble which contained about twenty young ladies.

Everyday we walked into class with anxiety on our faces. Ms. Blakey, our director, led us in warm ups. After letting out a couple high "la's", the real singing began. We all sang together.

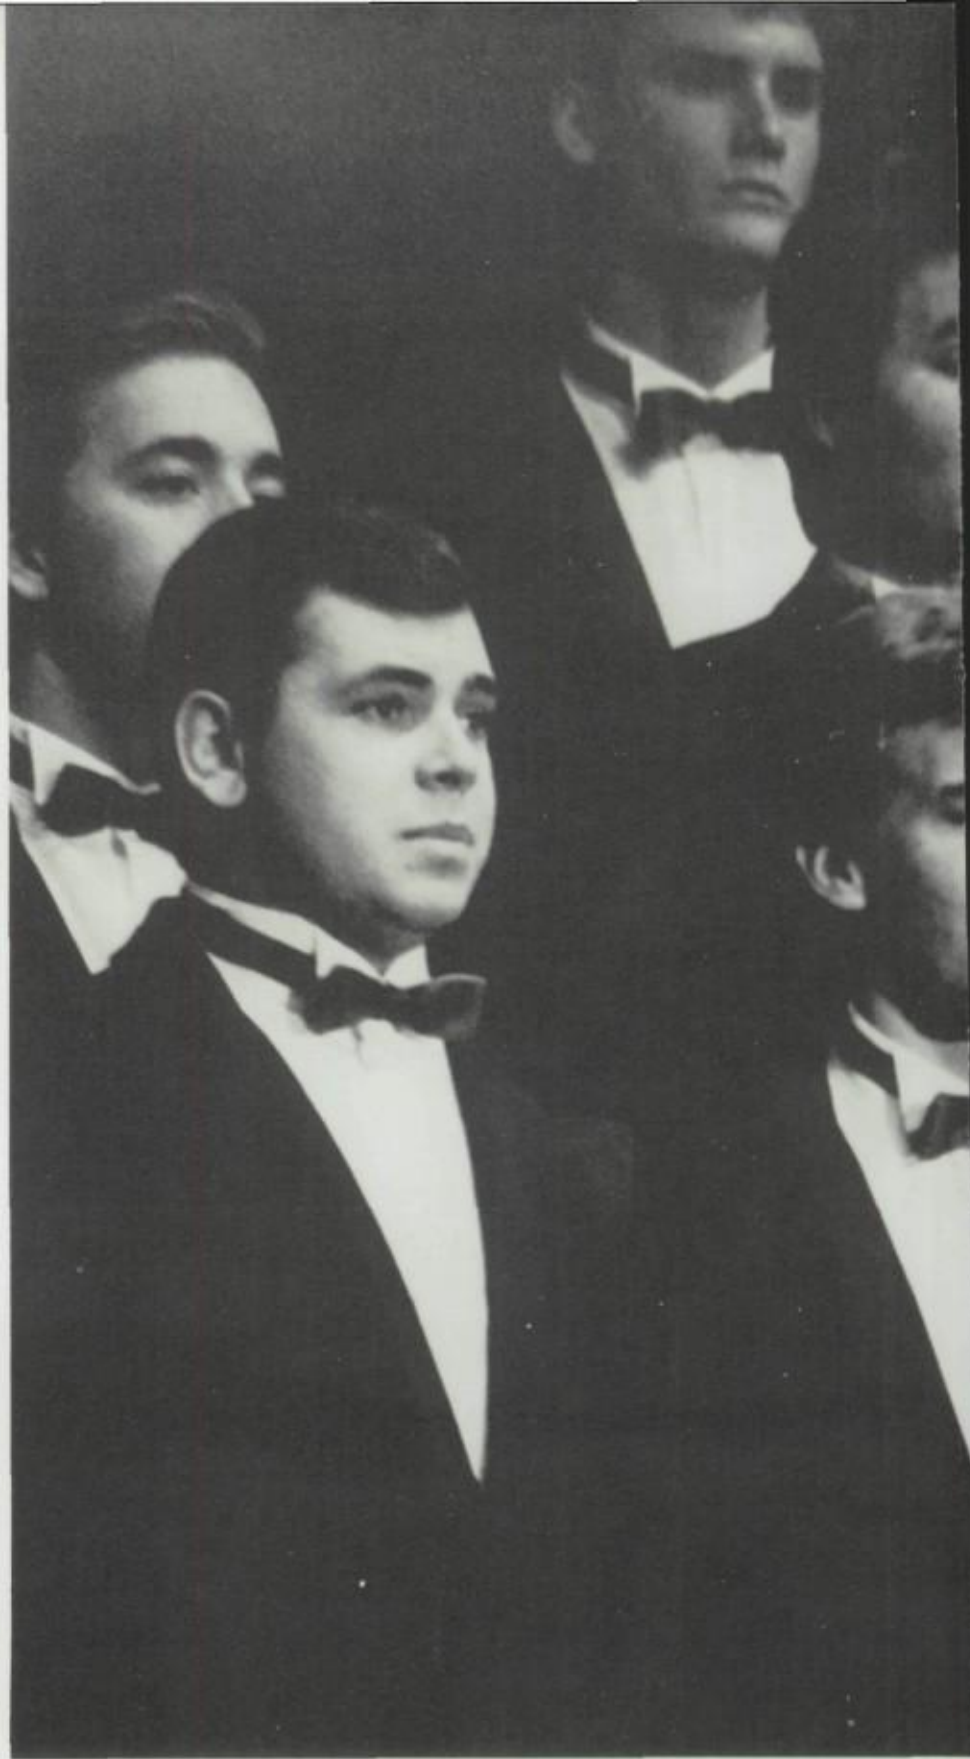

Although seeming easy, the class was extremely difficult at times, but by the look on everyone's face you could tell we enjoyed what we did.

By Christine Norman

As one of their fundraisers, all three singing groups had a car wash raising over a thousand dollars. Hard at work Sandra Evans and Nadia Davis hurry to dry the car before the next one is ready.

For the first time the choir groups annual Christmas Concert made a two hundred fifty dollar profit. Giving it their all, The Chamber Singers Brent Spalding, Matt Green, Chris Rommel, Rebecca Naya, Scott Stovall, Jimmy Van Loo, Gavin Arroyo, Deanna Strachan, sing their hearts out.

Looking Good!

By Barbara Dunn

The three choral groups, Chamber Singers, Vocal Ensemble, and Women's Ensemble, were directed by Ms. Mary-Ester Blakley. What is the difference between these groups? The type of music they sang was the main factor that differentiated them.

The "Sound System," Vocal Ensemble, sang and danced to "jazzy" style music. "They're a show choir that danced and sang their way into the hearts of people," explained Blakley. Classical music was sung by the Chamber Singers, who met zero period. "The Vocal Ensemble and the Chamber Singers worked together as a family," stated Jeff Hoey, a member of Sound System.

Because of the overwhelming number of female students who wished to participate in a school chorus, a new singing group, Women's Ensemble, was formed. This class was opened to girl who enjoyed singing. Leslie Votava, the president of Women's Ensemble smiled and said, "We just sang and had fun." The girls chorus sang all styles and periods of music ranging from the Renaissance to show tunes.

All three choirs had two fundraisers, a cheese and sausage sale, that made $1,500 and a car wash that profited over $1,000. The money was mainly used for their competition fees as well as various props used for their performances. They performed at many competitions including Magic Mountain, Disneyland, and a three day competition in San Francisco.

"The groups this year were the most cohesive. They had spirit, unity and worked together," Blakley said with a satisfied smile.

ON STAGE

By Jolene Tafuya

Imagine yourself dancing on a stage in front of hundreds of VPHS students and teachers — this is what students in Dance Choreography and Production do.

Dance Choreography had their first opportunity to display their dancing abilities at Club Rush. After warming-up to "Lookout Weekend," the dancers performed numbers to "When I Hear Music," "Conga," and "Walk Like an Egyptian."

Other performances included the Holiday Show and Fine Arts Week.

"I can tell that the audience was surprised to not see the typical dancing styles. Instead, they were shocked with the pizzazz of different cultural dances," stated dancer Dinah Gitlin.

After choosing International Dance as a theme, the dancers performed Arabian, French, Russian, Spanish, Hawaiian, and Jamaican dances for Fine Arts Week.

On May 14 and 15, Dance Choreography's annual Spring Concert took place. This year's show was called "Encore, Dance Chore." and consisted of almost 20 dances. Dance Choreography's President, Beverly Webster, said her favorite memory of the concert was, "To see how all of the time and effort put into rehearsals finally paid off in great performances."

At the Holiday Show in December, Beth Carpenter, Brandi Newman, Jennifer Galus, and Stephanie Fry hold a pose in "99 Luft Balloons." This was a jazz-ballet choreographed by Sharon Singerman.

Not just a newspaper staff but ...

By Christine Norman

ONE BIG FAMILY

As the dull buzz of the fifth period bell rang in room 210, Oracle editors scurried about, emerging themselves in last minute work. Orders and commands ricocheted off the collage covered wall and rose above the busy chatter and mellow music of KRTH emanating from a small pocket radio.

Today is a deadline and many were burning the midnight oil trying to finish their articles in time and wishing they had opted for a "Heidi's run."

Some wondered if they had their sanity intact when they signed up for this, supposedly, "Kick Back Class." But the majority of the staff felt that all the stress would be worth it, sometime.

Scott Johnson, sports editor, said, "The pressure is intense in this class, but we'll all be better for it in the long run."

Leah Carpenter, chief editor, commented, "Being on the Oracle staff takes a lot of hard work, but it's really fun."

This "fun" was noticeable the moment you walked into the Oracle room. Shrill laughter and suppressed giggles rang through the air as Gayle Ginsburg used humorous antics to quiet everyone down. Meanwhile groans and chuckles met Mr. Haskins, the Oracle's adviser's announcement, "Remember to bring your jammies for pajama day on Friday, and don't forget to bring food for the potluck on Thursday," a weekly tradition upheld by the staff.

The idea that you can have fun in the midst of hard work exists. The Oracle is living proof. "We're all one big happy family, working to produce what we think is the best Oracle that we can!" commented Leah Carpenter.

A photographers job is never done! Vivian Espinoza and Bob Ernst clean their cameras so they can take the best possible pictures.

Leah Carpenter, editor in chief, said, "My job is to hold this group together, to produce the best Oracle we can. Journalism is more than a newspaper; it's a life style."

Known as the longest story writer, Patricia Chu, news editor, has her hands full trying to find news of the school and community. "The class experience is great for my future and I love working with the group."

Sports editor, Scott Johnson, and the only guy on the editorial staff, commented, "I don't think of them as girls, just fellow workers."

Ilene Leichuk, opinion page editor, her job was to find situations good and bad that need to be recognized. "I love this staff; it's just like one big family."

Valarie Raya, feature editor, stated, "My job is one of the most challenging. I not only wrote stories and covered events but I had to create fictional stories that I felt readers take interest in."

Deanna Hampton, copy editor, was the only junior on the staff. Her job was to correct copy and type up letters to the chief editor. "My job is slight. I really wanted to be another editor, but I'd recommend joining. It's a different experience and very helpful in life's communications."

Sean Poulson, photographer, is also an important part of making everything run smoothly. "I started on the newspaper hoping to be a freelance photographer for a major magazine someday."

Making sure her layout is perfect, Valarie Rava cuts away excess areas with an exacto knife. As feature editor she stated, "My funnest jobs are working on dances and social events."

By Cheri Frost

Following in the footsteps of Nancy Freedman, a past Oracle member, Gayle Ginsburg, head of advertising, was in charge of designing ads, calling up potential customers and lining up ads.

"I've never had a dull moment around here. If I'm not calling every client in the area, I'm running around trying to design what I feel would sell the business' products the best."

The job was time consuming and challenging but, Gayle enjoyed it. She said, "It's never boring."

Checking final drafts are "a drag" especially before deadlines are due. Mr. Travis Haskins, Oracle advisor, and Sean Poulson go over copy to perfect it.

At one and a half, already in the pool.
At age eight, a yellow ball is your tool.
You started out such a sweet little boy.
And now you have grown into our pride and joy.

There are swimming, skiing, biking and polo.
Sports with a team, or sports just solo.

Your friends are terrific and chosen with care.
It's great to be with them with fun times to share.

Best friends with your sister, you've always been so.
She out with your friends and you hers — you all go.

Our "Tiger," our "Buster-Boy," or just plain "Turk,"
Your future success will reward your hard work.

You've had obstacles on your road to success,
But gone on and tried not to get too depressed.

You've grown from these problems and learned who you are.
Dedication to goals will make you go far.

We all love you so much and this we can't hide,
The person you are surely fills us with pride.

Not afraid to show kindness, caring and love.
Not the hawk in a fight, but more like the dove.

To college next year, we'll miss you like crazy!
Take our love and our hearts —

Dear Cheryl:

You finally made it! You are a senior at Villa Park and graduating. I know there have been some times in the last few years that we felt we would never make it this far, but we did succeed!

I admire you for your ability to make the best of a bad situation, your strength, courage, hope, listening ability and your love.

Always remember those special times you have had over the years: Your first date (with Matt G.) Your first formal dance with Mike, the good times we had with Mom, and let's look forward to the new (yet different) good times we will have with our new family. Most of all remember that I LOVE YOU, and that you are the best (little) sister I could have asked for!

*Love Always,
Karyn*

Congratulations

Tawni

I hope you know how proud I am of you. You're the best think that's ever happened to me.

May your life be blessed as you've blessed mine.

And always remember ...

You'll never know a day that I didn't love you.

Always Love.

Kelly Kindt

*Dear Kelly;
Your high school days are closing fast
This present life will become your past
Your friends you know and love
Will be guided by GOD from above
You'll miss their smiles and listening ears
Down your cheeks will roll many tears
Each memory you hold so true
The good times and bad times, too.
You ask?
Why can't our lives remain as one
Friends forever just having fun
As each of you goes your separate ways
Think kindly of your high school days
Remember though you're miles apart
You'll hold each one dearly in your heart*

*To laugh is to risk appearing the fool.
To weep is to risk appearing the sentimental.
To reach out for another is to risk involvement.
To expose feelings is to risk exposing your true self.
To love is to risk not being loved in return.
To hope is to risk despair.
To try is to risk failure.
If you don't risk, you cannot grow
If you don't grow, you cannot be at your best.
If you are not at your best, you cannot be happy
If you can't be happy, what else matters?*

*Thanks for being a WONDERFUL daughter.
It's been fun sharing your life.
Best of luck at the University.
May you reach all your goals.*

*Love,
Mommy*

Even though you've been pretty hard to get along with, we've had some fun times together. I guess I'm as much a nuisance to you as you are to me, but I don't think there's a sister or brother that's perfect 24 myself for saying this, but I'm pretty glad I have a sister like you. Stay healthy and have fun.

Dear Tracy,

*When you were just a tiny girl,
you brought us such delight.
Your laughter, smile, and winsome ways were especially pleasing and bright.
In swimming meets, you came in first;
in Micronesia, you sailed.
In Colorado, you skied the slopes, schussing down the trails.
On to grade school in Villa Park, you strived, learned, and took a part in so many ways . . .
Softball, soccer, riding, and dance just partly filled your days.
At Cerro Villa, we shared your world of activities, friends, and fun.
Offices, clubs, and drill team made each day a special one.
In the year of 1984
you endeavored to spread your wings.
But we remained firm and you did learn of His love, among other things.
In high school years,
we watched you excel — from honor student to debutante — Your commitment to excellence served you well.
An achiever, you have always possessed motivation, involvement, dedication, success.*

*And still you have a special way of growing dearer day by day.
You're helpful, considerate principled, and caring.
Your individuality is sometimes even daring.
You're a wonderful example of what a daughter can be . . .
Loving and kind, beautiful and good, intelligent and sensitive describe you perfectly.
For the values and beliefs you uphold, you're admired and respected more than you're told.
Your spirit and enthusiasm are heartwarming to be near.
And pride in all you are and do grows deeper every year.
As graduation day appears,
we wish you all the love,
happiness and fulfillment
you've given us for years.
Now it's college and bigger things for our very special girl, who has risen far above
mediocrity,
Who will make a difference in this world.*

*We love you,

George,

Now that you've graduated and are becoming more of a man, remember life holds many opportunities. DON'T let too many get away. DON'T PROCRASTINATE. To be a man and to get through life you must ALWAYS be a gentleman. Life opens all its doors to gentlemen; who are also "gentle men", for they are one in the same.

We love you George and pray that God will Bless you always.

NORM JOHNSON

Here's an ad for Mr. J.
For being a great guy day after day.
For all his help and speech so wise,
To you with love from all us yearbook guys.
Although you've had to scream and shout,
We now know what yearbooking is all about.
For ten years you've pulled hairs out of your head,
Yelling at us to "Get out the lead!"
But now your work is nearly done,
And all the headaches and all the fun
Are closing their doors as far as the yearbook goes,
Leaving endless memories from the path you once chose.
So we give you this ad and hope it will remain
Year after year as a reminder of what you have gained.

THE NEW LOOK

"I know I'm going to cry," stated senior Michele Young discussing graduation. "It's hard to just throw away so many years and friends."

As graduation came closer every day, feelings of joy and anxiety filled the heads of senior students.

"So many times I wished it was through, but many times I'm scared about the future," senior Allison Brand added.

Many were eager to get on with their lives after graduation, but some have yet to begin their after graduation plans.

In either case, VPHS has served as a center for (both good and bad) memories.

"Friends, teachers, and experiences at VPHS will never be forgotten," summed up senior Mindy McVey. Although A New Look has spread across the VPHS campus, old Spartan Traditions will shine forever. New faces, instructors, and memories will be experienced as VPHS graduates advance into their futures.

Banging, strumming, laughing, and drumming the VPHS Faculty Band, Mrs. Barbara Morton, Mrs. Ann Folkert, Mrs. Barbara Poole, Mr. Jeff Erlich, Mrs. Gertrude Bigelow, Mr. Dennis Moody, and Mr. Travis Haskins perform at the first outdoor assembly. The faculty and students enjoy their display of talent.

Attending the ceremony for the installation of the life saving traffic light, principal, Mr. Richard Kirwin, concerned parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beyl and Mrs. Pat Bortle briefly converse. The light was installed after parents and students protested in its favor.

Dating Game contestant Allyson Woodall heartily laughs at her given question. This lunch time festivity produced many laughs from both the contestants and their audience.

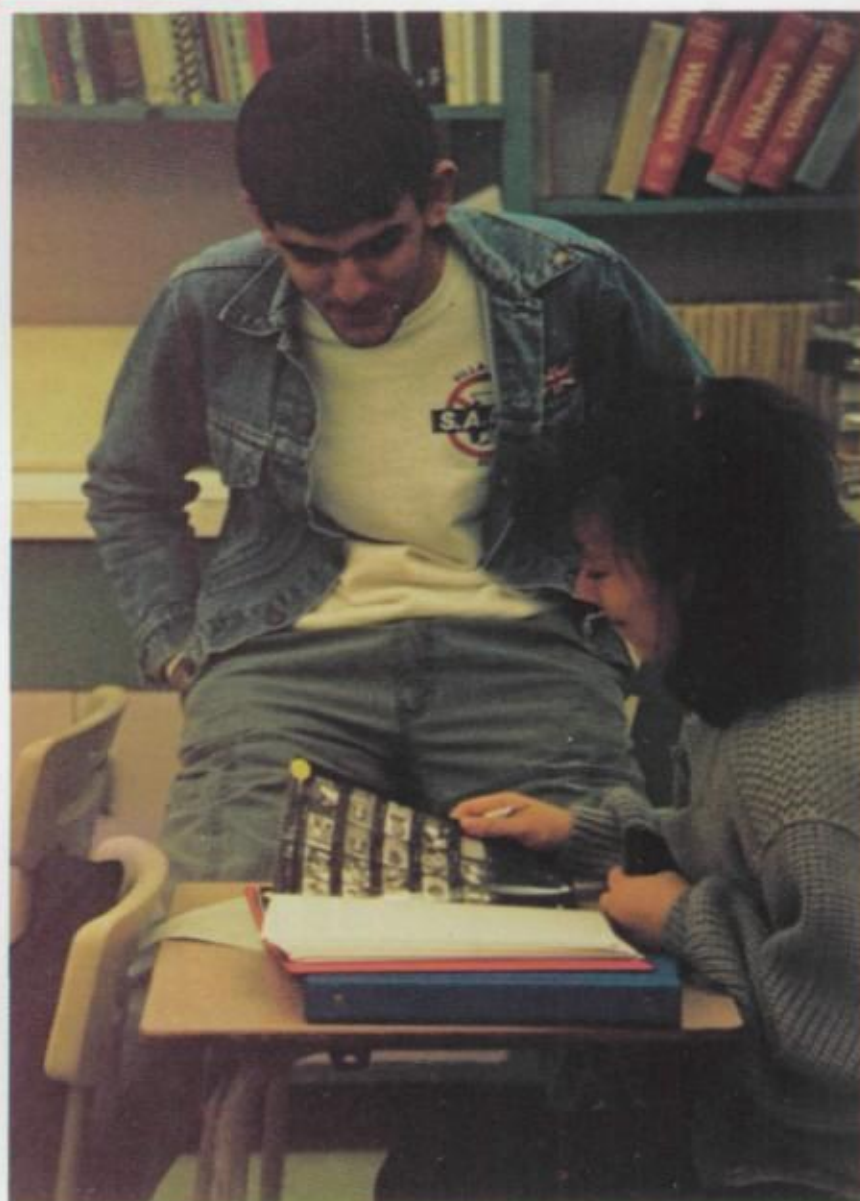

Searching their imaginations, Jody Scott, Jeff Randall, and Dave Lawhon create their stories. Stories were an enjoyable task for many staff members because they got the chance to express themselves on paper.

"A New Look!"

VPHS went through many changes this year. In the beginning, the ideas we had seemed interesting and challenging, but soon we bogged down with endless problems and deadlines that seemed to always come too soon.

The majority of this year's staff were inexperienced and not always, "all together" committed to their yearbook. Editors Daren Testa and Erin Slawson, worked hard to organize and assist in helping the class.

Things began to ship up second semester, and "After all the hard work and late nights, the yearbook began to develop into something we all could be proud of," said Craig Hofstatter.

"Advisor, Norm Johnson, often got frustrated with the class when we were falling behind or not getting enough work done in class," commented Jeff Randall. "But in the end I think he was very impressed with the outcome of our labors."

"I think we all enjoyed being in annual class. It was a great experience and we all had a great time. Before Christmas we all exchanged names and exchanged gifts under the alias, "Secret Santa"," commented Jill Siegel.

Colophon

The 23rd volume of VPHS's yearbook the "Odyssey" was manufactured by Herff Jones of Marceline, Missouri. There were 1310 copies printed at the cost of $34,000. The staff produced $25,000 from pre-sales at the price of $25 a book and $6,600 from the sale of parent ads.

The "Odyssey" consisted of four editors. Erin Slawson and Darren Testa had the responsibility of Co-Editor and Chief. Genalyn Talavera was Theme Editor and Robby Fauteux was Business Editor. With special thanks to Mr. Norm Johnson Advisor and the rest of the Odyssey Staff.

We used a 9 X 12 format with 312 pages and two 4 page tip-ins. The 40 color pages were printed on 100 lb. Calais. The endsheets were a four color process, while the cover was made from a litho original art by Miho Akiyama combined with a student photograph.

The Senior Portraits were taken by Albert and James. The Underclassman Mug Shots were taken by Portrait World. Color pictures were taken by students with 400 ASA Fuji Color or by Albert and James as indicated by picture.

Black and white pictures were taken with Kodak 400 Tri-Pan-X and printed by students in the Annual's dark room with paper and chemicals supplied by Albert and James.

Type styles used were 10 pt. Stymie for body copy, 8 pt. Stymie Bold for captions, 6 pt. Stymie Italic for photo by lines and story by lines. For headlines we used 14-48 pt. Italic or Stymie Bold.

Kumo,
The year is finally over! Thank God! no more Bruce
Campbell, dammit! more adventures with Joyce, Craig & Susan this summer. 45 bills for you & 45 bills for me. we can buy Tombo presents. Hah! Susan has isolation, you have 2 hours & I only have one, hehehe.
Basarrr. we'll be having to do something this summer if Grace gives you my messages!
Dis is Kumamoto residents! Let's be staying away from ygy - - - this summer. He can have if Shanna, pumpkin, bitch is still waiting for us. She's probably still passed out in the bushes some where.
Well Joyce it's been real. Have a baby or 2 this summer. I'll be seeing you around & have a good one.
Craig D.

Yours Buddy, Trey-

[illegible]

Apya - Thanks a million for being my mom and saving my butt BIG TIME over the year. You've been a big help. I've been glad to have
 you. I've never had a friend like you. Well, I'll see you next summer.
 Love,
 Calvin

P.S. Would you like to visit me at the B-280 drop-off point?
 I'll be glad to see you!

that I am, in California, but completely only for a couple of weeks any more. Now it's "Surfer", "Sharks", "The T-shirt and Beach Boys" music and Hi Top near this place, the sun, the beach, the palm trees, but mostly all the people, the new French and all these people I wish to be of these many people I'd be known better. I hope you're not gonna see again, Jimmy
